24. 33.—Famine Relief Works.—The actual outlay by Funds (exclusive of outlay from Excluded Local Funds) is compared with the Budget and Revised Estimates in the following table:—

	Imperial.	Provincial.	Incorporated Local.	TOTAL.
	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.
Budget Estimate	1,945,100	164,100	41,000	2,150,200
Revised Estimate	3,240,000	158,300	11,500	3,409,800
Actuals	3,210,789	138,818	2,760	3,352,367

The increase over the Budget Estimate was due to the fact that no accurate forecast of expenditure on Relief Works could be prepared owing to uncertainty regarding the extent to which, and the time over which, relief operations would be necessary. The decrease compared with the Revised Estimate was due principally to the transfer at the close of the year of the normal expenditure on revenue-producing works to ordinary heads under Public Works Department Code, Volume I, Chapter IX, paragraph 104 (III and IV).

The detailed account of expenditure by provinces and departmental heads will be found in the abstracts and detailed accounts appended to the review. In the Central Provinces, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Madras and Bombay the expenditure has been heavy. The greater portion or nearly two-thirds of the whole outlay was incurred on roads. The expenditure on the works recorded under this head would not have been incurred in ordinary years.

25. The outlay from Excluded Local Funds, on Famine Relief works, Punjab, amounted to Rx. 3,923.

26. 50.—Miscellaneous Public Improvements.—An expenditure of Rx. 4,105 was incurred during the year on account of constructing a jetty and a shed at Chittagong, against the provision of Rx. 8,400 in the Revised Estimate for the year. The work, which is estimated to cost Rx. 48,860, is being carried out by the Assam-Bengal Railway Company, and the expenditure transferred to the Public Works Department, Bengal, for final adjustment.

27. The suspense balances and objectionable expenditure outstanding at the close of 1897-98 have been reviewed separately.

WHARFAGE

ON GOODS AVAILABLE FOR DELIVERY.

RULE 1. At the goods depôts in Bombay and at Dadar and Poona:

For goods of every description available for delivery before fifteen o'clock a wharfage charge at the rate of one anna per maund per day will be made if the goods are not removed from the company's premises before closing time on the following day.

But when goods are not available for delivery until after fifteen o'clock they must be removed before closing time on the day after the following day, or wharfage charges as above will be incurred.

For example:—Goods ready for delivery before fifteen o'clock on Monday must be cleared before closing time on Tuesday, but if they are not available until after fifteen o'clock on Monday they can be cleared free of wharfage at any time before closing time on Wednesday.

For goods unloaded from wagons or trucks referred to in rules 8 and 9 and left on the company's premises after the time allowed free by this rule, wharfage at the above rate will be charged in addition to demurrage, if incurred, at the rate noted in rule 7 (b), the period for the calculation of wharfage being reckoned from the time the trucks are placed in position for unloading.

For carriages, dog-carts and tongas on their own wheels not packed in cases, and palkees or doolies, etc., not removed from the company's premises within twenty-four hours after they are available for delivery, wharfage will be charged at the rate of one rupee per day or part of a day reckoning from closing time.

See also rule 4 (a) as to goods delayed waiting to be consigned.

RULE 2. At stations or depôts other than those in Bombay and at Dadar and Poona:

For goods available for delivery before fifteen o'clock a charge at the rate of two pies per maund per day, or part of a day, will be levied if not removed from the company's premises before closing time of the day next but one after that on which they are available for delivery.

And for goods available for delivery after fifteen o'clock wharfage charges as above will be incurred if not removed from the company's premises before closing time on the third day after that on which they are available for delivery.

For example:—Goods available for delivery before fifteen o'clock on Monday, must be removed before closing time on Wednesday, but should the goods not be ready for delivery until after fifteen o'clock on Monday wharfage will not be charged if they are removed before closing time on Thursday.

For goods unloaded from wagons or trucks referred to in rules 8 and 9 and left on the company's premises after the time allowed free by this rule, wharfage at the above rate will be charged in addition to demurrage, if incurred, at the rate noted in rule 7 (b), the period for the calculation of wharfage being reckoned from the time the trucks are placed in position for unloading.

For carriages, dog-carts and tongas on their own wheels not packed in cases, and palkees or doolies, etc., not removed from the company's premises within twenty-four hours after they are available for delivery, wharfage will be charged at the rate of one rupee per day or part of a day reckoning from closing time.

See also rule 4 (b) as to goods delayed waiting to be consigned.

RULE 3. Goods are considered as available for delivery as soon as they are unloaded, or in the case of truck-loads as soon as put into position for unloading.

ON GOODS FOR DESPATCH WAITING TO BE CONSIGNED.

RULE 4. (a) At the goods depôts in Bombay and at Dadar and Poona:

For goods of every description brought on to the company's premises for despatch, but not consigned, wharfage will be charged at the rate of one anna per maund per day or part of a day if consignment notes are not received before closing time of the day on which such goods are deposited at the station.

(b) At stations or depôts other than those in Bombay and at Dadar and Poona:

For goods of every description brought on to the company's premises for despatch, but not consigned, wharfage will be charged at the rate of two pies per maund per day or part of a day if consignment notes are not received before closing time of the day after such goods are deposited at the station.

RULE 5. The minimum charge for wharfage is two annas.

RULE 6. If the state of the traffic makes it necessary the rates for wharfage are liable to be increased, and the free time curtailed, after expiration of a week's notice.

DEMURRAGE

ON WAGONS ORDERED AND WAITING TO BE LOADED BY SENDERS.

RULE 7. For empty wagons ordered but not loaded by senders within twenty-four hours after such wagons are placed ready for loading, the following demurrage charges will be made, namely:

(a) (i) On vehicles for the conveyance of stores and materials for Government State railways, and (ii) Vehicles for the conveyance of Government elephants if delayed for practice in loading or for any other reason.	Four rupees per vehicle per day or any part of a day.

(b) On vehicles for the conveyance of goods for Government and for the public.	One anna per hour or part of an hour for every ton of the carrying capacity of each vehicle.

ON LOADED WAGONS WAITING TO BE DISCHARGED BY CONSIGNEES.

RULE 8. For loaded wagons not discharged by consignees within twenty-four hours after they are placed ready for unloading, the charges for demurrage for delay to the wagons will be at the rates shown in rule 7 (b).

RULE 9. In the case of goods in bulk received in the wagons of other railway administrations the company reserves to itself the right to discharge and release such trucks if it is found that the consignee will not be able to unload them within twenty-four hours. In such cases the extra charge for unloading will be one rupee four annas per vehicle.

CALCULATION OF CHARGES.

RULE 10. In calculating demurrage charges a truck shall be considered as available for loading or unloading if it is placed in position at any time during business hours, but if not so placed until after closing time, 17 o'clock, the 24 hours' free allowance will be reckoned from opening time, 7 o'clock, the next morning.

RULE 11. If the state of the traffic makes it necessary the rates for demurrage are liable to be increased, and the free time curtailed, after expiration of a week's notice.

GENERAL.

RULE 12. In all cases of wharfage, demurrage, etc., under these rules the day will be reckoned as 24 hours; the opening time 7 o'clock and the closing time 17 o'clock.

RULE 13. Sundays, Christmas-day and Good Friday, and in Bombay the day on which the taboots in the Mohurrum festival are carried through the streets, are not reckoned in charging wharfage.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Public Works Department.

Read—

Proceedings of the Government of Madras, Public Works Department, No. 191 I., dated 23rd February 1899, reviewing the Administration Report of Irrigation Works in that Presidency for 1897-98.

OBSERVATIONS.—The capital expenditure incurred on the Madras Irrigation Works in 1897-98 amounted to Rs. 14,78,318, of which Rs. 8,46,618 was spent on Productive Works, and Rs. 4,66,648 on Minor Works. Of the outlay on Productive Works more than 4 lakhs were spent on the Kistna delta system in improvements to the weir and in a new head sluice, and Rs. 1,39,380 on the Cauvery delta system in remodelling the Upper Coleroon anicut and fitting lift shutters to the grand anicut, the expenditure in both cases being charged against the open capital account. On the Periyar project the expenditure was Rs. 1,75,994, and it is reported that 68 miles of branch channels and 12 miles of distributaries were completed by the end of the year against 94 miles and 46 miles, respectively, sanctioned in the project estimate. On the Rushikulya project, the only Protective Work in the Province, the capital outlay was Rs. 1,65,052 and the works are said to be now nearly completed.

The capital expenditure on Minor Works was incurred chiefly on the Munnyeru and Sagileru projects and the Lower Coleroon anicut system.

The total capital outlay to the end of the year amounted on Major Works to Rs. 7,07,07,785 and on Minor Works for which capital accounts are kept to Rs. 1,80,87,274.

2. The aggregate length of main and branch canals in operation increased from 3,561 in 1896-97 to 3,662 at the end of 1897-98, while the length of distributaries amounted to 6,946 miles, the additions during the year aggregating 62 miles.

Of the main and branch canals 990 miles are navigable as well as for irrigation and 304 miles are for navigation only.

3. The total area irrigated by all works amounted to 6,372,737 acres as compared with 5,979,044 acres irrigated in 1896-97.

The Major Works irrigated 2,705,915 acres, the Minor Works for which capital accounts are kept 535,813 acres, and Minor Works for which capital accounts are not kept 3,131,009 acres, the last area including 1,691,902 acres irrigated by works under the management of the Revenue Department. Of the Major Works the Cauvery delta system irrigated the large area of 989,808 acres, the Godavari works 779,435 acres, and the Kistna 520,373 acres. The area irrigated by the Periyar project was 89,143 acres as compared with 63,751 acres irrigated last year, and with 38,503 acres entered in the forecast of 1894 as the probable area the project would irrigate in 1897-98.

4. The Periyar project was designed not only to bring new land under cultivation, but to facilitate and increase the irrigation of lands which were formerly supplied by old irrigation channels somewhat precariously, though this extension of old irrigation does not imply a proportionate increase of revenue.

The forecast of 1894 did not clearly specify the area of new irrigation that was anticipated, and it appears that the increase of total area as compared with that forecast was chiefly in old irrigation and was in a great measure due to the inclusion of the areas under the Suruliyar anicuts and under the Chittanai which had to be brought into the project.

The new irrigation increased from 6,442 acres in 1896-97 to 28,051 acres during the year under review. For purposes of comparison with the forecast of 1894 it is necessary to consider therefore not the area irrigated but the financial results attained. The figures for 1897-98 and those of the forecast are given in the following statement:—

	During 1897-98.		To end of 1897-98.
	Actuals.	Forecast.	Actuals.	Forecast.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Gross revenue	1,12,875	1,44,237	1,48,426	2,16,416
Working expenses	89,565	82,101	1,33,745	1,43,599
Net revenue	23,310	62,136	14,681	72,817

These figures shew that on the whole the working expenses compare not unfavourably with the forecast, but the gross revenue, both during and up to the end of the year, has been so much less than was anticipated that the net revenue to the end of 1897-98 was Rs. 58,136 less than the forecast.

The deficiency in gross revenue is no doubt partly due to the non-completion of the distributary system, and to the difficulties attending a change in the course and source of irrigation in land formerly depending on a precarious supply from the tanks which are being gradually abandoned. Delay in the completion of the new irrigation system is however likely to lead to an undue share of the supply being appropriated for the maintenance of old irrigation and it is of importance that the necessary precautions should be taken to prevent this. It is stated that complete information on the points referred to in the Review of the Administration Report of 1896-97 has not yet been received from the Board of Revenue, but the Government of India hope that it will be possible to state more definitely in the Completion Report of this project, which is now awaited, how the actual results attained and the prospects for the future compare with the forecast of 1894.

5. The working expenses for the Major Works amounted to Rs. 22,99,546 as compared with Rs. 24,34,916 in 1896-97 and Rs. 20,47,057, the average of the last six years, the incidence per acre irrigated being 0·85 against 0·93 last year.

The working expenses of the Minor Irrigation Works amounted to Rs. 2,56,117 or 0·48 per acre irrigated. These figures show a decrease of Rs. 44,648 as compared with the expenditure in 1896-97 and of Rs. 39,198 as compared with the average of the last six years.

6. The financial results of the Irrigation and Navigation Works in Madras may be summarised as follows:—

	Capital outlay to end of year.	Net actual revenue.	Net revenue attributable to outlay of Government capital.	Return on capital outlay.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Per cent.
Major Works	7,07,07,785	93,33,139	55,71,269	7·88
Minor Irrigation Works for which capital accounts are kept.	78,29,267	16,49,200	7,42,926	9·49
Minor Navigation Works ...	91,09,516	9,832	9,832	0·11

These figures include those appertaining to the Rushikulya project which was practically completed during the year and with a net revenue of Rs. 25,210 paid a return of 0·54 per cent. on its capital outlay.

The nine Productive Works, all of which are in operation, paid collectively a return of 8·4 per cent. on the capital invested in them. They include two projects, the Kurnool-Cuddapah Canal, which has never fulfilled the conditions of a Productive Work and paid a return of only 0·15 per cent. on the capital expended on it, and the recently opened Periyar project, which is still not fully developed. If these two works be excluded the remaining Productive Works paid a return of 15·33 per cent. on the capital invested in them, a result which may be regarded as very satisfactory.

The interest charges on the Productive Works amounted to Rs. 24,58,929 during the year and to Rs. 4,54,92,872 up to the end of the year. The surplus revenue, after paying interest charges, contributed by the Productive Works, amounted to Rs. 30,87,130 during 1897-98, the total accumulated net profits up to the end of the year amounting to Rs. 6,09,27,400.

7. The Minor Irrigation Works, for which capital accounts are kept, did rather better than last year and paid the high return of 9½ per cent. on the capital incurred on them.

From Minor Works for which neither capital nor revenue accounts are kept, the revenue derived was Rs. 83,01,753 against Rs. 74,13,209 last year. The cost of maintaining these works was Rs. 16,18,791 as compared with Rs. 16,79,699 in the previous year. These amounts do not include the expenditure on the Tank Restoration scheme.

Of the Navigation Works the Buckingham Canal was as usual the only project which paid its working expenses, the net revenue of Rs. 15,841 giving a return of 0·18 per cent. on the capital outlay.

The outlay on Agricultural works amounted to Rs. 5,87,922 as compared with Rs. 9,34,087 last year.

8. The season was generally favourable for agricultural operations, the rainfall being on the whole fairly well distributed and nearly normal in amount.

The value of the crops irrigated by those works for which capital accounts are kept amounted to nearly 964 lakhs of rupees as compared with 697¾ lakhs in 1896-97.

Six investigating parties continued to work on the Tank Restoration scheme, the expenditure on which amounted to Rs. 3,06,276 during the year. Up to the end of the year 36,104 square miles had been investigated and Rs. 67,70,982 had been expended on restorations.

ORDER.—Ordered, that copies of this review and of the report with the Proceedings of the Government of Madras read in the preamble be forwarded to the Revenue and Agricultural Department for information.

Ordered, also, that copies of the review be forwarded to the Government of Madras, Public Works Department, for information and guidance, and to the Local Governments and Administrations in the Public Works Department noted on the margin, for information.

The Governments of Bombay, Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the Punjab and Burma.
The Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces.
The Agents to the Governor General in Rajputana and Baluchistan.

Ordered, further, that the review with the Proceedings of the Government of Madras be published in the Gazette of India, and that copies of the review be forwarded to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India.

Submitted to Government.

2. The submission of the report, which was due with the Government of India on the 15th November 1898, was delayed owing to the non-receipt from the Board of Revenue of the usual review, explaining the causes of variations in the area irrigated and revenue derived during the year, as compared with the previous year, and describing the results attained by the opening of the Periyar project referred to in paragraph 4 of the Government of India observations embodied in Proceedings of Madras Government, No. 567 I., dated 22nd July 1898. To avoid further delay the report has been submitted without complete information on this point, but some explanatory remarks on the subject have been entered on page 40 of the report as far as information is yet available.

(Signed) W. HUGHES,

21st January 1899.

ORDER.—The report deals with 10 major works and 27 minor works for which capital and revenue accounts are kept, and numerous other irrigation and agricultural works individually small, for which such accounts are not kept. Nine of the major works are classed as productive, and one, the Rushikulya project, as protective. All the major works were in operation, and the construction estimates of nine of them have been closed.

2. Of the 27 minor works, 23 are irrigation systems and 4 are tidal canals intended for purely navigation purposes. With the exception of the Chopaud project and the Ganjam-Gopalpore tidal canal, all the minor works were in operation. The construction estimates have been closed for all the works in operation except the Munnyeru, Dondapad and Sagileru projects, and the Lower Coleroon anicut system.

3. The transactions of the year may be summarized as follows :—

The capital outlay incurred during the year was on major works Rs. 10,11,670 and on minor works for which Capital and Revenue Accounts are kept Rs. 4,66,648, making a total of Rs. 14,78,318.

The total charges to the end of the year amounted to Rs. 7,07,07,785 on major works, and to Rs. 1,80,87,274 on minor works for which Capital and Revenue Accounts are kept.

The major works irrigated 2,705,915 acres, and the minor works 535,813 acres; the net return on the capital invested being 7·88 per cent. on the former class of works, and 4·44 per cent. on the latter.

4. The capital outlay incurred on the major and minor works during and up to end of 1897-98 was as follows :—

—	Number of works.	DURING THE YEAR 1897-98. Works.	Establishment.	Tools and plant.	Less receipts on capital account.	Total direct charges.	Indirect charges.	Total direct and indirect charges.	Total direct and indirect charges to end of 1897-98.

5. Under major works, the capital outlay during the year was incurred chiefly on the Kistna and Cauvery delta systems and the Periyar and Rushikulya projects.

On the Kistna delta system the capital outlay amounted to Rs. 4,07,418, including indirect charges, and was incurred chiefly in constructing a new head sluice at Seetanagaram, improvements to the basin between the new and old head sluices at Seetanagaram, fitting falling shutters to the crest of the Kistna anicut and extending the apron of the anicut near the Bezwada end.

The capital outlay on the Cauvery delta system was Rs. 1,39,380, including indirect charges, and was incurred chiefly on remodelling the Upper Coleroon anicut, and fitting lift shutters to the Grand anicut.

On the Periyar project an outlay of Rs. 1,75,994 (including indirect charges) was incurred during the year. Of the 94 miles of branch channels and 46 miles of distributaries sanctioned, 68 and 12 miles, respectively, were completed to the end of the year under review.

The capital outlay on the Rushikulya project was Rs. 1,65,052, including indirect charges. The project was practically completed during the year with the exception of the Surada reservoir. Owing to there being no rain till June, the Russellkonda reservoir was the only source available in the beginning of the year both for agricultural and drinking purposes in the Goomsur and Berhampore taluks.

Under minor works the capital outlay was incurred chiefly on the Munnyeru and Sagileru projects and the Lower Coleroon anicut system.

On the Munnyeru project the capital outlay was Rs. 1,50,890, including indirect charges. Four bridges, eight undertunnels, and one regulator—incomplete works of the previous year—were completed, as also the Vemavaram tank weir, surplus weir at 14 miles 4 furlongs, and 10 head sluices to distributaries. The channel was opened for supply of water on the 20th July 1897.

On the Sagileru project the capital outlay was Rs. 56,162, including indirect charges. The supply channel to Porumilla tank, and all the masonry works except the lascars' lines at the head works, and alterations to the Cumbum road regulator, were completed.

The capital outlay, including indirect charges, on the Lower Coleroon anicut system was Rs. 95,069. The Chidambaram drainage scheme, and improvements to the Lower Coleroon anicut, and fitting it with screw-gearing shutters, were in progress.

6. The following statement shows the revenue receipts and working expenses of each work in operation for which Capital and Revenue Accounts are kept :—

7. The gross revenue derived from major works was Rs. 8,30,524 more than in the previous year. The increase occurred under all the systems except the Sangam anicut system, the decrease under which was due to the unfavourable character of the season. The working expenses were Rs. 1,35,370 less than in the previous year during which extensive repairs were carried out in restoring works damaged by floods. The net revenue from major works attributable to the outlay of Government capital was Rs. 55,71,269 which is equivalent to a return of 7·88 per cent. on capital outlay against 6·71 per cent. in the previous year.

The interest on the major works amounted to Rs. 26,26,258 during the year and to Rs. 4,66,43,542 up to the end of the year. The surplus revenue after deducting the interest charges was Rs. 29,45,011 during the year and amounted to Rs. 5,98,36,717 up to the end of the year.

8. On the minor Irrigation works for which Capital and Revenue Accounts are kept, the net revenue attributable to the outlay of Government capital was Rs. 75,050 more than during the previous year. There was a decrease in the working expenses of Rs. 44,648. The percentage of net revenue on capital outlay was 9·49 against 8·97 during the previous year.

Of the four minor Navigation works, the Buckingham canal alone paid its working expenses, the net revenue of Rs. 15,841 derived from it representing a return of 0·18 per cent. on the capital outlay. It should be noted, however, that although the accounts of this canal are kept separate, the navigation system is intimately connected with the navigable canals of the Kistna and Godavari. The net loss on the other three works was Rs. 6,009 or Rs. 240 more than in the previous year.

9. Of the total revenue of Rs. 1,14,76,896 derived from major works, Rs. 1,10,12,562 was the irrigation revenue, and Rs. 4,64,334 was the irrigation share of land revenue.

Under major works the area irrigated and the revenue derived were 99,480 acres and Rs. 8,41,011, respectively, more than in the previous year. The increase occurred under all the systems except the Sangam anicut system.

In paragraph 4 of its review of the Administration Report for 1896-97, the Government of India expressed the hope that in the report now under review the results attained by the opening of the Periyar project will be more fully described and that they will be carefully compared with those forecasted in 1894. From the endorsement of the Chief Engineer for Irrigation it is understood that complete information required for the purpose is still awaited from the Board of Revenue.

The Board should be requested to expedite its submission. It will be observed from the remarks in the report that the area actually irrigated by the project in the year under review exceeds the area forecasted in 1894.

The area irrigated and revenue derived from minor works were 12,389 acres and Rs. 43,537, respectively, more than in the previous year.

It is observed that no revenue has been credited to the Munnyeru, Pondapad and Sagileru projects for the areas irrigated under them during the year. It is believed that the revenue derived has been erroneously credited to "Minor Works for which neither Capital nor Revenue Accounts are kept." The necessary corrections in the Revenue Accounts should be made in due course.

12. The area irrigated under first crop on major works was 2,338,567 acres and under second crop 321,622 acres, making a total of 2,660,189 acres. These figures are less than those shown in the statement in paragragh 10, as the latter includes the area of "waste charged."

Of the total area 97·15 per cent. was irrigated by flow, and 2·85 per cent. by lift.

15. The report shows that there are now in actual operation 3,696 miles of canals, of which 990 are for irrigation and navigation, 2,402 miles for irrigation only, and 304 miles for navigation only. From the irrigation canals, 6,967 miles of distributary channels are taken off. The total ultimate irrigable area under the canals is 3,289,491 acres, and the area irrigated during the year was 3,150,007 acres, the crops grown being valued at Rs. 9,63,98,432, or Rs. 2,66,45,535 more than in the previous year. The estimated outturn of the year compares with the corresponding figures of the previous year as shown below :—

(a) Inclusive of Rs. 3,60,278, the outlay incurred by Civil officers and not included in the accounts of the Examiner, Public Works Accounts.

The total area irrigated was made up of 2,330,192 acres of first crop and 800,817 acres of second crop, and the irrigation revenue was Rs. 6,82,237 more than in the previous year.

18. The following statement exhibits the outlay on agricultural works, i.e., river conservancy and embankments :—

The receipts realized from the plantations along river embankments amounted to Rs. 42,185 against Rs. 23,223 in the previous year. The increase was due to the unusually large realizations by sales of "lankas" or "grass plots" in the Godavari and the Kistna districts.

19. Six investigating parties were employed on the Tank Restoration scheme, the expenditure on which during and up to the end of the year was as follows :—

Up to the end of the year 36,104 square miles had been completely investigated and estimates for 5,158 works to the amount of Rs. 52,50,203 had been sanctioned.

20. The areas (first and second crops) irrigated by some of the principal canals which do not draw the greater part of their supply from storage works, and the discharge at head for each acre of land irrigated during the year, are given below :—

From the note preceding statistical statement I-E., it is observed that the duty of water for each crop cannot be calculated as the crops actually overlap, and the definition of first crop, as accepted by the Revenue Department, does not relate to the crop raised during any particular period.

21. The investigation started in November 1895, for the preparation of the completion estimates of the Cauvery delta system was continued during the year, and investigations of irrigation projects in the Kistna, Northern, Nellore and Bellary divisions were also carried out.

22. An outlay of Rs. 4,78,883 was incurred during the year in the execution of works undertaken for the purpose of famine relief in the Ganjam, Vizagapatam, Godavari, Bellary, Anantapur, Cuddapah and Kurnool districts.

23. From local Irrigation Cess Fund Rs. 6,467 were spent on minor works and repairs in the Coimbatore, Salem and Trichinopoly divisions.

24. A sum of Rs. 7,335 was also spent on irrigation works in the estates under the Court of Wards.

25. A half plan and two photo-prints of the lift shutters of the Grand anicut, Cauvery delta system, and photo-prints of fall No. 3, 12th branch channel, Periyar project, and of the head sluices to Porumamilla tank supply channel, Sagileru project, with descriptive notes, have been appended to the report. As usual the annual diagrams of the principal rivers connected with the major works have been attached together with, for the first time, the financial diagrams of nine of the major works which form an interesting addition to the report.

26. Ordered that forty copies of the Administration Report and of these Proceedings be forwarded to the Government of India.

Weather Review of India for the Week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, June 10th, 1899.

The most important meteorological event of the week under review has been the setting in of the rains both in Burma and North-East India and along the west coast. In the former region the setting in of the rains has been accomplished quietly, and it is difficult to say exactly when monsoon rainfall commenced. The southerly winds blowing from the Bay into Burma and thence into Assam and North Bengal, noticed in the last review, have continued steadily during the present week, while the rainfall has got heavier and more general, but the change was carried out by a gradual transition, and there was nothing to mark the actual setting in of the monsoon. On the opposite side of India the winds have been unsteady and the weather changeable, but in this area also there has been an extension of rain which during the week penetrated from the coast into North Bombay and the central parts of India, so that the western or Arabian sea branch of the monsoon, though commencing in a somewhat unsteady manner, was yet fairly well established by the close of the week. In Upper India the winds have been light, the weather fine and the temperature very high, while along the east side of the Peninsula the winds have been fresh from north-west and south-west, and the weather hotter than usual. In Deltaic Bengal there have been very strong southerly winds during the week and some thundershowers, but monsoon rainfall has not up to the present extended to that area.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, June 4th.—The barometer was changing only slightly. Pressure was highest over the south-east of the Bay and lowest in the West Punjab, and the barometer read higher than usual over both North-Western and North-Eastern India. The winds were variable over the Punjab and on both coasts of the Peninsula, while they were north-westerly over the central parts of the country and southerly in Burma, at the head of the Bay and in Deltaic Bengal. The weather was slightly cloudy with light showers on the west coast and cloudy to overcast with light to moderate general rain over Burma and Assam. The weather was cool over Sind, North Bombay and North Bengal, but was generally hotter than usual elsewhere.

Monday, June 5th.—The barometric changes were again wholly unimportant, and the general conditions of pressure were unchanged. There was still a considerable excess of pressure around the north of the Bay and over North-West India. South-westerly winds were reported from Colombo and the Malabar Coast. In other places the winds were generally similar to those reported on the 4th. The sky had become more clouded, and the showers had extended over the west of the Peninsula, while overcast weather and general rain continued over Burma and Assam. The weather was cooler than usual over North-West India and Upper Burma, but was hotter than the average elsewhere—particularly so over the central districts of India.

Tuesday, June 6th.—The barometer had fallen over Northern India and risen over the Peninsula. Pressure was lowest over the West Punjab, relatively low over West Bengal and highest in the south of Bay. There was a considerable excess of pressure over the centre of the Bay and a moderate excess over North Bombay. South-westerly winds had extended along the west coast as far north as Goa and very strong southerly winds were reported at the Sandheads, but elsewhere the wind directions were unchanged. The skies were clear and the air very dry over Upper and Central India, but in the west of the Peninsula the weather was overcast and showery, while over Burma, Assam and North Bengal the rainfall had increased. The mean temperature was low for the time of year over the Western desert and parts of Madras, of Burma and of North Bengal, but was excessive in other places, the variation from the normal being as much as $+10^\circ$ at Amraoti.

Wednesday, June 7th.—Pressure had been steady and the distribution was unaltered. The winds had become more irregular and unsteady again on the west coast, but the directions were practically unaltered in other parts of the country. Rain continued to fall over the west of the Peninsula and over Burma and North-East India. The amounts were generally lighter than on the 6th, but there were some heavyish amounts, as, for example, 4·70 inches at Akyab, 4·50 inches at Silchar and 3·42 inches at Mangalore. The mean temperature was low for the time of year in North Bombay, Malabar, Burma, Assam and North Bengal, and remained excessive elsewhere. At Seoni and Nagpur the excess was over 9°.

Thursday, June 8th.—There was again no change to record in the pressure conditions. The winds were very irregular and unsteady along the west coast and much lighter than usual. Some easterly winds were appearing in North Bengal and Bihar. Scattered showers were reported from Western India and light to heavy rain from Burma, Assam and North Bengal. At Silchar 7·54 inches of rain had fallen. The temperature conditions, relatively to the normal, were the same as on the 7th.

Friday, June 9th.—Showers of rain had extended to the central districts of India, and these had been followed by a rapid fall of temperature and a brisk to rapid rise of pressure. At the same time the wind had shifted to the southward along the west coast, but these were the only changes of importance. Light to moderately heavy rain continued to be reported from the same districts as on the preceding day. The temperature remained low over Upper Burma, Assam and North Bengal, but the large excess of temperature over the central parts of India had, under the influence of the showers noticed above, disappeared.

Saturday, June 10th.—The barometer had risen over Northern and fallen slightly over Southern and Central India. Pressure was lower than usual in the Punjab, about normal over the west of the Peninsula and above the normal elsewhere. Abnormal southerly and south-easterly winds continued along the west coast, but in other places the wind blew from about the average directions. Showery weather had extended and some rain was reported from Khandesh, the central districts of India and West Bengal as well as from the regions from which it was previously reported. The mean temperature had now fallen to below the normal over the central parts of India and remained low for the time of year in Burma, Assam and East and North Bengal.

Temperature.—The mean temperature has, from some unexplained reasons, been low for the time of year over North Bombay, but in all other parts of the country the variation of the mean temperature from the normal has agreed closely with the distribution of rainfall. On most days of the week the rainfall was confined to Burma, Assam and North Bengal on the one hand and to the west coast districts on the other, and in these two regions the heat has been less than usual, while all over Northern and Central India, where the weather has been dry, the heat has been excessive. Towards the close of the week, however, showers extended to the central districts, and the excess of heat at the central stations was turned into a slight deficiency.

The following table gives the mean temperature variation data for the week:

The mean temperature of the whole country for the whole week was 1·8° above the normal. The hottest day was the 8th when the mean temperature was 2·4° above the average. On each day of the week the heat was greater than usual for the whole country, but the provincial variations show that the mean temperature was, almost throughout the week, lower than usual in Assam and Sind and about normal in Burma and Gujarat.

The following were the highest maxima reported on each day:

June 4th	. . . . . .	113·3°	at Lucknow.
" 5th	. . . . . .	114·7°	" Jacobabad.
" 6th	. . . . . .	116·6°	" Do.
" 7th	. . . . . .	119·0°	" Do.
" 8th	. . . . . .	120·0°	" Do.

" 10th	. . . . . .	121·0°	" Do.

Rain.—The rainfall of the week under review occurred under much the same general conditions as last week. Southerly winds from the Bay passed into Burma and then curving round into south-east and east passed into Assam and East and North Bengal. The whole of the region affected by this current received general rain which, though somewhat lighter than usual in Burma, was very heavy in parts of Assam. These south-easterly and easterly winds did not extend much beyond the regions quoted above, and West Bengal, the Gangetic Plain and the greater part of North-West India were under the influence of dry westerly winds, so that, beyond a few light showers in West Bengal, the North-West Provinces and the submontane and hill districts of the Punjab, the weather was fine over the whole of the Gangetic Plain and a large part of North-West India. Along the west coast there has occurred a marked extension in the amount and area of rainfall. On Sunday, the 4th, the only fall was in the extreme south-west, the heaviest fall being 2·31 inches at Cochin, but by the 5th rain had extended northward to Goa and by the close of the week had spread all along the west coast as well as inland over the Deccan, Central India, Berar, the Central Provinces, Khandesh and Gujarat. But though these returns show that the monsoon set in during the week under review, the change was carried out very quietly and gradually, and the rainfall was at no time very heavy, nor was the setting in of the rains accompanied with the burst of unsettled, stormy, weather which ordinarily accompanies this change along the west coast of India and in Ceylon. The rainfall returns show that daily rain occurred throughout the week in Burma and Assam; that in East and North Bengal rain set in steadily and heavily on the 7th, and that in other parts of Bengal there were scattered showers throughout the week; that in Chota Nagpur and Bihar there were showers on the 9th and 10th; that in Malabar rain fell during the whole week and in other parts of the west of the Peninsula rain commenced on the 6th or 7th, and that in the central districts of India rain fell on the 8th, 9th and 10th. Elsewhere the rainfall was unimportant. The table at the close of the summary shows that effective rain was received in thirty-five of the rainfall divisions which included all the Burma divisions, all the Assam divisions, all the Bengal divisions (except South Bihar), the submontane division of the Punjab, all the West Peninsula divisions, all the central divisions (except the central division of the Central Provinces, the west division of Central India and both the Rajputana divisions) and all the East Peninsula divisions (except the central division of the east coast and South Madras). The average actual rainfall in these 35 divisions ranged from 16·64 inches in the hill division of Assam, 15·03 inches in the Surma division of Assam, 9·77 inches in the North of Bengal and 7·82 inches in Tenasserim, to 0·10 inch in the submontane division of the Punjab. The third column of the table shows that the rainfall during the week has been lighter than usual over the greater part of the country, but particularly so over Malabar, where the setting in of the rains has been so quiet. There have, however, been some exceptions to this general lightness, thus in Upper Burma there has been an excess of 0·58 inch, in the Surma division of Assam of 9·80 inches, in the hill division of Assam of 10·41 inches, in the Brahmaputra division of 2·75 inches, in North Bengal of 5·13 inches, in South-Central Madras of 0·29 inch, in Berar of 0·10 inch, in Kathiawar of 0·39 inch and in Central Madras of 0·15 inch. The deficiency has been greatest in Arakan, Malabar, Coorg and the Konkan, where it ranges between 3½ inches and 6 inches.

As the present is the first week of a fresh rainfall period, the information given in the three concluding columns of the rainfall table is the same as that given in the first three.

The following were the principal large totals recorded at individual stations during the week:

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 10th June.—The rainfall was good on the West Coast and on the Nilgiris; elsewhere there were seasonable scattered showers. The water-supply is generally adequate for the season. Ploughing is general and some sowings are being made. Crops are still standing on a limited area, and are generally in good condition. Pasture is scanty, but fodder is sufficient. Cattle are in normal condition. Prices are generally slightly easier, except in parts of the Circars and the Deccan.

Bombay.—For week ending 15th June.—Moderate or light rain fell in all districts of the Presidency Proper during the week. The spring crops in one taluqa of Thar and Parkar have been slightly damaged by cyclonic winds. Ploughing and sowing operations are generally progressing. Fodder is sufficient, except in parts of Sind and Baroda territory. Agricultural stock is healthy. Prices have risen in ten and fallen in two districts; elsewhere they are stationary.

Bengal.—For week ending 12th June.—There was rain in every district of Bengal Proper during the week, but, except in the Eastern and Northern districts, it was generally light. In Bihar, Orissa, and Chota Nagpur only scattered showers are reported. Early rice and jute are nearly all sown and weeding is now going on. Lands are being prepared for the sowing of the autumn and winter rice crops, but rain is required in several parts. Sugarcane promises well. There was a flight of locusts in the Sonthal Parganas, but little or no damage is reported. The locusts in Dacca reported last week are destroying the young paddy plants in the Sadr and Munshiganj sub-divisions. Except for a slight rise in some districts, the price of common rice was generally stationary. No want of fodder is reported.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 14th June.—Cloudy and unsettled weather prevailed during the week and rain fell in many districts. Harvesting of extra crops is nearly over. Irrigation is being resorted to where necessary. Sugarcane is thriving and is being weeded. A flight of locusts passed over the Allahabad, Hamirpur, and Partabgarh districts, but no damage is reported. Markets are adequately stocked. Fodder is sufficient. Prices show a rise in some districts, but are otherwise either stationary or fluctuating.

Punjab.—For week ending 15th June.—Rain has fallen in parts of the Umballa, Lahore, Amritsar, and Rawalpindi districts. Harvesting of spring crops is nearly finished. Sugarcane and cotton crops are being weeded. The standing crops are being watered, and ploughings and sowings of other autumn crops are in progress. Rain is badly wanted throughout the Province. The outturn of the spring crops is reported average or below average and that of extra spring crops is also expected to be generally average. The standing crops are fair on irrigated areas. Sugarcane has been slightly damaged by white-ants in Sialkot owing to drought. Cattle are reported to be in poor condition in Delhi and parts of the Hissar and Dera Ismail Khan districts. Fodder is scarce in Hissar, Delhi, Shahpur, parts of Peshawar, and in Dera Ismail Khan, and is sufficient elsewhere. Prices—especially of wheat—are rising in Umballa and Peshawar; falling in Mooltan, Amritsar, Rawalpindi, and Dera Ismail Khan; and are unchanged elsewhere. Wheat is selling from 16½ to 22¼, barley 32, gram 20 to 23, maize 28 to 32, great millet 24, bulrush-millet 18 to 23½, and rice 13½ to 14½ seers per rupee.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 13th June.—The weather was very hot at the beginning of the week, but cloudy and unsettled at its close with heavy falls of rain in Chanda and Bilaspur; elsewhere the fall was moderate to light. In Saugor, Damoh, and Hoshangabad 4,277, 2,300 and 1,005 persons, respectively, are in receipt of village relief; and in the last district 228 persons are in receipt of gratuitous relief. The preparation of land for autumn sowings has been completed in Wardha; almost completed in Betul, Nagpur, and Chanda; and is in progress elsewhere. Sowing operations have begun in the Dhamtari tahsil of Raipur; and sowing of rice is in progress in parts of Mandla, Bhandara, Bilaspur, and Sambalpur. The excessive heat at the beginning of the week has slightly damaged the recent rice sowings in Sambalpur. Locusts appeared in parts of Saugor, but caused no damage. Insufficiency of water and fodder is reported from some districts. Prices show a tendency to rise. The price of wheat, gram, rice, and juar has risen in some districts, and has fallen in others. The cheapest prices are—wheat 20, gram 37, rice 21, and juar 29 seers per rupee; the dearest prices are—wheat 13$\frac{3}{4}$, gram 18, rice 10, and juar 18$\frac{7}{8}$ seers per rupee.

Burma.—For week ending 10th June.—In Lower Burma ploughing progresses everywhere and sowing has commenced in Pegu, Thongwa, Thaton, and Amherst. In Upper Burma reaping of dry weather paddy has been completed, except in Katha and in parts of Pakôkku. The crop has been damaged by rains or floods in Minbu, the Bhamo sub-division of Bhamo, the Mahlaing township of the Ruby Mines district, and the Legayaing sub-division of Upper Chindwin. Ploughing for and sowing of the early upland crops, early sesamum, and cotton are in progress. Sowing of cotton is completed in the Kyoukpadoung township of Myingyan. Sowing of paddy on hill sides continues in Bhamo, Myitkyina, and the Ruby Mines district, and is finished in the Northern Shan States. Ploughing for early wet weather paddy continues on low lands and sowing has begun in parts. The standing crops are generally promising, except in the Pagan township of Myingyan, where more rain is wanted. Price of paddy has fallen in Rangoon, Akyab, Pegu, Thongwa, Bassein, and Thayetmyo and largely in Tharrawaddy and Amherst. The price has risen in Myingyan; elsewhere it is stationary.

Assam.—For week ending 13th June.—The weather is rainy and unfavourable for tea. Ploughing for late rice; sowing of early rice; planting of sugarcane; and plucking and manufacture of tea are in progress. Sowing of late rice seedlings continues in Cachar, Darrang, and Lakhimpur. Tea blight is disappearing in Darrang, but is prevalent in Cachar and in parts of Kamrup. Late rice and sugarcane are somewhat damaged by floods in Sylhet. Early rice has been damaged by insects and rain in parts of Nowgong and late rice seedlings by insects in parts of Darrang. Prices—common rice—Silchar and Dhubri 16, Sylhet 19, Gauhati 17, Tezpur, Sibsagar, and Dibrugarh 12, and Nowgong 15 seers per rupee.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 13th June.—MYSORE: Rainfall—40 cents in the Civil and Military station and rain general and good in parts of Hassan and Chitaldrug. Prospects are good. Prices have slightly risen in Kolar, Kadur, and Shimoga. Ragi (Elcusine coracana) has been sown in Tumkur and Mysore.

COORG:—Rainfall—4 inches 62 cents. Ploughing for rice continues. Prices of food-grains are stationary. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 14th June.—BERAR: The weather continues warm and cloudy. Preparation of land for the ensuing rain crop is in progress. Fodder is insufficient in the Wun district. A scarcity of water still prevails. Prices are almost stationary.

HYDERABAD: Rainfall during the week—one inch 6 cents. Preparations for autumn sowings are in progress. The winter rice harvest is over. Prices of grain continue steady. Prices—wheat 10, coarse rice 10$\frac{1}{2}$, and jowari 25 seers per current sicca rupee.

Central India.—For week ending 14th June.—Rain fell in Indore, Bundelkhand, Bhopawar, and parts of the Bhopal and Malwa Agencies during the week. Agricultural operations have been completed in Gwalior and Bundelkhand and are in progress elsewhere. Agricultural stock and pasturage are in good condition. Prices are above normal in Bundelkhand and normal in other parts of Central India.

Rajputana.—For week ending 14th June.—Rainfall—44 cents in Kotah. Agricultural operations are proceeding satisfactorily. Agricultural stock is in fair to good condition, but is getting lean and emaciated in Kherwara. Fodder is scarce throughout the greater part of Rajputana. Prices are rising in Deoli; slightly in Beawar and are steady elsewhere. Fourteen persons emigrated from Ajmere during the week. The total emigration from Merwara to date numbers—4,431. The numbers employed on relief works were—Ajmere 563, Merwara 7,682, and Marwar 974. There are 392 on ordinary works and 246 on gratuitous relief in Ajmere-Merwara. Prices—Ajmere and Beawar not reported; Marwar 15 seers per rupee. Final returns show number on relief works in Merwara last week as 6,235 and not 9,242.

Nepal.—For week ending 10th June.—Rainfall—1·59 inches. The weather is stormy and showery. Wheat has been harvested and the outturn is good. Rice—9½ seers per rupee.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Bangalore, the 7th June, 1899.

No. 2491.—In exercise of the powers conferred by sections 27 and 34 of the Court-fees Act, 1870 (VII of 1870), as applied to the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore by the Notification of the Government of India in the Foreign Department, No. 2252-I., dated the 7th August, 1883, and with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, the Resident in Mysore is pleased to make, with effect from the first day of July, 1899, the following rules, in supersession of all previous rules, to regulate the supply and sale of stamps, and the appointment, duties and remuneration of persons by whom stamps shall be sold, in the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore:—

1. Court-fee stamps shall continue to be supplied of the same pattern as may from time to time be in use in the territories of Mysore and shall consist of adhesive stamps or labels, and impressed stamps or stamp papers.

2. Stamp vendors shall be either ex-officio vendors or licensed vendors. The former shall be Government officers appointed by the Resident. The latter shall be persons licensed by the Collector or other officer empowered by the Resident to grant licenses.

3. Licenses shall be issued in the form annexed to these rules, and shall specify the name of the licensee, the description of stamps which may be sold under the license, the place of vend and such other matters as may be necessary, and shall be signed by the authority granting the license.

4. A licensed vendor shall sell only such stamps as are indicated in his license.

5. Any license granted under these rules may be cancelled or suspended at any time by the Resident or by the authority who granted it.

6. Subject to rule 7, every licensed vendor who purchases stamps from the Government by payment of ready money, shall receive such discount, not exceeding 2 per cent., as may from time to time be prescribed by the Resident.

7. No discount shall be given if the number or value of stamps purchased at one time is less than the minimum number or value which the Resident may from time to time prescribe in this respect: Provided that no discount shall be given on account of the purchase of any stamp exceeding R50 in value.

8. Every licensed vendor shall at all times exhibit outside the place of vend a conspicuous board bearing his name, with the words "Licensed Vendor of Court-fee Stamps," in English and in Canarese. He shall also keep in the place of vend a copy of the Court-fees Act, 1870 (VII of 1870), as applied to the Civil and Military Station, and a copy of these rules, together with translations thereof in Canarese, in such a manner that they can readily be seen and read by purchasers.

9. Every stamp vendor shall write on the back of every stamp paper which he sells, a serial number, the date of sale, the name and residence of the purchaser, the value of the stamp in full in words and his own ordinary signature. The serial number shall begin with the first stamp paper sold in the official year and end with the last.

10. In the blank space left on adhesive stamps, the stamp vendor shall insert the name of the purchaser, the date of sale and his own ordinary signature.

11. An endorsement made under rule 9 or 10 may not be altered. If an incorrect endorsement has been inadvertently made, the stamp paper or the adhesive stamp, as the case may be, may be treated as spoiled.

12. Every stamp vendor shall keep a register of sales in Form A annexed to these rules, together with such accounts and registers as may be prescribed by the Resident, and shall produce them for inspection on the demand of any Government officer not below the grade of Amildar.

13. An entry shall be made in the register of sales as each sale is effected. If the vendor takes a stamp from the stock for his own private use, it must be treated as a sale.

The traffic during the year improved considerably owing to the movement of troops in connection with the expeditions on the North-West Frontier and to the revival of traffic after the famine. The charge for interest and annuities was smaller owing to the rate of exchange that obtained during the year being more favourable. In return for the charge of Rx. 1,432,616 the State receives all the indirect benefits arising from a railway system of 18,170½ miles open to traffic.

4. The net receipts accruing to Government from all State lines, after deducting the payments made to working Companies in respect of surplus profits or share of net earnings, amounted to Rx. 9,843,323 (paragraph 12 of Accountant General's note), which gives a return of 5·67 per cent. on the total capital outlay actually incurred by the State as entered in rupees in the Government Accounts. This capital outlay does not, however, include that portion of the purchase price of the East Indian, the Sind, Punjab and Delhi and the Eastern Bengal Railways, which is being redeemed by the payment, from current revenues, of terminable annuities. If, however, in the case of the Guaranteed railways that have been purchased by Government the amounts of capital expended by the several companies prior to their purchase by the State plus the capital outlay since incurred by the State be taken in lieu of the figures now appearing in the Government Accounts, which, as explained above, do not include certain transactions, the return given by the net receipts (Rx. 9,843,323) is 4·83 per cent., as shown in paragraph 16 of the Accountant General's note. These percentages indicate a satisfactory return on the capital expended, and the fact that there was a net charge to the State of Rx. 15,691 in respect of the State railways, as shown in paragraph 3 above, is due partly to the loss by exchange on the payments in England of the annuities and interest on the sterling portion of the capital, and partly to the fact that the annuities that are charged against the net revenues cover the enhanced value at which the capital of the several companies was taken over by Government and include also sinking fund charges for the redemption of the capital.

5. In paragraph 17 of the note the Accountant General gives yet another way in which the return from State railways may be stated. Remittances have to be made yearly from India to pay the interest in England on a sterling capital of £98,486,517. The equivalent of this sum in rupees, at the rate of exchange applicable for the year, added to the sum of Rx. 104,277,346, representing the rupee capital on which interest is paid in India, gives the total capital as Rx. 258,223,567, and the net receipts of Rx. 10,152,033 give a return of 3·93 per cent. thereon.

In the case of the East Indian Railway the net return on the capital stated in this way is 6·93 per cent., and this is practically what the East Indian Railway deferred annuity holder, as partner with Government, receives.

6. The working of the three Guaranteed railways during the year is reviewed in paragraphs 57 to 60 of the note. Including charges for land and supervision, the result has been a loss to the State of Rx. 1,301,905. Each of these railways was worked at a loss during the year under review, the loss entailed on individual lines being as under :—

	Rx.
Great Indian Peninsula Railway	870,425
Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway . . .	173,158
Madras Railway	258,322
TOTAL .	1,301,905

On the other hand, however, although the result of working the Guaranteed railways has been a net loss to the State of Rx. 1,301,905, the Companies received during the year from Government a total sum of Rx. 109,280 as their share of surplus profits, which are, under the terms of the contracts, declared half-yearly, the sterling interest being converted for the purpose of this division at the fixed contract rate of 1*s.* 10*d.* against 1*s.* 3·35391005*d.*, the rate adopted in the Government Accounts of the year under review. The unfavourable effects of this provision in the contracts with regard to each line are brought out in paragraph 58 of the Accountant General's note.

8. From the foregoing statement it will be seen that after meeting all charges for annuities and interest (including interest on capital expended on lines not opened for traffic), charges for land for Companies' lines and miscellaneous expenditure on surveys, etc., the result of the year is a net charge to the State of Rx. 1,432,616. The traffic during the year improved considerably owing to the movements of troops in connection with the expeditions on the North-West Frontier and to the revival of traffic after the famine; the rate of exchange which obtained for the year was also somewhat more favourable, with the result that the net charge is lower than in the previous year by Rx. 1,227,365 when it amounted to Rx. 2,659,981. The loss in this as in previous years may, however, be directly attributed to the low exchange prevailing. The interest and annuities paid in England amounted to £5,841,911, which, at the exchange of 15·35391005*d.* the rupee, aggregated Rx. 9,131,606, the difference between this and the old par of exchange being no less than Rx. 3,289,695.

9. In Schedule J will be found the charges upon the general tax-payer in respect of the construction of railways in India from 1858-59.

* These annuities are terminable between the years 1953 and 1958.

12. The gross receipts of the year amounted to Rx. 19,044,525, the working expenses to Rx. 8,713,403; the share of net earnings, surplus profits, and contributions to Provident Funds paid to Companies to Rx. 487,799, raising the total charges to Rx. 9,201,202 and leaving Rx. 9,843,323 as the net receipts accruing to Government from all the State lines during 1897-98. This result is better than that of 1896-97 by Rx. 1,023,272.

13. The Capital expenditure incurred by, or on the direct responsibility of, the State, including the Capital charge involved by incurring a specific amount of debt in purchase or redemption of liabilities in connection with lines formerly belonging to Guaranteed Companies and acquired by the State, is as under:—

	Rx.	£
(i) On State lines (vide Schedule G)—
(a) Direct Capital outlay	97,061,400	...
(b) Expenditure incurred from debentures raised by the East Indian Railway Company	2,688,083	...
(c) Redemption of liabilities	...	33,553,451
(ii) On State lines leased to Companies (Capital raised wholly or in part by Companies under guarantee), vide para. 127 .	40,399,530*	...
TOTAL .	140,149,013	33,553,451

14. This sum, however, includes expenditure on lines not opened for traffic at the close of the year under review; on materials held in reserve on the North-West Frontier and with Store-keepers at ports; on projects abandoned or in abeyance as well as inefficient expenditure incurred in connection with lines transferred to Companies, the total amount involved being Rx. 12,341,069 (vide Schedule H). Excluding such expenditure, the open line Capital outlay at the close of 1897-98 may be stated at Rx. 161,361,395.

15. The net receipts accruing to Government for the year, Rx. 9,843,323, give a return on the total Capital outlay at the close of the year as thus stated at the rate of 5·67 per cent., and on the open line Capital outlay at the rate of 6·10 per cent.

16. The above results, although representing correctly the return on the Capital outlay actually incurred by the State, cannot be taken as giving the true returns from the State Railways on the actual money expended upon the various undertakings. Those of the old Guaranteed Railways, which have been purchased by the State, were for the most part acquired by the payment of annuities, including the establishment of sinking funds which will redeem the capital at the expiry of the periods for which the annuities are to run. These charges are met from current revenues, and in respect of the capital thus to be redeemed, no charge appears in the Government account of Capital outlay. On the other hand, in the case of the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway, which was purchased outright, the outlay, as shown in the Government books, includes the premium paid on the Company's share Capital. The actual outlay incurred on the State Railways—taking, in the case of the Guaranteed Railways purchased by Government, the amounts expended by the several Companies plus the expenditure since incurred on construction—may † be stated at Rx. 203,622,041,‡ and on open lines at Rx. 191,280,975, vide

* Excludes the outlay on the Bengal and North-Western Railway not guaranteed by the State.

† Sterling figures in the old Companies' accounts were converted at fixed contract rates. The difference between contract and actual average rates cannot be stated.

Schedule A, on which amounts the net receipts for 1897-98 give a return at the rate of 4·83 and 5·14 per cent., respectively.

17. Dealing with the matter in yet another way, the return from State Railways including the lines taken over from Companies might be stated as follows. The capital involved in the purchase of the East Indian Railway, the Eastern Bengal Railway, the Sind, Punjab and Delhi Railway, the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway, and the South Indian Railway is stated partly in sterling and partly in rupees.

From the rupee earnings on these Railways, on other State Railways whose entire capital is stated in rupees, and on the State lines leased to Companies, remittances have to be made yearly to pay the sterling interest upon a sum of £98,486,517, which is the amount of the sterling capital; while rupee interest is paid in India upon Rx. 104,277,346, which is the amount of the rupee capital involved.

The effect as regards dividend to a shareholder is the same as if the sterling sum of £98,486,517 were converted into rupee capital at the rate of exchange for the year and the resulting rupees added to the rupee capital of Rx. 104,277,346 to form the total upon which the shareholder's return is based. Stated in this way the Capital outlay on these lines is equivalent to Rx. 258,223,567, and the net receipts of Rx. 10,152,033 give a return of 3·93 per cent. thereon.

18. The net receipts from the following Railways exceeded the interest charges for the year:—

Railways.	Net Receipts (less surplus profits and net earnings paid to Companies).	Interest and annuities, etc.	Surplus to State.
Imperial.	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.
East Indian	3,931,277	2,641,776	1,289,501

19. The net receipts of the North Western Railway fell short of the interest and annuity charges by Rx. 609,562, and were sufficient to give a return of only 3·57 per cent. on the actual Capital outlay. This is due to the unfavourable results on the Frontier section and to the heavy charge for exchange on the sterling payments of interest and annuities.

20. The financial results to the State of the working of the Companies' lines, classed as State Railways, are shown more fully in Schedule I. See paragraph 9.

Comparison with Actuals during 1896-97 and Budget and Revised Estimates.

21. The actual gross receipts and working expenses of State Railways for the year 1897-98 compare with the actuals of 1896-97, and with the Budget and Revised Estimates as under:—

Receipts.

22. With Actuals of 1896-97.—The receipts are more than the actuals of the previous year by Rx. 1,404,921, the improvement being due to an increase in traffic chiefly on the East Indian and North Western Railways to the extent of Rx. 433,565 and Rx. 594,914, respectively. The following lines also shew increases : —Burma Railways (Rx. 65,014), Assam-Bengal (Rx. 40,106), Bengal and North-Western and Tirhoot (Rx. 60,033), Oudh and Rohilkhand (Rx. 63,485), Indian Midland (Rx. 82,888), and East Coast (Rx. 40,236). There were decreases on the Rajputana-Malwa and Southern Mahratta Railways which went to reduce the total increase in the traffic.

The increase of Rx. 433,565 on the East Indian Railway occurred partly under coaching and partly under goods traffic. Under the former the increases were principally in the pilgrim and Government traffic. The pilgrim traffic developed chiefly during the months, October to December 1897, which were considered auspicious for religious ceremonies, and there were large gatherings of pilgrims at Buxar, Allahabad, Thaneswar and the several riverside stations during January 1898 in connection with the solar eclipse and the Magh mela. The largest increase, however, occurred in the receipts from Government traffic, due to large despatches of Ordnance and Commissariat stores, and to the running of troop extra and mule trains in connection with the mobilization of troops for the expeditions on the North-West Frontier. The rise in the goods traffic was contributed largely by the traffic in rice, wheat, coal, railway materials carried for foreign lines, and piece-goods. The increase in the rice traffic is explained as due to the upward movements of Burma rice for the famine-stricken districts; the increase in wheat traffic to an improvement in the traffic for local consumption; the increase in the coal traffic to a great demand for export to the coast ports and for use in mills and factories; the increase in the receipts for carriage of railway materials, to the carriage of plant, sleepers and rolling-stock for the Bengal and North-Western, Oudh and Rohilkhand and Eastern Bengal Railways; and that in cotton piece-goods to a large traffic in this commodity to the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and to the Punjab.

The increase on the Burma Railways is attributed to the continued prosperity of Lower Burma—the result of good crops, to the high price of paddy and consequent good trade and to the general development of traffic.

The increase on the Assam-Bengal Railway was due to the development of traffic.

The increase on the Eastern Bengal State Railway occurred entirely under goods traffic, the receipts from which were Rx. 61,148 more than in the previous year, and was due to a good jute crop in the last quarter of the year, and to the carriage of construction stores for the Hajipur Extension of the Tirhoot State Railway and for the Branch lines connected with the Eastern Bengal State Railway. There was, however, a falling off in receipts from coaching traffic to the extent of Rx. 30,752, which was due in a great measure to the stoppage of traffic owing to damages caused to the line by the earthquake of 1897 and by the famine of the previous year.

The increase on the Bengal Central Railway is attributed to the development of traffic under all heads of account.

The increase on the Bengal and North-Western and Tirhoot Railways is attributed to the earnings of the previous year having been affected by the famine, to additional mileage having been opened during the year, and to the development of traffic viâ Burhwal.

The increase on the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway occurred chiefly under Sundries, and was due almost entirely to enhanced receipts for hire of stock lent to the East Indian and Eastern Bengal Railways. Some portion of the increase was also due to the military operations on the North-West Frontier.

The increase on the Indian Midland Railway was due chiefly to the movement of troops in connection with the frontier expeditions; to the traffic in wheat having proved favourable; to an increase in the traffic in rape-seed for export owing to the failure of the crop in Europe; to a large traffic in sugar and jaggaree, and to an increase in the receipts on account of mileage and demurrage of stock and the adjustment of arrears of shunting charges at joint stations.

The increase on the Lucknow-Bareilly Railway occurred chiefly under goods traffic and was due to a large export traffic in cereals, in oil-seeds and in jaggaree, the result of the favourable rains of 1897 and a good winter harvest. Coaching traffic also improved as the agricultural population made more use of the railway than in 1896.

The increase of Rx. 594,914 on the North Western Railway was due mainly to the Frontier expedition, and to the revival of the wheat trade after the famine. The increases under coaching and goods were Rx. 226,191 and Rx. 434,064 respectively.

The increase on the Guntakul-Mysore Frontier Railway occurred chiefly under goods traffic, and was due to the large exports of food-grains from the Mysore State passing over this line.

The increase on the Mysore State Railway occurred chiefly under goods traffic and was due to large exports of food-grains to the Poona and Bijapur branches and to foreign railways viâ Guntakal and Poona. There was, however, a falling off in the earnings from passenger traffic owing partly to the failure of the Mallur Bridge and the temporary stoppage of communication in consequence, and partly to the plague restrictions.

The increase on the East Coast Railway is attributed to additional mileage having been opened during the year; to the carriage of materials for the Bengal-Nagpur and Bezwada-Madras Railways, and to increased traffic in Manganese ore from the mines at Garividi exported viâ Vizagapatam.

The decrease on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway System occurred chiefly under coaching traffic due partly to the stringent measures introduced to restrict the movement of passengers from areas affected by plague, and partly to the period, April to September 1897, having been considered unpropitious for marriages. The goods earnings shewed an increase owing to an improvement in cotton, sugar, and other traffic.

The decrease on the Southern Mahratta Railway occurred chiefly under coaching traffic, and was due to the measures adopted by Government to prevent the spread of the bubonic plague. The goods traffic shewed an increase, the result of a larger movement of food-grains owing to famine and of better traffic in salt, chillies, and other articles of merchandise.

The decrease on the Dhond and Manmad State Railway occurred chiefly under coaching traffic, and is attributed to the prevalence of the plague in the Bombay Presidency which restricted the movement of passengers.

23. With Budget Estimate.—The actuals were more than the Budget Estimate by Rx. 1,020,825, the principal increases being on the East Indian and North Western Railways to the extent of Rx. 584,181 and Rx. 482,821, respectively. The more important variations from the Budget Estimate on individual lines are as under:—

The increase of Rx. 584,181 on the East Indian Railway is attributed to the Budget Estimate having been placed at a moderate figure owing to uncertainty as to the prospects of the year in consequence of the plague and the scarcity that prevailed at the time. The famine, however, contributed to an increase of the goods traffic by the movement of imported food-grains to the famine-stricken districts.

The increase on the Burma Railways is attributed to the receipts having been under-estimated in the Budget Estimate as it was anticipated that the receipts were not likely to exceed those of the previous year which was a bumper one. A second year, however, of even greater general prosperity ensued with the result that the railway earnings for the year are the highest on record.

The increase on the Eastern Bengal State Railway was due to the traffic in jute having been very favourable, and to an increase in the receipts from sundry traffic, the causes for which are explained in paragraph 22 above.

The increase on the Bengal Central Railway was due to the causes mentioned in paragraph 22 above.

The increase on the Bengal and North-Western and Tirhoot Railways was due chiefly to an improvement in the receipts from steamboat traffic. There was a decrease in the goods traffic owing to the estimate having been fixed at too high a figure.

The increase on the Indian Midland Railway is attributed chiefly to the exceptional troop traffic which passed over the line to and from the North-West Frontier, and to large imports of grain into the tract of country affected by famine and scarcity not having been anticipated at the time the Budget Estimate was prepared.

The increase on the Lucknow-Bareilly Railway was due to the development of passenger traffic, to larger exports of grain seeds and jaggaree, the winter harvest having been very good in consequence of the favourable rains of 1897.

The large increase of Rx. 482,821 on the North Western Railway is attributed to the causes mentioned in paragraph 22 above.

The increases on the Mysore State and East Coast Railways were due to the causes mentioned in paragraph 22 above.

The decrease of Rx. 275,530 on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway is made up of decreases under coaching traffic, Rx. 69,586, and goods traffic, Rx. 213,887. When the Budget Estimate was under preparation, it was anticipated that the line would do as well if not better than in the previous year, but owing to famine and plague these expectations were not realised.

The decrease on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway is attributed to there not having been much grain in stock for export during the year, owing to the failure of the rains of 1896, the new crops not having been available for despatch. The plague also interfered with the development of traffic.

The decrease on the Assam-Bengal Railway was due to traffic on certain portions of the line having had to be suspended owing to damages caused by the earthquake of June 1897. The railway also suffered very considerably as regards its earning power from the effects of the very severe cyclone which visited the Chittagong end of the line at the close of October 1897. Owing to the earthquake and the cyclone, the southern section of the line from Akhaura to Bardapur had to be temporarily closed; the Gauhati section was closed for the remainder of the year, and the Chittagong section was only re-opened throughout for all kinds of traffic from 1st December 1897.

The decrease on the South Indian Railway occurred in both coaching and goods traffic, and is attributed to the prevalence of plague in the Bombay Presidency; to a marked falling off in the pilgrim traffic; to the failure of the paddy crops in the Tanjore District, and of oil-seeds in the Northern Districts having affected local traffic considerably, and to the opening of the Periyar Project having decreased the demand for grain in the Madura District.

The decrease on the Dhond and Manmad State Railway is due to the continuance of plague throughout the year.

The decrease on the Southern Mahratta Railway was due to the causes mentioned in paragraph 22 above.

24. With Revised Estimate.—The actual receipts approximate very closely to the Revised Estimate, the result being an increase of only Rx. 49,525. The more important variations on individual lines are explained below:—

The increase on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway was due to an improvement in coaching and goods traffic during the last quarter of the year.

The increase on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway occurred chiefly under goods traffic, and was due to an improvement in that traffic during the closing months of the year.

The increase on the Burma Railways occurred chiefly under goods, and was due to the paddy traffic during the last four months of the year having been very favourable.

The increase on the Eastern Bengal State Railway was due to the passenger traffic having improved towards the close of the year and to a heavy jute traffic during the last quarter of the year.

The increase on the Bengal and North-Western and Tirhoot Railways occurred chiefly under goods traffic, and is attributed to the development of traffic.

The decrease in receipts on the East Indian Railway is attributed to earnings remaining unrealised at the close of the year.

The decrease on the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway is attributed to the additional precautions which were found necessary in connection with the plague having led to the stoppage for a time of bookings of passengers to Hardwar and adjacent stations; to the agricultural produce, although the harvests were good, not having come on to the line until quite at the close of the year.

The decrease on the North Western Railway is attributed to large outstandings against the Commissariat Department on account of the Frontier expedition.

Working Expenses.

25. With Actuals of 1896-97.—The increase of Rx. 381,649 in working expenses as compared with the actuals of the previous year was due generally to the larger traffic worked. The increase in working expenses is equivalent to about 27 per cent. of the increased earnings—

The large increase of Rx. 104,183 on the East Indian Railway is attributed chiefly to a larger payment on account of the Company's share of surplus profits due to the improvement in earnings. There were, however, increases under locomotive expenses due to the extra train mileage worked; under traffic expenses due partly to the increased cost of handling goods and of train staff due to the rise in traffic, and partly to the expenditure on the extended system of lighting carriages with Pintsch's gas; and under special and miscellaneous expenditure due principally to large payments to Foreign Railways on account of hire of vehicles, mileage and demurrage of stock and running powers to meet the demands of the abnormal traffic. There were decreases under maintenance due to the work of ballasting and relaying having been retarded by the extra train service, and to the re-ballasting of the Jubbulpore line having been completed in the previous year, and under carriage and wagon expenses due chiefly to credits for wagons transferred to the Moghal Sarai-Gya Extension and the South Behar Railway.

The increase on the Burma Railways was due to heavy repairs to damages caused by floods and to the station buildings at Katha which were burned down having had to be rebuilt; to heavy repairs to locomotive engines and to larger running expenses owing to the increased mileage worked; to increases in the station and train staff owing to the opening of new stations and the extra train mileage worked; to adjustments in connection with the police force employed on the Railway from 1st September 1896 having been carried out in the year under review, and to the payment to the Company for the first time of their share of surplus profits.

The increase on the Assam-Bengal Railway was due to the larger traffic worked.

The increase on the Eastern Bengal State Railway was due to repairs to damages caused by the earthquake; to the replacement of 6 broad-gauge locomotive engines; to the construction of 5 third class carriages and 16 low-sided wagons; to the heavier traffic worked, and to the hire of locomotives from the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway, and to mileage and demurrage of foreign vehicles owing to the increase in traffic.

The increase on the Bengal and North-Western and Tirhoot Railways was due to the additional train mileage run and the opening of new extensions; to an increase under steam-boat service owing to heavy repairs, and to a larger payment to the Bengal and North-Western Railway Company on account of their share of net earnings.

The increase on the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway is attributed to the cost of working the Cawnpore-Burhwal metre-gauge connection, a section only of which was opened in the second-half of the previous year, and to the payment during the year under review of heavy liabilities incurred in the previous year.

The increase on the Indian Midland Railway was due to the renewals of rails on the Scindia section and to the payment of grain compensation allowance to gangmen; to the running expenses having been heavier owing to the increased train mileage worked; to heavier repairs to locomotives, and to an increase in traffic expenses consequent on the grant of grain compensation allowance to the menial staff.

The increase of Rx. 119,589 on the North Western Railway was due chiefly to the additional train mileage run.

The increase on the Mysore State Railway was due to the increased traffic and to a larger payment to the Southern Mahratta Railway on account of the Company's share of net earnings.

The increase on the East Coast Railway was due to the cost of administration, which was in the previous year apportioned between Capital and Revenue, having been charged wholly to Revenue in the year under review and to heavy repairs to engines and vehicles and the employment of additional establishment consequent on the extra traffic and mileage worked.

The decrease on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway was due chiefly to a smaller payment on account of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company's share of surplus profits owing to the result of the year's working having proved less favourable than that of the previous year. There were also decreases under locomotive expenses due to less consumption of fuel and carriage of less coal, and increases under maintenance of way, works and stations due to heavy outlay on relaying, under carriage and wagon expenses due to heavy expenditure on repairs and renewals of vehicles, and under traffic expenses due to the retention of the full strength of staff owing to the uncertain state of traffic and to a rise in the price of castor oil.

The decrease on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway was due to special expenditure in connection with relaying permanent-way on the Katni-Umaria section and with the payment of arrears to the Great Indian Peninsula Railway having been incurred during the previous year.

The decrease on the South Indian Railway was due to 7½ miles of line only having been renewed during 1897-98 against 11¾ miles during the previous year and to the cheaper rate at which coal was obtained.

The decrease on the Southern Mahratta Railway was due generally to the lines worked by the Company having to bear increased charges proportionate to the increase in their earnings. There was an increase under "Special and Miscellaneous" expenditure owing to the inclusion for the first time of 50 per cent. of the deposits in the Provident Fund during the half-year ended 31st December 1897 as a bonus to the fund as part of the working expenses. The special outlay incurred in the suppression and prevention of the plague at Hubli and other stations on the line, which was debited to the working expenses of the line, also accounts partly for the increase in expenditure under this head.

26. With Budget Estimate.—The actual working expenses exceeded the Budget Estimate by Rx. 173,902. The more important variations in line estimates are as under :—

The excess of Rx. 153,204 on the East Indian Railway was due to a larger payment on account of the Company's share of surplus profits and to heavier payments to foreign lines on account of hire of vehicles, etc.

The excess on the Burma Railways was due chiefly to the causes mentioned in paragraph 25 above.

The excess on the Eastern Bengal State Railway was due to repairs to damages caused by the earthquake; to hire of locomotives from other railways, and to mileage and demurrage on wagons.

The excess on the Bengal Central Railway was due to charges for the renewal of sleepers having been higher than was anticipated; to heavier repairs to stock and to the traffic worked having been heavier than was anticipated.

The excess on the Indian Midland Railway is attributed to the increased traffic and to insufficient provision having been made in the Budget Estimate for expenditure on extraordinary renewals.

The excess on the North Western Railway occurred mainly under locomotive expenses, and is attributed to the larger traffic worked. The outlay on maintenance was restricted under the orders of Government during the first part of the year.

The excesses on the Mysore State and East Coast Railways were due to the causes mentioned in paragraph 25 above.

The lapse on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway was due chiefly to the provision made for running expenses, fuel, and unclassified expenditure under locomotive expenses having been in excess of requirements, and to a smaller payment on account of the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company's share of surplus profits owing to the net result of the year's working having proved much less satisfactory than was expected at the time the Budget Estimate was prepared.

The lapse on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway is attributed to delay in the receipt of rails from England and to credits for old materials for relaying done late in the preceding year having been accounted for in the year under review.

The lapse on the Assam-Bengal Railway was due to the stoppage of traffic on certain portions of the line as explained in paragraph 23 above.

The lapse on the Bengal and North-Western and Tirhoot Railways was due principally to a smaller payment to the Company on account of their share of net earnings owing to the Company's shares of net earnings for January and February 1898 having been over-estimated, and to the balance of their share for the half-year ended 31st December 1897 not having been paid to the Company until the following year.

The lapse on the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway was due to short renewals of pot sleepers owing to the failure of the Barrakar Iron Works to supply them, and to the late arrival of girders; to the lighter traffic worked, and to savings on estimates for repairs and renewals of engines.

The lapse on the South Indian Railway was due to the requirements for cross sleepering girders having been over-estimated; to coal having been obtained at a cheaper rate; to engines ordered from England in replacement of condemned ones not having been received owing to the engineers' strike; to a smaller number of Jones' buffers having been fitted to stock, and to the restriction of expenditure ordered by the Government of India.

The lapse on the Southern Mahratta Railway is attributed chiefly to the fall in the traffic and the smaller train mileage worked in consequence.

27. With Revised Estimate.—The actual working expenses fell short of the Revised Estimate by Rx. 97,898. The more important variations on individual lines are explained below:—

The lapse on the East Indian Railway occurred chiefly under maintenance and carriage and wagon expenses, and was due to the causes mentioned in paragraph 25 above.

The lapse on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway was due to the requirements under renewals of permanent-way having been over-estimated, to a saving in the provision for running expenses, to reduced consumption of fuel, and to smaller renewals of locomotive engines. There was an excess in the payment made to the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway on account of the Company's share of surplus profits, owing to the net result of the year's working having proved better than was anticipated.

The lapse on the Bengal and North-Western and Tirhoot Railways was due chiefly to a smaller payment to the Company on account of their share of net earnings.

The lapse on the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway is attributed to the lighter traffic worked during the last few weeks of the year, to short renewals of pot sleepers, and to short outlay on renewals of bridges.

The lapse on the North Western Railway was due chiefly to the requirements under maintenance of way, works and stations having been over-estimated.

The excess on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway was due entirely to fluctuations in the suspense accounts.

(ii) Interest and Annuities.

28. The charges for interest and annuities on account of State Railways for 1897-98 amounted to Rx. 9,859,014 as under :—

29. Interest is charged in India at 4 per cent. per annum on debt incurred for direct outlay by the State, except on a loan of Rx. 1,000,000 from His Highness the Maharaja Holkar for the Holkar State Railway, which bears interest at 4½ per cent. per annum.

30. The debt taken over or incurred in connection with lines acquired by the State from Companies is on account of the East Indian, Eastern Bengal, Sind, Punjab and Delhi (incorporated in the North Western Railway), Oudh and Rohilkhand and South Indian Railways, and consists of debentures and debenture stocks of the Companies, for which the State assumed the direct liability on the transfer of the lines to Government; of India stock issued in purchase of the Oudh and Rohilkhand and South Indian Railways; and of stock issued from time to time in redemption of portions of annuities or of debentures and debenture stock, which are bought up as opportunity offers.

The debentures discharged up to date are as under :—

	Rx.
East Indian Railway, £2,950,000 or expressed in Rx., converted at the official rates applicable under the contract	3,546,684
Eastern Bengal Railway, £612,350 or expressed in Rx., converted at the average rates for the years in which discharged	815,670 and interest is calculated at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum on these sums as in the case of direct outlay by the State.

31. The details of the interest charges and the charge on account of each line are as follows: —

32. The East Indian, the Eastern Bengal, and the Sind, Punjab and Delhi Railways were purchased by annuities: the East Indian Railway annuity, terminating in 1953, at the rate of £5-12-6 for every £100 stock of the Company; the Eastern Bengal, terminating in 1957, at £6 3-4·79 per £100 stock, and the Sind, Punjab and Delhi, terminating in 1958, at the rate of £5-3-3·141 per £100 stock. In the case of the East Indian Railway a portion of the annuity equivalent to one-fifth of the commuted value of the capital stock, or £6,550,000 has been deferred, and on this sum interest at 4 per cent. is guaranteed. The holders of this portion of the stock participate in the surplus profits.

33. The charges in respect of each line were as follows:—

34. The charges under "Interest on capital deposited by Companies" and "Interest chargeable against Companies on advances" relate to the newer Companies, the lines undertaken by which are classed as State Railways. During later years, the funds required for additional capital works have been provided by advances made to the Companies from funds raised by the Secretary of State under the provisions of Act 51 Vict., Cap. 5. The charges for interest on these advances appear under the heading "Interest chargeable against Companies on advances." It has further been arranged that money required for Indian expenditure on the construction of the extensions of the Bengal-Nagpur Railway and the Saugor-Katni Extension of the Indian Midland Railway shall be advanced in India, the expenditure in England on account of these Railways being met by sterling borrowing. The interest chargeable against the Companies on the rupee advances appears under India under the same heading. The East Indian Railway Company have also been allowed to raise sterling debentures to meet the capital expenditure on the main line and the extensions. The interest on these debentures is accounted for under the head "Interest on capital deposited by Companies."

35. The charges incurred in connection with each line are given in the following table:—

* Including Mysore.

36. The charge in India against the Bengal-Nagpur Railway under "Interest chargeable against Companies on advances" includes Rx. 19,415 representing interest on capital expended by Government on the Katni-Umaria State Railway, which was subsequently taken over by the Bengal-Nagpur Railway Company as a part of its undertaking; this expenditure has not been refunded by the Company, but the State ranks as a shareholder to the extent of the capital contributed by it. The amount entered against the Lucknow-Bareilly Railway represents interest on money raised by the Rohilkhand and Kumaon Railway Company for capital expenditure on the Lucknow-Bareilly Railway, and interest on advances made to the Company in excess of the money raised.

SECTION B.

GUARANTEED RAILWAYS.

37. This section deals with the transactions of the Great Indian Peninsula, the Bombay, Baroda and Central India, and the Madras Railways. These transactions are (i) Revenue and (ii) the charges incurred by the State (a) in the payment of surplus profits and contributions to Provident Funds; (b) on Land, which, under the several contracts, is supplied free of charge to the Companies; (c) on Government controlling establishments and (d) on interest on capital. The Government controlling establishments also, in some instances, exercise supervision over State lines leased to Companies, and perform certain duties in connection with State Railways, but the entire cost is recorded under this head. Recoveries are made from State lines leased to Companies on account of Government supervision, and the amount of these recoveries is credited to this head.

I.—REVENUE TRANSACTIONS.

XXVII.—Net Traffic Receipts.

38. At the close of the year under review, the open mileage of the Guaranteed Railways was as follows * :—

* Administration Report on the Railways in India for 1897-98, Part I, Appendix A.

39. The net receipts of the Guaranteed Railways during 1897-98 amounted to Rx. 2,201,392. The transactions of each Railway for the year were as follows:—

	Great Indian Peninsula.	Bombay, Baroda and Central India.	Madras.

40. Taking the Capital expenditure as stated in rupees in the Indian Accounts (in which sterling figures have been converted at the fixed contract rate of 1s. 10d. the rupee), the return per cent. on Capital outlay incurred to the end of the year was as under:—

	Capital outlay to 31st March 1898.	Net Receipts, 1897-98.	Percentage on Capital outlay.
	Rx.	Rx.
Great Indian Peninsula	27,997,041	999,389	3·57

Madras	12,161,376	589,147	4·84
Ditto Extension	6,277

41. The earnings on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway during the year under review were considerably below those of the previous year due to the fall in 3rd class passenger traffic consequent on the medical examinations and quarantine restrictions necessitated by the prevalence of plague. The decrease would have been greater but for the improvement in Goods traffic owing to the crops being much above the average, the result of a good and seasonable rainfall. Notwithstanding the reduction in earnings the working expenses exceeded those of 1896-97 by Rs. 8,96,577, due to heavy outlay principally in the Carriage and Wagon Department in connection with the replacement of condemned Cammel's axles and repairs and renewals of a larger number of vehicles. This increase was to some extent compensated for by reduced outlay in the Engineering Department.

42. On the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway the results were also more unfavourable than in the preceding year. The earnings fell off by Rs. 10,42,273, while the expenses increased by Rs. 7,26,876. Under Coaching traffic there was a decrease of Rs. 13,96,661 which was partially counterbalanced by the improvement under goods earnings during the latter part of the year. The increase in working expenses was due principally to heavy outlay in connection with the renewal of carriage and wagon stock and the replacement of Warren girders.

43. On the Madras Railway the earnings were more than those of 1896-97 by Rs. 3,62,474, due almost entirely to the improvement in Goods traffic in connection with grain and pulse. There was also a slight improvement in the carriage of coal for the public. The working expenses were practically the same as in the preceding year.

Comparison with Actuals of 1896-97 and the Budget and Revised Estimates.

44. A statement, attached to this review as Schedule B, compares in detail the transactions of the year with the Revised and Budget Estimates and the Actuals of 1896-97. The following is a summary of the net results:—

Railways.	Net Receipts.	Revised Estimate.		Budget Estimate.		Net Receipts.
	Actuals, 1897-98.	Estimate.	Actuals, more + or less —.	Estimate.	Actuals, more + or less —.	Actuals, 1896-97.

Total	2,201,392	2,160,000	+41,392	2,630,000	—428,608	2,634,164

45. The decrease in the actuals, as compared with those of 1896-97, has already been explained—vide paragraphs 41—43, ante. The decrease, as compared with the Budget Estimate, was due mainly to the same causes which led to the difference between the actuals. The difference between the actuals and the Revised Estimate is comparatively small.

II.—Surplus Profits, etc., Land, Supervision and Interest.

Surplus Profits and Contributions to Provident Funds.

46. Under the contracts with the Guaranteed Railway Companies, a moiety of the excess of net earnings over interest charges for each half-year ending 30th June and 31st December, taken separately, is paid to the Companies; but in calculating the total surplus for division, the Secretary of State is able to place against the net earnings stated in rupees, one rupee only for every 1*s*. 10*d*. of guaranteed interest which he has paid. The share falling to the Companies is, therefore, much in excess of a moiety of the real surplus after meeting the sum which the Secretary of State actually pays as interest charges. In any half-year during which the net earnings fall short of the interest charges, the deficiency is borne wholly by Government.

47. A contribution from net earnings is made in aid of the Provident Funds established on the Great Indian Peninsula and Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railways, for the benefit of the Companies' employés, when the net earnings on capital give a return of more than 6 per cent. per annum on the Bombay, Baroda and Central India, and of 3 per cent. half-yearly on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway. A Provident Fund was established during 1891-92 on the Madras Railway, but on a different basis, a contribution equal to one-half of the obligatory subscriptions of the members during the half-year being given as a charge to Working Expenses, and a further contribution being made in half-years in which there are surplus profits, out of such surplus profits, and within certain prescribed limits.

48. The payments to the Companies during the year 1897-98 on account of surplus profits and contributions to Provident Funds were as follows :—

	Surplus profits.	Contributions to Provident Funds.	Total.
	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.

Land.

49. The charges for land for Guaranteed Railways during the year were comparatively small. They were as follows :—

	Rx.
Great Indian Peninsula	1,154
Bombay, Baroda and Central India	1,497
Madras	548
Total .	3,199

Supervision.

50. The charges falling under this head represent the cost of the establishments of the Consulting Engineers and Government Examiners employed on the supervision, audit and control of the transactions of Companies' lines, and a moiety of the cost of the office of the Director General of Railways. The charges during the year under review were as follows :—

	Control. Rx.	Audit. Rx.

51. The contributions for Government supervision, audit and control, recovered from the several Railway Companies which are credited to this head, were as follows :—

	Rx.
East Indian	10,000
Rajputana-Malwa	14,519
Bengal and North-Western and Tirhoot	4,956
Bengal-Nagpur	9,659
Bengal Central	1,000

Rohilkhand-Kumaon (including Lucknow-Bareilly)	1,140
South Indian	8,545
Assam-Bengal	5,467
Burma	7,957
TOTAL	80,312

52. The contribution payable from the East Indian Railway revenues has been fixed under the contract at Rs. 50,000 half-yearly. The contributions by the Bengal and North-Western and Rohilkhand-Kumaon Railway Companies are calculated at the rate of Rs. 20 per mile half-yearly, while those of other Railway Companies are calculated at the rate of Rs. 40 per half-year per mile of line constructed or under construction.

53. No contribution is made by the old Guaranteed Railways towards the cost of Government audit and control.

Interest.

54. The charges for Interest during the year 1897-98 were as under :—

	On Capital held in England.		On Capital held in India.	On over-drawals on Capital Account.	TOTAL.
	Amount. £	Equivalent. Rx.	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.
Great Indian Peninsula	1,190,101	1,860,270	1,431	595	1,862,296

TOTAL	2,154,784	3,368,185	1,545	7,354	3,377,084

55. The foregoing figures represent the interest paid during the year, and not the liability for interest for the year 1897-98. Additional capital to the extent of £200,000 was raised by the Madras Railway Company during the year under review, viz., £100,000 in September and £100,000 in November 1897, and consequently the liability for interest for the year 1897-98 would be higher than the actual payments. The interest on overdrawn capital represents interest charged by Government on advances to the three lines on Capital account. The rate which was formerly 4½ per cent. per annum has been reduced to 3½ per cent. from May 1897.

Comparison with Actuals of 1896-97 and the Budget and Revised Estimates.

56. In the statement attached to this review as Schedule C, a comparison in detail will be found of the actual charges for Surplus Profits, etc., Land and Supervision, and Interest, with the Revised and Budget Estimates and with the Actuals of 1896-97, of which the following is a summary:—

	Actuals, 1897-98.	Revised Estimate.		Budget Estimate.		Actuals, 1896-97.
		Estimate.	Actuals, more + or less —.	Estimate.	Actuals, more + or less —.

Surplus profits, etc.	110,302	117,200	—6,898	157,600	—47,298	447,302
Land and Supervision . .	15,911	28,600	—12,689	145,400	—129,489	28,083
Interest . .	3,377,084	3,370,300	+6,784	3,608,400	—231,316	3,597,232
Total .	3,503,297	3,516,100	—12,803	3,911,400	—408,103	4,072,617

The decrease in payments on account of surplus profits, etc., as compared with the actuals of the previous year, is due chiefly to no surplus having been earned by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway during the half-year ended 30th June 1897, and to the share of profits paid to the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company being less owing to the fall in traffic. Contrasted with the Budget Estimate the decrease is due to the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway having earned no surplus in the second-half of 1897. The decrease, as compared with the Revised Estimate, is due to no payments having been made to the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway for contribution to the Provident Fund, owing to the accounts for the second-half of 1897 having been closed late in the year.

The decrease in Land and Supervision, as compared with the actuals of the previous year, occurred chiefly in Bengal, North-Western Provinces and Madras. The reduction in Bengal is due to the formation of a separate Consulting Engineer's Office in Rangoon, that in the North-Western Provinces is due to changes in the personnel of the staff, and that in the Madras Presidency is attributed principally to the greater part of the land required for the "Salt Cottaur Junction arrangements" having been paid for in 1896-97. The lapse on the Budget and Revised Estimates is due principally to the provision made for the land required for the Calicut-Cannanore Branch of the Madras Railway, not being utilized in full owing to the commencement of construction operations having been delayed by the question of gauge being still unsettled.

The decrease in the interest charges as compared with the Actuals of 1896-97 and the Budget Estimate was due to the more favourable rate of exchange.

Effect on State Revenues.

57. The following table shows the direct results to the State of the working of the Guaranteed Railways for the year:—

	Net Traffic Receipts.	Charges.				Gain or loss (+ or —).
		Interest.	Surplus Profits.	Contribution to Provident Funds.	Total.
	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.
Great Indian Peninsula . .	999,389	1,862,296	38	...	1,862,334	—862,945
Bombay, Baroda and Central India . .	612,856	681,608	100,645	...	782,253	—169,397
Madras . .	589,147	833,180	8,597	1,022	842,799	—253,652
Total .	2,201,392	3,377,084	109,280	1,022	3,487,386	—1,285,994

58. In addition to the above, the cost of land provided at the expense of the State and a proportionate share of the cost of the Government controlling establishments have to be taken into consideration, in order to arrive at the real financial results to the State of its connection with Guaranteed Railways. The above table, however, shows prominently the effects of the provision in the contracts under which surplus profits are declared half-yearly, and the sterling interest is converted for the purpose of this division at the fixed contract rate of 1*s.* 10*d.* (vide paragraph 46). Thus the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company received as surplus profits during the year the sum of Rx. 100,645 as surplus profits, while Government, although nominally entitled to share equally with the Company, sustained a loss of Rx. 169,397. The Madras Railway received surplus profits of Rx. 8,597, while the loss to Government amounted to Rx. 253,652.

59. In the following statement the results to the State of the working of these railways for the last five years are exhibited :—

Notwithstanding the serious falling off in Earnings, the loss to the State was less than in 1896-97 owing to reduced charges for surplus profits and interest.

60. The following statement shows the total amount paid on account of guaranteed interest to each of the Guaranteed Railway Companies still in existence on 31st March 1898, the net Revenue of the several lines to the 31st of December 1897, appropriated towards the repayment of that amount and the balance. For the purposes of this statement, the net revenue and the guaranteed interest paid in India are converted at the contract rates of exchange. The amounts shown as guaranteed interest paid in England represent true sterling :—

SECTION C.

SUBSIDIZED COMPANIES.

(Major heads XXVIII and 40.)

61. The transactions in connection with subsidized railways which appear in the Government accounts under the heading Subsidized Companies represent—

Under Revenue, Head XXVIII.—Repayments of advances of interest.

Under Expenditure, Head 40—Cost of land supplied free, subsidies paid and advances of interest.

(i) Repayments of Advances of Interest.

62. The amounts credited as Revenue under this head comprise repayments of advances of interest by the Rohilkhund-Kumaon Railway Company and by the Mysore Durbar on account of the Mysore Railway.

63. In the case of the Rohilkhund-Kumaon Railway, the State advanced interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum on the Company's share capital while the line was under construction. In consideration of this payment the State is entitled, under the terms of the contract, to a moiety of any surplus earnings, after meeting working expenses, interest on borrowed capital, if any, and a sum sufficient to pay a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on the Company's share capital, until such time as the interest advanced by the Secretary of State, together with interest thereon at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, shall have been repaid. The following is a summary of the advances and repayments of interest:—

64. The payment by the Mysore Durbar on account of the Mysore State Railway represents the net charge for interest paid by Government to the Southern Mahratta Railway Company in connection with the Mysore Railway. The Secretary of State, acting on behalf of the Mysore State, has guaranteed the interest on the capital raised by the Southern Mahratta Railway Company for the construction of the Mysore Railway, and the Durbar makes good the excess of interest over net revenue, and will receive any excess of net revenue over interest charges. The receipts and working expenses and interest charges of the Mysore Railway are recorded in the Government accounts under their respective Railway heads, and the recovery from the Mysore Durbar of the net amount of interest only (i.e., interest on capital expended minus net receipts) is credited under this head.

65. The amount recovered from the Mysore Durbar during 1897-98 was Rx. 12,990 arrived at as under :—

(ii) Land, Subsidies and Advances of Interest.

66. The charges for land, subsidies and advances of interest are borne partly by Imperial and partly by Provincial revenues. The items falling on the Imperial Government are charges for land, provided free of cost under the terms of the contracts, in connection with the railways mentioned in the following paragraph.

67. The charges debited to Imperial Funds during 1897-98 were :—

		Rx.
Brahmaputra-Sultanpur Railway	(Land charges) .	2,482
Mymensing-Jamalpur Railway	(") .	5,815
South Behar Railway	(") .	27,362

68. The charges borne by the Provincial Governments are :—

Assam.—An annual subsidy, payable to the Assam Railways and Trading Company, Limited, on account of the Dibru-Sadiya Railway, of such amount—subject to a maximum of Rs. 1,00,000—as, together with net earnings of the Railway, shall be sufficient to yield a return of 5 per cent. per annum on Capital outlay ; and a share of the pay and allowances of the Examiner of Public Works Accounts, Assam. This subsidy will cease to be payable after 30th June 1905.

Bengal.—Charges for land which has, under the terms of the contracts, to be provided free of cost to the Tarkessur, Dooars, and Deoghur Railways.

69. The amount debited against Provincial revenues during 1897-98 was—

	Rx.
Dibru-Sadiya Railway (Subsidy and audit)	10,183

70. The total charges in connection with each line to the close of 1897-98 will be found in the statement attached to this note as Schedule D.

Comparison with Actuals of 1896-97 and the Budget and Revised Estimates.

71. The actual receipts during the year under head XXVIII compare with the actuals of 1896-97 and the Budget and Revised Estimates as under:—

	Actuals, 1897-98.	Revised Estimate.		Budget Estimate.		Actuals, 1896-97.
		Estimate.	Actuals, more or less.	Estimate.	Actuals, more or less.

Total .	14,969	12,300	+2,669	28,700	—13,731	24,052

72. No provision was made in the Budget Estimate on account of the Government share of surplus earnings of the Rohilkhund-Kumaon Railway for the year 1896 owing to there having been unsettled questions which affected the amount of that share. In the Revised Estimate, however, provision was made for the amount payable by the Rohilkhund-Kumaon Railway Company in settlement of the Government share of the surplus profits of that railway to end of the year 1895 in reduction of the Company's debt for advances of interest.

The difference between the actuals and the Budget Estimate of the repayment by the Mysore Durbar was due chiefly to the net receipts of the Mysore Railway being more favourable than was anticipated.

73. The actual expenditure during the year under head "40" compares with the actuals of 1896-97 and the Budget and Revised Estimates as under:—

	Actuals, 1897-98.	Revised Estimate.		Budget Estimate.		Actuals, 1896-97.

Total .	113,760	110,800	+2,960	236,200	—122,440	85,020

74. The increase as compared with the actuals of the previous year was due chiefly to larger payments on account of land acquired for the extensions of the Bengal and North-Western Railway and for new branch lines which were undertaken towards the close of the previous year or during the course of the year 1897-98.

75. The principal variations under Imperial as compared with the actuals of the previous year and with the Budget and Revised Estimates occurred on the following lines:—

Mymensing-Jamalpur and Brahmaputra-Sultanpur Railways.—The lapses as compared with the Budget Estimate were due to delay in settling claims for compensation and other difficulties experienced by the land acquisition officers.

South Behar Railway.—The increase as compared with actuals of previous year was due to compensation for land actually taken up during 1896-97 having been paid during 1897-98, owing to disputes. The excess as compared with the Budget Estimate was due to higher rates than were anticipated having been awarded as compensation for land acquired.

Segowlie-Raksaul Railway.—The excess as compared with the Budget Estimate was due to land which it was expected would be taken up in the previous year having been acquired and paid for during the year under review.

Bengal and North-Western Railway.—The increase as compared with the actuals of the previous year was due to large payments having been made during 1897-98 on account of land acquired for the Ganges-Gogra-Doab lines. The lapse as compared with the Budget Estimate was due to no outlay having been incurred in the Azamgarh district and to smaller outlay in the Benares district. The excess as compared with the Revised Estimate was due to larger outlay than anticipated in the Azamgarh, Ballia and Ghazipur districts.

Hardwar-Dehra Railway.—The funds provided to meet the cost of land to be taken up for this Railway were not utilised during the year.

Barsi-Pandharpur-Sangola Railway.—A sum of Rs. 13,000 was allotted during the course of the year under the head "41.—Miscellaneous Railway Expenditure" to meet outlay on land to be acquired for this Railway. Towards the close of the year, however, the construction of the line was taken up by the Barsi Light Railway Company when the grant under head 41 was withdrawn and an allotment of Rs. 10,000 made under this head. The expenditure incurred amounted to Rx. 752.

Tapti Valley Railway.—The lapse as compared with the Budget Estimate is attributed to the alignment for the line having been changed. The lapse as compared with the Revised Estimate is said to be the result of famine and plague, which had a depressing influence on operations of all kinds in the Bombay Presidency.

SECTION D.

41.—MISCELLANEOUS RAILWAY EXPENDITURE.

76. Expenditure recorded under this head covers:—

(a) Outlay on surveys.
(b) Surplus establishment and miscellaneous charges.

(f) Land charges in connection with Native States Railways.
(g) Watch and ward charges in connection with the Frontier Railway Reserve material.

During the year under review the expenditure incurred in taking up land for the Meiktila-Myingyan, Sakri-Jainagar and Bettiah-Bagaha Railways undertaken for famine relief purposes was also charged to this head.

77. At the commencement of the year 1897-98 the following surveys were in hand:—

Imperial.

Ranaghat-Bhagwangola-Raiganj.
Singhia-Madaripur-Chandpur.
Sakri-Jainagar and Bairagnia-Bagaha.

Provincial.

Barsi-Pandharpur-Sangola.

78. During the year the following amounts were recovered from the Companies, etc., noted below, and were credited to this head:—

	Rx.
From the Kashmir Durbar on account of expenditure incurred on the Kashmir Railway Survey	7,674
From the Bengal-Nagpur Railway Company on account of expenditure incurred on the Mahanadi Bridge	2,890
From the Bengal-Nagpur Railway Company on account of expenditure incurred on the Cuttack-Midnapur-Calcutta Railway Survey	19,206

From the sale of engines, etc., from the Abt material and engine suspense account	11,782
From the Madras Railway Company on account of expenditure incurred on the Cannanore-Calicut Survey	3,090
TOTAL	55,243

The recoveries from Companies, detailed above, were on account of outlay incurred by Government on surveys which, on construction being undertaken by a Company, is brought on to the capital account of the line concerned. The credit against the Abt material and engine suspense account represents the gross value of engines, etc., sold to the North Western Railway. The depreciation in cost has, under the orders of Government, been debited to miscellaneous charges.

79. During the year the undermentioned surveys were undertaken by the Imperial Government:—

Satpura Railway Survey.—A survey for a line on a 2-foot gauge from Gondia, on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway, to Jubbulpore, with branches to Mandla on the east, and to Seoni and Chindwara on the west, a total length of about 220 miles at an estimated cost of Rs. 65,751.

Kaunia-Dhubri-Gauhati Survey.—A survey for a line of railway on the metre gauge from Dhubri to Gauhati in extension of a proposed branch from Mogalhat on the Kaunia-Dharlla branch to Dhubri on the Brahmaputra. This would form part of the main route from the North-Western Provinces and Behar to Assam. Estimated cost Rs. 56,050.

Midnapur-Jherriah and Ranchi Plateau Surveys.—A location survey for a standard gauge railway from near Midnapur, through Bankura, Khorbuna and Adra to the Jherriah coal-fields and from Khorbuna to Chatatand, a distance in all of 167 miles; and a detailed survey for a standard gauge line from Chatatand on the Adra-Jherriah alignment, to some point on the proposed Palamow-Sini line, a length of 115 miles, and a reconnaissance for a 2-foot gauge line from Sori to Aringi viâ Lohardagga with a branch to Ranchi, a distance of 80 miles. Estimated cost Rs. 1,24,750.

Baran-Daltonganj Survey.—A survey for a line, 82½ miles in length, from Baran on the Moghal Sarai-Gya extension of the East Indian Railway which is now under construction, viâ the east bank of the Soane River to Daltonganj at an estimated cost of Rs. 40,900.

Kissenganj-Kotchandpur-Magura Survey.—A survey for a branch on a 2′ 6″ gauge from Shibnibash (Kissenganj Bazar), viâ Kotchandpur to Magura, a distance of 51¼ miles, at an estimated cost of Rs. 6,642.

Nowshera-Dargai Survey.—A survey of a 2-foot gauge railway from Nowshera to Dargai, a distance of about 42 miles, at an estimated cost of Rs. 17,492.

Rewari-Kuchaman Survey.—A survey of a chord line to the Rajputana-Malwa Railway from Rewari to Phulera with a branch to Kuchaman Road, which is the junction between the Jodhpore Railway and the Sambhar branch of the Rajputana-Malwa Railway. Estimated cost Rs. 38,259.

Shoranur-Cochin Survey.—A survey for the final location of a railway from Shoranur to Cochin, a distance of about 73 miles, at an estimated cost of Rs. 20,206.

Vizianagram-Raipur Survey.—An investigation of the country between Raipur, on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway, and Vizianagram, on the East Coast State Railway, had been carried out to a certain extent during the years 1883—85, but the project remained in abeyance until this year, when arrangements were made for a further examination of the alignment. The distance from Raipur to Vizianagram is 304 miles, the estimated cost of the further survey being Rs. 1,29,743.

Bombay-Sind Connection Survey.—A survey of a line of railway on the standard gauge between Moghul Bhin in Sind and Bhuj in Cutch, crossing the Khori creek at Lakhpat in Cutch, a distance approximately of 130 miles, at an estimated cost of Rs. 60,539.

80. A sum of Rx. 249 was expended during the year on the Barsi-Pandharpur-Sangola Survey by the Bombay Government from Provincial funds towards the close of the previous year. The work undertaken during the year under review comprised the extension of the projected line from Barsi to Latur. Expenditure to the extent of Rx. 505 was incurred from Provincial funds, Burma, on surveying a line of railway from Meiktila to Myingyan.

92. During the course of the year, however, it was found necessary to restrict expenditure on the construction of railways to the extent of Rx. 1,000,000 owing to the depletion of the cash balances, which was consequent on the prevalence of famine. Owing to the disturbance of working arrangements while the engineering strikes in England affected very materially the expenditure in that country on stores, the consequence was that a large lapse had to be provided for, and the Revised Estimate was therefore prepared for Rx. 3,908,100 or Rx. 1,937,800 less than the provision made in the Budget Estimate.

The raising of debentures to the extent of £297,750 by the Assam-Bengal Railway Company during the course of the year under review instead of in the previous year as originally anticipated caused a further disturbance in the programme of expenditure.

93. The amount of the Revised Estimate, viz., Rx. 3,908,100, was provided as follows:—

BUDGET ESTIMATE.

98. The more important variations from the Budget Estimate are explained below :—

State Agency.

Open lines.—The actuals fell short of the Budget Estimate by Rx. 152,299, the principal variations being as follows:—

A lapse on the Warora Colliery due chiefly to the value of machinery sold to the East Indian Railway during 1896-97 having been realised during the year under review.

A lapse on the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway attributed chiefly to the restriction of expenditure; to delay in the supply of material from England, and to sales of surplus stores.

A lapse on the North Western Railway due to the restriction of expenditure; to fluctuations in the suspense balances, and to short outlay on English stores.

An excess on the Eastern Bengal State Railway due to increased expenditure for doubling the line from Ranaghat to Poradaha; to expenditure incurred on works at Pachooria, Lalgola, Chitpore and Naihati, and to an increase in the English cost of additional rolling stock obtained for the open line.

Lines under construction.—The actuals fell short of the Budget Estimate by Rx. 315,668. The principal variations on individual lines were:—

A lapse on the Rungpur-Dhubri Railway (Teesta Bridge) due to the construction of the bridge not having been commenced as early as was originally intended.

A lapse on the Rajbari-Faridpur Railway due to construction operations not having been pushed on to the extent anticipated in the Budget Estimate.

A lapse on the Mari-Attock Railway due mainly to the restriction of expenditure.

A lapse on the Bezwada-Madras Railway due to short outlay under Ballast and Permanent-way; to the postponement of some of the works under Stations and Buildings; to the non-arrival of engines, and to delay in the erection of carriage and wagon stock by the Madras Railway.

The Budget Estimate of the Kotri-Rohri Railway provided for expenditure both on that railway and on the Indus Bridge. The Kotri-Rohri Railway was, however, transferred to the management of the North Western Railway during the year and the necessary separation of the grant was effected. Compared with the provision made in the Budget Estimate for expenditure on the Indus Bridge, the actuals shew a lapse which is attributed chiefly to the non-arrival of girders from England.

A lapse on the Godavari Bridge due chiefly to short expenditure on English stores.

A lapse under Stores transactions due to a reduction in the balances; stores paid for during 1896-97 having been invoiced and passed on to lines during the year under review.

An excess on the Rai Bareli-Benares Railway attributable partly to a too sanguine estimate of probable savings, partly to short outlay under certain heads in the previous year, and to some extent to additional works having been found necessary. The excess would have been larger but for a large saving under Rolling-Stock due to delay in the supply of engines from England.

Construction operations were started during the course of the year on the British sections of the Shadipalli-Jodhpore Frontier and Cooch Behar-Santrabari Railways. No provision for these lines was made in the Budget Estimate.

An excess on the Lyallpur Khanewal Railway due to the purchase of sleepers and permanent-way materials from the North Western Railway, provision for which was not made in the Budget Estimate.

Companies' Agency.

Open lines.—The actuals fell short of the Budget Estimate by Rx. 168,683. The principal variations on individual lines were as under :—

A lapse on the Rajputana-Malwa Railway due to short expenditure on new works at Cawnpore and to the transfer of expenditure on works at Ujjain to the Nagda-Ujjain and Ujjain-Bhopal Railways; to the provision made for certain works under Stations and Buildings not having been utilised owing to some of the works having been deferred, and to the want of Government sanction for others, and to short outlay on menials' quarters at Mhow and junction arrangements at Ujjain Station owing mainly to restriction of expenditure; to credits for locomotive and carriage and wagon stock sold to the Mombassa-Uganda and Hyderabad-Godavari Valley Railways, and to fluctuations in the suspense accounts.

The balances in the suspense accounts of the Burma Railways on the 31st August 1896 (the date from which the lines were transferred to a Company) which were at first treated as Government capital outlay were under the orders of Government transferred during the year to the Company's capital account, the result being a credit of Rx. 175,714 under head 48.—State Railways—Construction. This credit was not provided for in the Budget Estimate.

A lapse on the Tirhoot State Railway attributed chiefly to the over-estimates and to English stores for the erection of 13 F class engines not having been received.

A lapse of Rx. 80,127 on the South Indian Railway due chiefly to the postponement of several large works, and to short outlay on English stores.

A lapse on the Dhond and Manmad Railway chiefly under Bridge-work, Fencing, and Stations and Buildings due to the provision made for building return walls to bridges from Ahmednagar to Kopargaon not having been put in hand as the work was not sanctioned; to the provision made for fencing 25½ miles not having been utilised as the work is kept in abeyance till completion of the connection with the Godavari Valley Railway at Manmad, and to the provision made for unforeseen works under Stations and Buildings having been surrendered.

No outlay was incurred on the Wardha Coal State Railway during the year, the provision made for strengthening bridges and staff quarters having been surrendered owing to the works not having been sanctioned.

An excess of Rx. 239,420 on the East Indian Railway due chiefly to large purchases of sleepers towards the close of the year; to smaller issues to Revenue of permanent-way materials for renewals, and to an increase in the stock of pig iron for manufacturing operations. The excess is also partly accounted for by increased outlay on the Moghal Sarai-Gya extension and by the charge for commission on debentures which was not provided for in the Budget Estimate.

Lines under construction.—The actuals fell short of the Budget Estimate by Rx. 599,569. The causes which led to the deviation from the Budget Estimate are explained below :—

In the Budget Estimate of the Assam-Bengal Railway a sum of Rx. 1,280,000 was provided to meet the estimated expenditure on the line during the year. Of this sum Rx. 1,080,700 was provided from Government funds and the balance Rx. 199,300 against Company's capital and debentures. The debentures, amounting to £300,000 (actual amount received £297,750), which the Company was expected to raise in March 1897, were not paid to the Secretary of State until 1897-98. The total outlay on the Railway during the year amounted to Rx. 1,160,831, of which Rx. 498,153, representing the equivalent of the debentures referred to above was accounted for under the head, "Capital account of Indian Railway Companies", and only the difference, Rx. 662,678, charged against Government funds in accordance with the terms of clause 43 of the contract. Compared with the total provision made in the Budget Estimate, there was a lapse of Rx. 119,169 which is attributed partly to the restriction of expenditure during a portion of the year, and partly to over-estimates.

The lapse on the provision made for land for the Assam-Bengal Railway was due to the Land Acquisition Officer having over-estimated his requirements.

The lapse on the Hajipur-Katihar extensions is attributed to the alignment of the line from Kosi to Katihar not having been finally settled.

REVISED ESTIMATE.

99. Compared with the Revised Estimate, the principal variations and the reasons assigned for them are briefly as follows :—

State Agency.

Open lines.—The actuals fell short of the Revised Estimate by Rx. 71,699. The more important variations on individual lines are as under :—

A lapse on the North Western Railway due to larger issues of stores to Revenue.

A lapse on the East Coast Railway due to shorter expenditure on English stores.

An excess on the Eastern Bengal State Railway due entirely to larger expenditure on English stores than was anticipated.

An excess on the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway due to smaller issues of stores to Revenue, and to adjustments in connection with stock-taking.

Lines under construction.—The actuals were less than the Revised Estimate by Rx. 119,468.

The principal lapses were—

On the Kotri-Rohri Railway attributed to short outlay on works and on English stores.

On the Mari-Attock Railway due to smaller outlay on works than was anticipated.

On the Indus Bridge due principally to the non-arrival of girders from England.

Under Stores transactions due to the cause referred to in paragraph 98 above.

The principal excess was :—

On the Rajbari-Faridpur Railway due to the issue of a larger quantity of materials from the Eastern Bengal State Railway and to more work having been done.

Companies' Agency.

Open lines.—The actuals approximate closely to the Revised Estimate, the result being a small lapse of Rx. 1,083. The more important variations were as under :—

A lapse on the Tirhoot State Railway due chiefly to larger issues of stores to Revenue.

An excess on the East Indian Railway due chiefly to fluctuations in the suspense accounts owing to the causes mentioned in paragraph 98 above.

Lines under construction.—The actuals fell short of the Revised Estimate by Rx. 80,069, the principal variations being as under:—

A lapse on the provision made for land for the Assam-Bengal Railway, due to the Land Acquisition Officer not having been able to make awards before the close of the year up to the extent of the money placed at his disposal.

A lapse on the Hajipur-Katihar extensions due to the requirements for outlay on land having been over-estimated and to work in connection with bridges and ballast and permanent-way not having been carried out to the extent anticipated.

The Revised Estimate of the Assam-Bengal Railway was passed for a total estimated expenditure of Rx. 1,147,900, of which Rx. 649,700 was provided against Government funds, and the balance Rx. 498,200 against debentures to be raised by the Company. The actual expenditure amounted to Rx. 1,160,831 or Rx. 12,931 in excess of the Revised Estimate. This excess occurred almost entirely under Formation.

100. Total Capital Outlay.—The total outlay incurred on State Railways up to the end of the year has amounted to Rx. 133,302,934 as under:—

	Rx.

101. Full details of the above will be found in the statement attached to this review as Schedule G.

SECTION F.

CAPITAL ACCOUNT OF GUARANTEED COMPANIES.

102. Each of the Guaranteed Railway Companies has a sterling Capital. Under the respective contracts entered upon many years ago, funds required to meet expenditure in India are advanced at the fixed rate of exchange of 1*s.* 10*d.* the rupee, and advances in England when stated in Indian currency are converted at the same rate of 1*s.* 10*d.* the rupee. The figures relating to Capital expenditure in this section, where stated in sterling, represent as regards withdrawals by the Companies in England true sterling, and as regards withdrawals in India the equivalent of the rupees at the rate of 1*s.* 10*d.*; where stated in Rx., sterling has been converted into rupees at the same rate. This does not, however, apply to the capital for the Extensions of the Madras Railway to which it has been arranged that the "prescribed" rate of exchange shall be applied.

103. The following table shows the amount of Capital raised to the 31st March 1898 :—

	SHARE CAPITAL.		DEBENTURES.		DEBENTURE STOCK.		CAPITAL NOT BEARING INTEREST.		TOTAL.

105. The average rate of interest payable in gold on the Capital of these Guaranteed Companies is a little below 4·65 per cent. Under the contracts, the State must continue to pay interest on the Share Capital at the rates guaranteed until the contracts terminate, and is consequently unable to obtain any advantage from the increasingly easy condition of the money market. The State can now raise money at about 2½ per cent., but has to continue to pay 5 per cent. on the bulk of the Share Capital which, with the low average rate of exchange for 1897-98, is equivalent to a payment of interest at a rate of about 7·26 per cent. on the sterling Capital converted at par.

106. The following table shows the amounts withdrawn by the several Companies on Capital account up to the 31st March 1898, and the balances of Capital at their credit or overdrawals at their debit on that date :—

107. The net Capital expenditure during the year on the Guaranteed Railways amounted to £399,558 as below :—

108. The large refunds in India represent chiefly the value of stores issued to Revenue for working and maintenance which, in the first instance, are paid for from Capital funds.

Comparison with Budget and Revised Estimates.

109. The following table compares the actual net withdrawals during the year, with the Actuals of 1896-97, and with the Budget and Revised Estimates of 1897-98:—

	Actuals, 1897-98.	Revised Estimate.		Budget Estimate.		Actuals, 1896-97.
		Estimate.	Actuals, more or less.	Estimate.	Actuals, more or less.

TOTAL	437,819	438,200	—381	1,186,100	—748,281	285,348

110. The increase in the actuals as compared with those of the previous year occurred on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway in connection with the outlay in England on stores, etc., which was nearly 25 lakhs more than in the preceding year. This increase has to a certain extent been counterbalanced by larger refunds for stores issued to revenue for repairs and renewals of carriages and wagons. The decrease as compared with the Budget Estimate in the case of all three lines was due principally to shorter outlay on stores, etc., in England. Larger receipts in India in connection with heavier consumption of stores by revenue, sales of stores to outsiders, and deposits for work to be done for outsiders contributed to the decrease to a certain extent. The difference between the Revised Estimate and the actuals is small.

SECTION G.

(CAPITAL OF INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANIES.)

(Exclusive of the old Guaranteed Companies.)

111. The accounts reviewed in this section deal with the capital transactions of the following Railway Companies :—

Bengal Central.
Bengal-Nagpur.
Indian Midland.
Southern Mahratta.
Mysore.
Rohilkhund-Kumaon (Lucknow-Bareilly Section).
Assam-Bengal.
Burma Railways.
* Ahmedabad-Parantij.
* South Behar.
* Mymensingh-Jamalpur.
* Brahmaputra-Sultanpur.
* Tapti Valley.
* Hurdwar-Dehra.

112. The capital of these Companies (excepting those marked with an asterisk) consists partly of share capital and debentures raised by the Companies direct on guarantees by the Secretary of State, and partly of advances made by the Secretary of State from funds raised by him under the provisions of Act 51 Vict., Cap. 5. The sums thus raised and advanced to the Companies are considered as part of the Companies' capital. Interest on such advances is charged against the Railway Revenue Account and has to be met before surplus profits can be declared.

113. The financial terms of the contracts, the rates of interest guaranteed and the rates of exchange at which the capital is converted into Indian currency vary in each case. These points are briefly noted below.

114. Bengal Central Railway.—This line is the property of the Bengal Central Railway Company and is, merely as a matter of convenience, classed among State Railways. This Railway was originally constructed under a limited guarantee of interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, while the line was under construction, such interest, together with interest thereon, being repayable out of surplus profits. A revised contract was, however, entered into, with effect from the 1st July 1885, under which the Company receives a guarantee of 3½ per cent. on share capital and a quarter of net earnings paid half-yearly, the claim to the repayment of interest advanced under the original contract being at the same time waived. The capital of the Company on the 1st July 1885 amounted to £750,000. The whole of this amount was practically spent by the Company before Government took over the line, and its equivalent in Indian currency is held to be Rs. 90,82,343, the expenditure in rupees as exhibited by the Company's books. The balance of the Company's capital (including advances), viz., £250,000 when stated in Indian currency, is converted at the rate of 1*s*. 5·262*d*. the rupee.

115. Bengal-Nagpur Railway.—This Company receives a guarantee at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum on share capital, and is entitled to a quarter share of surplus profits,—i. e., of the excess of net earnings over interest—calculated annually. The rate of exchange for the conversion of sterling capital into Indian currency as regards the main line capital raised up to the 31st March 1896 was £1 = Rs. 13, but it has been arranged that all further sterling capital raised for the Bengal-Nagpur Railway both for the main line and the extensions (including the sum of £500,000 raised by debentures in 1896) should be converted at the average rate obtained by the Secretary of State for bills payable on demand drawn on India during the calendar half-year next preceding that in which the capital is received, i.e., at what is known as, and referred to hereafter as, the "prescribed" rate.

116. Indian Midland Railway.—This Company also receives a guarantee of 4 per cent. per annum on its share capital, and is entitled to a quarter share of surplus profits calculated annually. The rate of exchange for the conversion of sterling capital into Indian currency as regards the main line is £1 = Rs. 12½, and as regards the Saugor-Katni extension, which is being constructed by the Company, £1 = Rs. 16½.

117. Southern Mahratta Railway.—This Company now receives a guarantee of 3½ per cent. (4 per cent. up to 31st December 1890) and a quarter of net earnings. The rates of exchange for the conversion of sterling capital into rupees are, as regards the capital (£530,957), specially raised for the completion of the Bellary-Kistna Railway, which was taken over by the Company £1 = Rs. 14, and for the remainder of the capital, £1 = Rs. 12. The Company also gets the advantage of outlay by the State on the construction of the Bellary-Kistna Railway to the extent of Rx. 1,657,841 without any charge for interest.

118. Mysore Railway.—This line was completed and is worked by the Southern Mahratta Railway Company. That Company raised sufficient funds by the issue of debenture stock to repay to the Mysore Durbar the outlay previously incurred by that State and to complete the extension linking up with the Southern Mahratta system. Acting on behalf of the Mysore Durbar, the Secretary of State has guaranteed interest at 4 per cent. on the nominal amount of the debenture stock issued. The Southern Mahratta Railway Company receives a quarter of the net earnings. The rate of exchange for conversion of the sterling capital into Indian currency is 1*s.* 5·931*d.* the rupee.

119. Rohilkhund-Kumaon Railway (Lucknow-Bareilly Section).—The Rohilkhund-Kumaon Railway Company took over, with effect from the 1st January 1891, the Bareilly-Pilibhit and the Lucknow-Sitapur State Railways, undertaking to complete the link between these lines and to work the whole with their own Railway. The Company agreed to raise capital to the extent of £160,000 by the issue of debentures, with the power to discharge any portion of this obligation by the payment of rupees in India, the amount so paid being deemed the equivalent of sterling money at the average rate of exchange during the half-year immediately preceding the date of such payment. The Company subsequently issued sterling debentures for £117,000, which sold for Rs. 20,34,195. This sum was paid into the Calcutta Treasury, and, at the rate fixed by the contract, is deemed to be equivalent to a sterling payment of £160,837. The debentures were issued under a guarantee of the Secretary of State at the rate of 3¼ * per cent. per annum. The previous outlay incurred by the State has not been refunded to Government, and it has been further agreed that any additional capital required shall be provided by the Secretary of State. Any surplus profits after paying the debenture interest and interest at 4 per cent. on the outlay and advances by the State are divided between Government and the Company in the ratio of their respective capital.

120. Assam-Bengal Railway.—This Company took over, in November 1892, the construction of the Gauhati-Lumding Section of the Railway which had been commenced by the State. The capital authorised to be raised by the Company is £1,500,000, and the rate of interest guaranteed is 3½ per cent. per annum up to the 1st July 1898, and after that date 3 per cent. The rate for the conversion of sterling capital into Indian currency is the "prescribed" rate.

121. Burma Railways.—This Company was formed for the purpose of completing and working the system of Railways in Burma which was being constructed and worked by the State, carrying out extensions thereof. The lines were handed over with effect from the 1st September 1896; the capital authorised to be raised by the Company for the purposes of the contract is

* These debentures, which matured on the 1st July 1898, have been renewed for three years at 3 per cent. per annum.

£2,000,000. The rate of interest guaranteed is 2¾ per cent. per annum up to the 1st July 1901, and after that date 2½ per cent. For the purposes of the division of surplus profits, the capital expended by the Secretary of State on the Railways in Burma up to the 31st August 1896, as shown in rupees in the books of the Government of India, is converted into sterling at the rate of Re. 1 = 1*s*. 2$\frac{3}{16}$d., and interest is calculated on the sterling equivalent of this sum at the rate of 2½ per cent. per annum. Any surplus profits after paying the interest in rupees on the Company's capital and the interest on the sterling equivalent of the Secretary of State's capital are divided between Government and the Company in the ratio of 4 to 1. The Company are also required to repay to the Secretary of State from their share of the surplus profits the equivalent in rupees of the additional ¼ per cent. interest guaranteed up to the 1st July 1901. The rate for the conversion of the sterling capital of the Company into Indian currency and for all the purposes of the contract requiring the conversion of sterling money into rupees is the "prescribed" rate.

122. Ahmedabad-Parantij, South Behar, Mymensingh-Jamalpur, Brahmaputra-Sultanpur, Tapti Valley and Hurdwar-Dehra Branch Railways.—The Ahmedabad-Parantij and Tapti Valley Railways are being constructed by the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company, the South Behar Railway by the East Indian Railway Company, and the Mymensingh-Jamalpur, Brahmaputra-Sultanpur and Hurdwar-Dehra Railways by State Agency, from funds paid into Indian Treasuries, and the element of exchange does not, therefore, enter into the accounts of these Railways. With the exception of the South Behar Railway Company, these Companies have an Indian domicile and a rupee capital. The South Behar Railway Company has an English domicile and a sterling capital. The transactions of this Railway, which pass through the Government accounts, are confined to the withdrawals against the amounts deposited in the Treasury for expenditure in India. In the case of the Brahmaputra-Sultanpur and Hurdwar-Dehra Railway Companies, the Secretary of State has guaranteed interest at the rate of 3 per cent. per annum out of the revenues of India on the actual capital expenditure charged in the accounts, whereas in the case of the other Companies there is no guarantee, but a "rebate" is allowed from traffic earnings on the main line under certain fixed limitations.

128. The overdraft shown against the Bengal-Nagpur Railway is due to the inclusion in the Capital account of the sum of Rx. 485,383 * expended by the State on the Katni-Umaria State Railway, which was subsequently taken over by the Company (vide para. 36 above), and to outlay in India on the extensions being met from rupee advances. The overdraft shown against the Indian Midland Railway is due to this latter cause. A sum of Rx. 1,657,841 expended by Government on the Bellary-Kistna State Railway, now incorporated in the Southern Mahratta Railway system, has not been included in the foregoing tables of expenditure. Similarly, a sum of Rx. 512,114 expended by Government on the Bareilly-Pilibhit and Lucknow-Sitapur Railways, prior to their transfer to the Rohilkhund-Kumaon Railway Company, has not been included in these statements. These items are classed, as originally charged, under 37.—Construction of Railways and 48.—State Railways—Construction, and are included in the expenditure dealt with in Section E.

Compared with Actuals of the previous year.

130. The increase of Rx. 912,350 in the expenditure during 1897-98 as compared with the outlay during 1896-97 occurred chiefly on the Bengal-Nagpur, Assam-Bengal and Burma Railways. The increase on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway was due to greater progress having been made on the construction of the Sini-Midnapore-Cuttack-Calcutta Extensions; the increase on the Assam-Bengal Railway to a large portion of the outlay on the line during the year having been charged to this head against the debentures raised, and that on the Burma Railways to the expenditure in the previous year from Company's funds being only that incurred from the 1st September 1896, when the line was handed over to the Company to the end of the official year. There were increases also on the South Behar, Mymensingh-Jamalpur, Brahmaputra-Sultanpur and Tapti Valley Railways due to the progress of construction on these lines, the last three were only started during the course of the previous year. The expenditure on the Hurdwar-Dehra Railway, which was commenced during the year, also helped to swell the increase. The principal decreases were on the Indian Midland Railway due to fluctuations in the stores accounts and on the Ahmedabad-Parantij Railway due to the construction of the line having been practically completed in the previous year.

Compared with Budget Estimate.

131. As compared with the Budget Estimate there was a lapse of Rx. 1,024,648. The principal variations are explained below :—

The lapse of Rx. 281,585 on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway was due entirely to short outlay to the extent of Rx. 441,853 on English stores owing to the Engineers' strike in England and to the delay in sending forward indents and in letting contracts for girders. There was, however, an excess of Rx. 160,268 over the provision made for expenditure in India due chiefly to the refund to Government of the cost of surveys undertaken in previous years in connection with the Sini-Midnapore-Cuttack-Calcutta Extensions and to greater progress of work on the extensions.

The lapse of Rx. 85,561 on the Southern Mahratta Railway occurred chiefly from the provision made for expenditure in England, and was due partly to indents not having been complied with in full, and to the annual indent for miscellaneous stores being less than the provision was made in the Budget Estimate. There was also a lapse on the provision made for expenditure in India due chiefly to the restriction of expenditure; to several new works not having been sanctioned, and to the postponement of the construction of a part of the additional rolling-stock owing to the late arrival of material from England.

The lapse on the Mysore State Railway is attributed to the orders of Government restricting expenditure in consequence of which several new works for which provision was made in the Budget Estimate were postponed, and several sanctioned works were held in abeyance.

The lapse on the Burma Railways was due chiefly to the construction of the Mandalay-Kunlon Railway not having been pushed on as rapidly as was anticipated owing to a large number of Engineering questions not having been finally settled.

The lapse of Rx. 81,275 on the South Behar Railway was due to the construction of station arrangements having been deferred as it was found necessary to employ all labour on the more important work of bridging; to the East Indian Railway having failed to return within the year a large quantity of permanent way material which it borrowed ; to earthwork not having been executed to the extent anticipated and to a stoppage of ballast-breaking operations at Kadjura in October 1897.

The lapses on the Mymensingh-Jamalpur and Brahmaputra-Sultanpur Branch Railways were due to the work of construction not having been pushed on to the extent anticipated.

The lapse of Rx. 615,635 on the Tapti Valley Railway was due partly to delay in making over land to the Railway authorities and partly to the progress of work having been retarded owing to the difficulty in obtaining labour in consequence of the plague restrictions.

The excess of Rx. 41,116 on the Indian Midland Railway was due to greater progress having been made with work on the Saugor-Katni Extension than was anticipated; to a portion of the cost of 14 new engines which it was expected would be accounted for in the previous year, having been brought to account in the year under review owing to their late arrival; and to smaller issues of stores to Revenue than were provided for.

The excess on the Lucknow-Bareilly Railway was due chiefly to larger expenditure on English stores and to smaller issues of stores to Revenue.

The excess on the Assam-Bengal Railway was due to a larger portion of the expenditure incurred on this Railway during the year having been charged to this head for the reasons stated in para. 98 above.

Compared with Revised Estimate.

132. The actuals work up very closely to the Revised Estimate in total, there being a lapse of only Rx. 7,148. The more important variations on individual lines are explained as under :—

The lapse of Rx. 93,185 on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway is attributed to girders and rails not having been received or paid for before the close of the year.

The lapse of Rx. 30,775 on the South Behar Railway was almost wholly due to the East Indian Railway having failed to return to the South Behar Railway within the official year a quantity of permanent way material borrowed, the debit for which remained on the books of the East Indian Railway.

The lapse of Rx. 12,274 on the Brahmaputra-Sultanpur Branch Railway was due to short deliveries of sleepers.

The excess of Rx. 147,647 on the Burma Railways was due to the transfer from the Government to the Company's Capital Account of Rx. 175,714 representing the balances in the suspense accounts on the 31st August 1896 which is referred to under Section E.

SECTION II.

Capital and Revenue Transactions.

133. The accounts reviewed in this section are those which are dealt with in this Department in connection with the following Railways belonging to Native States :—

Bhopal State Railway (Bhopal Section).
Khamgaon Railway.
Amraoti Railway.

134. It may be mentioned that this Department is not directly concerned with the transactions of the following Railways, and consequently they are not alluded to in this review :—

* Jodhpore-Bickaneer.
* Nagda-Ujjain.

135. An officer of the Public Works Accounts Department is lent to the Native States for the purpose of keeping the accounts of the Bhavnagar-Gondal-Junagad-Porbandar, Jamnagar, Dhrangadra and Jetalsar-Rajkot Railways, and the accounts of the lines marked with an asterisk are either kept by or supervised by Public Works Accounts officers.

BHOPAL STATE RAILWAY.

136. Capital.—The Bhopal State Railway is the joint property of the Imperial Government and the Bhopal State. The line connects Itarsi, on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, with Bhopal. The line runs for 13 miles through British territory and for 44 miles through the Native State of Bhopal.

137. Funds for the construction of this line were at first provided as follows:—

	Rx.
By the British Government	125,000
„ Bhopal State	500,000

But as further moneys were required to meet the cost of additional works and of alterations necessary to bring the line up to the standard necessary for dealing with the traffic anticipated on the opening of the Indian Midland Railway, and as Her Highness the Begum of Bhopal was not prepared to advance more than the 50 lakhs, it was decided to provide the necessary money from Imperial resources. The contribution made by the Durbar had all been utilised before the end of 1890-91, so that the expenditure incurred subsequently was met from grants under the head "48.—State Railways—Construction," and as such is reviewed in Section E.

138. The capital expended on the line to the close of 1897-98 amounted to Rx. 736,713 and has been found as follows:—

	Rx.
By the British Government	236,713
„ Bhopal State	500,000

139. Revenue.—The line is worked by the Indian Midland Railway on the following terms: on payment of such a sum as shall bear the same rate per cent. to the gross receipts of the Bhopal State Railway for any half-year as the aggregate working expenses of the amalgamated undertaking bear to the aggregate gross receipts of the amalgamated undertaking for the same half-year, plus 5 per cent. of the gross earnings for supply of rolling-stock. The earnings and expenses are adjusted by the calendar half-year, and the amounts included in the accounts for the official year 1897-98 represent the results of working during the calendar year 1897.

140. The revenue receipts and charges of the year are, under the terms of the agreement with the Durbar, divided between the British Government and the Bhopal State in the proportion of the capital contributed by each, and on this basis the division of the transactions of the year 1897 was as shown in the following table:—

	Government.	Bhopal State.	TOTAL.
	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.
Receipts	15,221	33,138	48,359
Expenditure	9,108	19,828	28,936
Net receipts .	6,113	13,310	19,423

141. The Durbar's share of the net earnings for the year is equivalent to a return of 2·66 per cent. per annum on the capital provided by the Durbar.

KHAMGAON AND AMRAOTI RAILWAYS.

142. Capital.— These railways have been constructed from funds provided from the surplus revenues of Berar. The Khamgaon Railway, 7½ miles in length, runs from Jalamb Station, on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, to Khamgaon; and the Amraoti Railway, 5¼ miles in length, connects Budnera on the same railway, with Amraoti.

143. The capital expended on these lines to the end of 1897-98 is as under :—

	To end of 1896-97.	During 1897-98.	Total to date.
	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.
Khamgaon Railway	52,260	—45	52,215
Amraoti „	45,112	133	45,245

144. Revenue.—Both these lines are worked by the Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company on the following terms : the payment to the Company of the same percentage of the gross receipts of the State line that the working expenses of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway and branch lines, taken together, bear to the earnings of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway and branch lines, plus 5 per cent. of the gross receipts of the State lines for the use of rolling-stock. The transactions are adjusted by the calendar half-year, and the results incorporated in the accounts of the year 1897-98 represent the transactions of the calendar year 1897.

145. The receipts and charges of the year 1897 are shown in the following table :—

	Receipts.	Expenditure.	Net Receipts.
	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.
Khamgaon Railway	4,650	3,260	1,390
Amraoti „	10,319	7,333	2,986

146. The net receipts represent returns of 2·66 and 6·60 per cent. per annum on the total capital expended on the Khamgaon and Amraoti Railways, respectively.

Comparison with Budget and Revised Estimates.

147. The actual capital outlay of the year compares with the Budget and Revised Estimates as under :—

Railway.	Actuals, 1897-98.	Revised Estimate.		Budget Estimate.
		Estimate.	Actuals, more or less.	Estimate.	Actuals, more or less.
	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.	Rx.

The differences are small and do not call for any detailed explanation.

148. The actual revenue transactions compare with the actuals of 1896-97 and the Budget and Revised Estimates as under :—

	Actuals, 1897-98.	Revised Estimate.		Budget Estimate.		Actuals, 1896-97.

Net Receipts .	2,986	2,900	+86	4,000	—1,014	4,287

149. The variations are too small to call for any detailed explanations. The decreases were generally due to smaller traffic and the increase on the Khamgaon Railway to higher charges by the working railway.

No. 890.—The following correspondence with Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India on the subject of the improvement of the position of the Judicial Service in India is published for general information:

No. 227, dated Simla, the 4th August, 1898.

From—The Government of India,

To—The Secretary of State for India.

We have the honour to forward, for Your Lordship's information, the papers entered in the enclosed list which contain representations regarding the necessity for taking measures to improve the position of the Judicial Service in Bengal, including that of the High Court at Calcutta. The Bengal Government, with its letter of 15th May 1897, forwarded to us letters from the British Indian Association, the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, and the Calcutta Trades Association, as well as memorials addressed to the Viceroy by certain District and Sessions Judges in Bengal. With the subsequent letters of 5th and 19th June 1897, the Government of Bengal forwarded memorials from other members of the Judicial Service in Bengal. In addition to the papers received from the Government of Bengal, we attach a minute by our Honourable Colleague Mr. Chalmers regarding the status of High Court Judges in India, and a letter addressed by the Chief Justice to the Viceroy upon the rules regarding salary, leave and pensions of Judges of the High Court at Calcutta.

2. The British Indian Association represent that the changes made of recent years in the salary and pension rules of the Judges of the High Court at Calcutta have been calculated to impair the efficiency of the highest tribunal and of the judicial administration generally in Bengal. The following matters are enumerated by the Association as being prejudicial to the proper administration of justice in the province:

(1) the reduction of the pay of a Puisne Judge from Rs. 50,000 to Rs. 45,000 per annum, with the result that the highest rate of pay to which a member of the Judicial Service can aspire is now less than that which members of the Board of Revenue in Bengal and the Civil Secretaries to the Government of India receive;

(2) the enhancement of the period within which the maximum pension admissible to a Chief Justice or Puisne Judge of the High Courts can be earned, and the reduction of the amount of pension admissible to a Chief Justice or Judge obliged to retire on medical certificate after 6 years and 9 months of actual service;

(3) Judges belonging to the Indian Civil Service are placed at a disadvantage compared to the other Judges of the High Courts, because they are subject, even if they have already earned their civil service annuities, to a deduction of 4 per cent. from their salaries on account of pension, and because a Civilian Judge, who has earned his civil service annuity, has to serve for 12½ years as a Judge of the High Court before he can earn any addition to it. The result has been that not a few of the more experienced members of the Judicial Branch of the Civil Service have retired on finding that the new rules leave them little hope of promotion to the High Court, and the Judicial Service has become unpopular.

The Bengal Chamber of Commerce, in addition to condemning the existing rates of salary and rules for pension, describe the present leave rules for Judges of the High Court as unreasonably stringent and often needlessly vexatious. The Chamber also, while observing that the equalizing of the salaries of Judges of the High Courts in different parts of India has not been carried out in the executive branch of the service, urge that the Calcutta High Court is the principal Court in India, and that the importance of the business which comes before this Court should justify a special scale of remuneration as well as of precedence to its Judges. The Chamber also represent that the ministerial establishments, both of the High Court and of the Courts in the interior, require to be strengthened and that they should be better paid.

The Committee of the Calcutta Trades Association state that it would seem that there has been at times some difficulty in finding suitable men willing to accept the offices of Chief Justice or Puisne Judge of the High Court, and, in view of the disastrous results to the administration of good government in India which would result from the lowering of the general status of the High Court at Calcutta, urge that no financial consideration should be allowed to stand in the way of offering such salaries, leave allowances, privileges, pensions, etc., as will induce men of ability to accept Judgeships of the High Court, and to use their knowledge for the benefit of the Government and people, while in the prime of life, with the assurance that due provision is made for their retirement at an age when other Government servants are enabled to leave India on adequate pensions.

3. The memorials from the members of the Indian Civil Service serving in the Judicial Branch in Bengal allege that the members of the Judicial Branch are discontented with their prospects, and that the junior members of the service show a strong disinclination to enter that branch. The grievances which are urged by the judicial officers of the service are—

(1) that they are blocked when they reach the post of first grade District Judge, because—

(a) they are excluded from special appointments under the Local Government and the Government of India, and

(b) substantive appointments in the High Court rarely become vacant owing to the fact that a Judge of the Court can retain his appointment for an indefinite period;

(2) that the salary of a High Court Judge has been reduced, while the period of service in the High Court necessary for the pension of £1,200 has been extended, and that the number of Judgeships open to members of the Indian Civil Service has been reduced from 6 to 5;

(3) that the leave rules are needlessly oppressive in the following particulars:

(a) a District Judge is permitted by the Civil Service Regulations to leave his district for 15 days of the Civil Court vacation without forfeiting his privilege leave, but the Local Government requires the Judge of a neighbouring district to take up and dispose of urgent applications for him during his absence. The effect is that a certain proportion of the District Judges cannot avail themselves of the vacation;

(b) a District Judge is not permitted to add executive holidays, occurring within the vacation, to his privilege leave, and is thus deprived of a privilege accorded to executive officers under Article 254 of the Civil Service Regulations;

(c) a District Judge taking privilege leave is only allowed half pay for the portion of such leave earned, since the last preceding vacation, the balance of the full pay being kept back for payment in case he does not take the next vacation.

4. The questions raised in these representations are very far-reaching and of great moment. They have been frequently under consideration before, and only a little more than two years ago in our Judicial Despatch No. 19 of 1st April 1896, we forwarded, for Your Lordship's information, a copy of a letter from our Home Secretary, dated 27th March 1896, to the Registrar of the High Court at Calcutta declining to consider proposals made by the Court to restore the position and privileges of High Court Judges to what they were when the Civil Service was first divided in Bengal into the judicial and executive branches, and to place both branches of the service upon a footing of perfect equality in the matter of leave rules. We have now again given to the matters raised in the papers forwarded herewith our most anxious consideration, and we shall proceed to inform Your Lordship of the conclusions to which we have come upon each of them.

5. The pay of the Puisne Judges of the Calcutta High Court used to be Rs. 50,000 a year, and that of the Puisne Judges of other High Courts Rs. 45,000. In his Financial Despatch No. 46, dated 12th February 1880 (paragraph 3), Lord Cranbrook observed: "The salary of a Puisne Judge at Calcutta is Rs. 50,000, and that of one in the other High Courts is Rs. 45,000. I am not aware of any sufficient reason for this difference, and shall be glad to learn whether you see any objection to the reduction of the salary of future Puisne Judges at the Calcutta High Court to the same amount as that of the others, which should in all cases be fixed at Rs. 43,200, the salaries of the civilian members being exempted from the deduction of 4 per cent., so that all, receiving a like pension for service in the High Court, will receive the same salary." The Government of India (as reported in their Financial Despatch No. 365 of 9th November 1880) were divided in opinion as to this proposal. The majority were of opinion that it would not be advisable to make the proposed reduction of pay. The Secretary of State concurred with the view of the minority that the arguments in favour of maintaining a difference between the pay of the Calcutta Judges and that of other High Court Judges were not sufficiently strong. He accordingly in his Judicial Despatch No. 7 of February 3rd, 1881, directed that the pay of future European Puisne Judges of all the High Courts should be fixed at Rs. 43,200 a year, the pay of the Civilian Judges being exempted from the annuity deduction of 4 per cent., and that of Native Judges being fixed so as to bear the same relation to the pay of the European Judges, as the pay of Native Civil Servants then bore to that of members of the Indian Civil Service. With their Judicial Despatch No. 8 of 13th February 1882 Lord Ripon's Government forwarded to the Marquess of Hartington memorials from certain members of the Judicial Branch of the Civil Service in Bengal praying for the modification of this decision and (paragraph 8) pressed upon him the propriety of restoring the salaries of the European Puisne Judges of the Calcutta High Court to their former scale. With their Despatch No. 15, of 9th May 1882, they forwarded a memorial on the same subject, signed on behalf of the Calcutta Bar, the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, the Trades Association of Calcutta, the British Indian Association, the National Muhammadan Association, and the Vakeels of the High Court, as well as a minute, dated 8th September 1881, addressed to the Government of India by the Chief Justice of the Court at Calcutta (Sir Richard Garth).

Lord Hartington reviewed the question in his Judicial Despatch No. 24 of August 3rd, 1882. His Lordship decided that the pay of the Judges of all the High Courts should be the same, but stated that the exact salary of the Indian Puisne Judges had not then been finally fixed by him. In his Judicial Despatch, of 25th January 1883, the Earl of Kimberley communicated his decision that there should be no distinction in the matter of salary between the Native Judges and the European Judges of the High Courts, and that the salaries of all Puisne Judges should be fixed at Rs. 45,000 a year. This decision did not make any reservation regarding the deduction from Civilian Judges on account of annuity, and those Judges who belong to the Indian Civil Service remain liable to the deduction of 4 per cent. towards their annuity. The latest orders of the Secretary of State on this question were conveyed in the Judicial Despatch from Lord Cross, No. 20, dated 4th June 1891.

6. The depreciation in the gold value of the rupee and the increase in the cost of living in India, which is most marked in the Presidency towns, have resulted in diminishing to a serious extent the attractions of the salary of a Puisne Judge of one of the High Courts in India. These considerations apply to all branches of the public service, but their effect is of course greater in the case of Europeans in good practice at the English or Indian Bar than in the case of members of a Government service. Your Lordship will observe that, in paragraph 15 of the Bengal Government's letter of 15th May 1897, Sir Alexander Mackenzie has expressed the opinion that it seems at least doubtful whether a change in the salary and the pension rules of the Puisne Judges of the Calcutta High Court is really necessary to secure the appointment of good men from the Bar. But, while he did not concur in the view that the Calcutta High Court are entitled to a status superior to that of the High Courts of the other Presidencies and of the North-Western Provinces, he urged that the pay of a Puisne Judge of the High Court at Calcutta might be fixed as Rs. 4,000 a month, on the ground that, under the system of separation of the Executive and Judicial Services in Bengal, it is necessary, in order to establish equality of prospects for the members of the two services, that the pay of the highest appointments in the Judicial Service should be on the same scale as that of similar appointments open to the Executive Service. He did not express any opinion on the question whether, in order to preserve equality in the pay of the High Court Judges throughout India, the present rate of pay should be increased to Rs. 4,000 elsewhere.

7. We are entirely in agreement with the decision contained in Lord Hartington's Despatch of the 3rd August 1882 that the pay of the Puisne Judges of the different High Courts should be the same. The proposal of Sir Alexander Mackenzie could not, therefore, in our opinion, be carried out in Calcutta alone. It is also our opinion that the need for improving the prospects of the Judges of the High Court exists not so much in the case of Judges who belong to the Indian Civil Service as in that of Europeans appointed from the Bar in England or in India. In Provinces other than Bengal the rate of pay of the highest executive offices below those of Lieutenant-Governor or Member of Council does not exceed that of a High Court Judge. In Bengal the members of the Board of Revenue receive a higher salary (Rs. 4,000 a month) than a Puisne Judge of the High Court, but they are only two in number, and there must under the law be at least five and may be six Civilian Judges in the Calcutta High Court. For these reasons we cannot regard the enhancement of the pay of Puisne Judges of the Calcutta High Court, who belong to the Indian Civil Service, as being necessary or desirable.

8. We admit that there are very strong arguments in favour of raising the salary of a Puisne Judge of a High Court in order to attract a competent member of the Bar in India or the United Kingdom. The scale of fees, however, paid for legal advice in India is so high that it has been impossible in the past, and will in our opinion be so in the future, to induce Barristers who are in the enjoyment of the best practices at the Indian Bar to accept a seat on the Bench of the High Court. We have experienced considerable difficulty in recent years in the selection of efficient Barristers from the Bar in India to officiate in temporary vacancies in the High Court at Calcutta, and the disinclination shown by Barristers who do not count among the leaders of the Bar to accept acting appointments in the Court has led us to form views different from those contained in the Despatch of Lord Lansdowne's Government, of 18th February 1890, as regards the possibility of recruiting European Barristers to any considerable extent from the Bar in India for service in the local High Courts. In view of the prospects of the leading Barristers at the Indian Bar, they are not, we think, likely to accept even permanent seats on the Bench in the future, while the recruitment of any but the leading Barristers in practice in this country must inevitably tend to make the Bar too strong for the Bench—a result which is in India fraught with even more disastrous consequences than would be the case in a country in which public opinion exerts more influence. While then we should be glad to support any reasonable change which would have the effect of making a seat on the High Court attractive to a Barrister of eminence at the Indian Bar, we fear that no change in the rates of pay which we could contemplate would be sufficient to have this effect.

9. The question of the rate of pay which will attract sound lawyers from the Bar in the United Kingdom who have not the prospect of attaining to the highest prizes in England is one upon which Your Lordship is better able to express an opinion than we are. In paragraph 10 of his Despatch of 3rd August 1882, Lord Hartington remarked: "I have further to observe that a considerable portion of the Puisne Judges of the High Court are appointed by Her Majesty from the Bar in England, and that nothing whatever has occurred here which could lead me to suppose that any difficulty would be experienced in obtaining for the High Court of Calcutta Barristers of equal efficiency with those who have served on the Bench of late years. I have every reason to believe that the salaries and pensions of High Court Judges on the scale of Madras and Bombay are regarded in this country as very liberal, and they are certainly in excess of those offered for Judicial Service in other dependencies or colonies of Her Majesty, even in those which are situated within the tropics." Your Lordship will observe that our Honourable Colleague Mr. Chalmers and Sir Francis Maclean, who are both from recent experience of the state of the Bar in England qualified to express an opinion as to the terms which are required to attract good men from it, consider that the present rate of pay for Puisne Judges is insufficient to attract the proper material from the Bar of the United Kingdom. We desire to avoid saying anything that may have the appearance of even hinting that the existing Puisne Judges of the different High Courts who have been selected from the Bar in the United Kingdom are not as efficient as their predecessors. We consider, indeed, that the High Courts have been singularly fortunate in many of the appointments which have been made to them from the United Kingdom in recent years, but we understand that recent experience may have led Your Lordship to form the opinion that appointments to the High Courts in India are not as attractive as they were when Lord Hartington wrote in 1882, and we apprehend that, if the rules as to pay, pension and leave of High Court Judges remain as they are, it may be found impossible in the future to attract men of good standing and practice at the English Bar, and versed in the traditions of the Courts at home. The difficulties in the way of increasing the pay in order to attract Judges of this description are that any change in the pay alone would require to be substantial to have any effect and that, while it is, in our opinion, unnecessary to increase the pay of Civilian or Native Judges, it is undesirable to give by a differentiation of salaries any ground for the opinion that one of the Puisne Judges of a High Court is superior or inferior to another. We prefer therefore to look to a modification of the pension rules and leave rules as the best and most effective means of rendering the appointment of a Judgeship in the High Courts in India more attractive to members of the Bar in the United Kingdom than it is at present.

10. There is not in our opinion the same objection to a differentiation of pensions that there is to a differentiation of salaries. An Indian Civilian has not infrequently completed the service requisite for his ordinary pension before he obtains a permanent appointment in a High Court, and the conditions of the appointment of a Barrister and of a member of the Indian Civil Service to the High Court are so different that a rule of retirement on pension, if fair for one, may be adopted without prejudicing him at all in relation to the other. In accordance with our views upon this point Your Lordship, in your Judicial Despatch of 10th September 1896, fixed the pension of a Native Judge of the Punjab Chief Court at a lower figure than that of Civilian or Barrister members of that Court. This is, however, not the case now with respect to the pensions of Native Judges of the High Courts. The pensions of Native Judges were by the rules published under the Secretary of State's orders contained in his Judicial Despatch No. 33, of the 15th December 1881, fixed at Rs. 9,000 a year after 11½ years' actual service compared with £1,200 in the case of a European Judge, and at Rs. 4,500 compared with £600 on medical certificate after 6 years and 9 months' actual service. Lord Dufferin's Government in their Despatch of 19th January 1886 recommended that the rules regarding the pensions of Native Judges might be assimilated to those which applied to their European colleagues, but Lord Kimberley was unable to accept this recommendation (Judicial Despatch No. 18, dated 27th May 1886). The concession was, however, made in connection with the recommendations of the Public Service Commission in paragraph 35 of Viscount Cross' Public Despatch No. 104, dated 12th September 1889.

11. The scale of pensions fixed in 1881 was revised in 1891. In connection with the report of the Special Committee of his Council upon Home Charges, Lord Cross (Judicial Despatch No. 23, dated July 11th, 1889) asked for the opinion of the Government of India upon the following questions:

(1) Should the pensions of all Puisne Judges (to be appointed in the future) be reduced, so that none of them shall exceed £1,000 a year? And should the pensions of the Chief Justices of these Courts also be reduced, say, to £1,500 for the Chief Justice of Bengal and £1,200 for the Chief Justice of Madras, etc., or to some other, and what sums?

(2) Whether the pensions are or are not reduced in amount, ought the term of service for pension, for Chief Justices and Puisnes alike to be increased, e.g., should the full pension be given only after (say) 15 years' actual service, and the half pension on medical certificate only after 8 years.

In making this reference His Lordship explained that the object to be kept in view was the reduction of expenditure so far as might be consistent with the due efficiency of the public service, and added that, though he wished the above-mentioned questions to be considered in particular, he would be glad to learn the views of Lord Lansdowne's Government upon any other points connected with the subject.

12. The recommendations of Lord Lansdowne's Government were contained in their Financial Despatch No. 39, dated 18th February 1890. They expressed the opinion that the rule which makes members of the Indian Civil Service eligible for an increased rate of pension had not infrequently had mischievous results in inducing Judges to remain in the service when it would have been to the interest of the public service that they should retire, and that the existing rate of pension was certainly extravagant for natives of India. They observed that if the amount of pension were reduced, the field of selection both of Covenanted Civilians and of persons eligible under the third and fourth categories enumerated in section 2, 24 & 25 Vict., Cap. 104, would remain the same, and, upon the information at their command, they were led to believe that the proposed reduction of the pension, both of Chief Justice and Puisne Judges would not affect prejudicially the quality of the Barristers who would accept seats in the High Court. They remarked: "So far as recruitment from the English Bar is concerned, we think it probable that quite as good men as are now obtained would accept High Court Judgeships on the terms suggested for our consideration, but upon this point Your Lordship will be able to obtain more accurate information from the Lord Chancellor and the Attorney and Solicitor General than is in our power to give. It may, however, be reasonably anticipated that the number of Judges who will be sent out from England is likely to diminish in coming years. At all the High Courts there is now a numerous Bar from whose ranks Puisne Judges may, and we think should, be recruited. If such appointments are made under proper conditions, the Government will obtain men who know the law of the country and have at least some acquaintance with the vernacular languages and with the customs of the people and native institutions. Such persons will also know the conditions of the service and of Indian life, and will accept Judgeships as a satisfactory termination to a fairly successful career at the Bar. It may be anticipated that many of them will not care to serve for full pensions, and that a satisfactory flow of promotion will thus be secured. It is probable also that, as time goes on, the number of Native Judges will be increased, and the observations which apply to the local Bar apply to them also, though it may be doubted whether they will retire as early."

For these reasons they recommended that, unless it appeared to the Secretary of State that the reduction of the pensions would prejudicially affect recruitment from the English Bar, the pension of Chief Justices should be reduced to £1,500 at Calcutta, and £1,200 elsewhere, and that of all Puisne Judges to £1,000, in the case of Judges appointed in the future, and that the invalid pensions should be reduced to £750, £600 and £500, respectively.

13. A further recommendation was that the period of service by which High Court Judges, not members of the Indian Civil Service, could qualify for full pension should be lengthened. "Experience," they remarked, "shows that many of them are not disposed to retire as soon as their present pension is earned, and it seems to us that fifteen years is by no means an excessive amount of service to require of Judges who come out to India with the prospect of retiring in middle life on a fair pension." They suggested that a graduated scale of pensions should be prescribed for Judges compelled to retire owing to ill-health after more than 8 years' service, and proposed alternatively that £60 should be added for each completed year of service after the eighth to the pension (£500) to be admissible to a Judge retired on account of ill-health after 8 years' service, or that there should be an intermediate rate of pension (say £750) after 12 years' service. They recommended that a corresponding provision should be made to meet the case of an invalided Chief Justice.

14. Lord Cross' decision was conveyed in his Judicial Despatch No. 16 of 14th May 1891. After consulting the Lord Chancellor and other persons, His Lordship determined not to reduce the amount of the full pension which thus remained at £1,800 in the case of the Chief Justice at Calcutta, £1,500 in the case of the Chief Justice of any other Court, and £1,200 in the case of a Puisne Judge; he, however, decided that, in the case of Chief Justices and Judges to be appointed in the future, the term of actual service qualifying for the full pension should be 14½ years instead of 11½ years. The scale of pension admissible on medical certificate after 6 years and 9 months' actual service was reduced to £700 a year in the case of the Chief Justice at Calcutta, £600 in the case of the Chief Justice of any other Court, and £500 in the case of a Puisne Judge. Graduated pensions on the following scale were also sanctioned after an actual service of 10 years:

Years of actual service.	Chief Justice, Calcutta.	Chief Justice elsewhere.	Puisne Judge.
10	1,200	1,000	800
10¾	1,320	1,100	880
11¾	1,440	1,200	960
12½	1,560	1,300	1,040
13½	1,680	1,400	1,120

15. In their letter No. 2359 of 2nd September 1891 the Judges of the High Court at Calcutta took exception to these rules and expressed their opinion that, if they were adhered to, there would be no longer any security that the necessary number of gentlemen competent to fill vacancies in the Calcutta High Court would be prepared to accept the appointments, and that the efficiency of the Court would be seriously impaired. Lord Lansdowne's Government forwarded this letter to the Secretary of State with their Despatch No. 323 (Finance and Commerce—Pensions), dated 2nd December 1891, and stated that they did not share the apprehensions of the Honourable Judges.

16. We have cited the correspondence regarding the change of the rules in regard to pension at some length, because we are of opinion that the increase in the term which must be served before the maximum pension can be earned is regarded by the Judges as one of the most serious of their grievances, and because we have been forced to the conclusion that a modification of the pension rules is very necessary, if the position of a High Court Judge is to continue to be attractive to a member of the English Bar. We have given the subject of the form which the modification of the existing rules should take our most careful consideration. While we think that the requirement that he must secure a period of 14½ years' actual service in order to earn the maximum pension may often be unsuitable in the case of a Chief Justice, and may turn the scale and prevent a good man from accepting a Puisne Judgeship, we recognize that it would be probably undesirable to reduce it at the present time. We would therefore propose that the maximum pension should, as now, be earned after 14½ years' service and that the present invalid pensions should not be altered. We would, however, propose that the pensions which can be earned between the completion of 10 years' actual service and the full term of 14½ years of such service should be improved in the case of Chief Justices and High Court Judges recruited from the Bar in the United Kingdom, and recommend the following scale:

Number of years' service.	Chief Justice of Calcutta.	Chief Justice of other High Courts.	Puisne Judge.
10 years	1,500	1,200	1,000
10¾ "	1,560	1,260	1,040
11¾ "	1,620	1,320	1,080
13½ "	1,740	1,440	1,160

17. We consider that this scale of pension should be strictly limited to Judges recruited from the Bar in the United Kingdom. We have already expressed our opinion that any reasonable change in the rate of salary paid to a High Court Judge would fail to attract the best men of the Indian Bar to serve in the High Courts. We are also of opinion that any reasonable change in the rules regarding pensions would be ineffectual. We do not therefore recommend the extension of this scale of pensions to Barristers recruited from any Bar outside the United Kingdom. Nor do we recommend any change in the scale of pensions admissible to either Native or Civilian Judges. There is, in our opinion, much to be said in favour of the view that Civilian Judges of the High Court should not be eligible for a higher pension than that admissible to those members of the service who attain to the high executive posts of Lieutenant-Governor, Member of Council or Chief Commissioner of a Province, but we are not prepared to recommend the abolition of the maximum pension either in the case of Civilian or Native Judges. In our opinion, however, the graduated scale, which we have suggested in the case of Barrister Judges recruited in the United Kingdom, is not required for either of these two classes of Judges.

18. It has been suggested that, in the case of Barristers appointed from England, who may shortly after their arrival in India desire, either for climatic or other reasons, to resign their appointments, it might be desirable to arrange for the payment of a lump sum down which would enable them to leave their appointments and return to England without loss before they become eligible for the pension admissible on medical certificate. We think this suggestion worthy of consideration. We are not in a position to determine what sum might be paid under such circumstances; but, if Your Lordship is in agreement with our view that the matter is worth pursuing, you will no doubt be able to ascertain what sum would be suitable.

19. The question of the pensions of Civilian Judges leads us to the consideration of the present conditions of appointment as they apply to Judges of the Indian Civil Service. The appointment of a Judge to a High Court is made (section 4 of 24 & 25 Vict., Cap. 104) "during Her Majesty's pleasure." In their Public Despatch No. 66, of the 19th October 1876, Lord Lytton's Government proposed that the rule which requires a member of the Indian Civil Service to retire after 35 years' service should apply to Civilian Judges of the High Courts on completion of 35 years' service either including or with the addition of so much service in the High Court as might suffice to earn the full pension of their post according to the rules for the time being. The Marquess of Salisbury, in his Public Despatch No. 16, of 22nd February 1877, saw no reason why in principle the rule of retirement applying to the Judges of the Chief Court in the Punjab should not apply to the Judges of the High Courts. His Lordship, however, observed that a practical difficulty arose from the peculiar form of their appointment, and that an Act of Parliament would be necessary to give binding effect to the change proposed. Lord Salisbury thought that the evils which the Government of India intended to guard against might be adequately checked by their abstaining from recommending for the High Court gentlemen whose period of service is approaching completion.

20. In their Despatch of 18th February 1890 Lord Lansdowne's Government, as has been already noticed, referred to the mischievous results which had at times ensued from Judges remaining in the service when it would have been to the interest of the public service that they should retire. The present substantive Civilian Judges of the Calcutta High Court are:

	Date of arrival in India.	Date of substantive appointment to High Court.
Sir Henry Prinsep	... 7th December 1855 ...	22nd August 1878.
Mr. Macpherson	... 30th November 1856 ...	10th January 1885.
" J. O'Kinealy	... 2nd February 1862 ...	10th February 1883.
" Rampini	... 29th November 1864 ...	20th April 1893.
" J. F. Stevens	... 16th October 1865 ...	14th December 1897.

Sir Henry Prinsep has over 42 and Mr. Macpherson over 41 years' service. Until Mr. Rampini was appointed to a substantive vacancy in 1893, a member of the Indian Civil Service had not succeeded to a permanent Judgeship since 1885, and only two such appointments have been made in the last 12 years. The result has been that many hardworking and deserving District and Sessions Judges have of recent years retired from the service rather than wait on in what appeared to them to be the forlorn hope of succeeding to a seat in the High Court. The resignation of these officers has left an extremely small field of choice for vacancies which are likely to occur in the near future. Although this state of things does not at the present time prevail in other provinces, there have been instances outside Bengal in which the efficiency of the Judicial Service and the just expectations of District and Sessions Judges have been prejudiced by Civilian Judges of the High Court continuing to hold office for a very long period. With reference to Lord Salisbury's suggestion that gentlemen whose period of service is approaching completion should not be recommended for appointment to the High Court, we would point out that none of the three senior Judges now in the Calcutta High Court, nor Messrs. Tottenham and Beverley, the last two Civilian Judges who have retired from that Court, were appointed to the Court permanently when they were nearly completing their 35 years' service, and that it is important that a member of the Indian Civil Service should prove his suitability for the appointment of High Court Judge by officiating in a temporary vacancy before he is permanently appointed to the office. It appears to us to be difficult to overlook the claims to permanent appointment of senior District and Sessions Judges who are of good service and have officiated in the Court with special credit and efficiency, unless they happen to be on the verge of completing their 35 years' service. We are therefore unable to think that the difficulties which arise from time to time under the present arrangements can be removed in the manner suggested by Lord Salisbury. We are, however, of opinion that it is most desirable to remove them by laying down a rule to apply to all Civilian Judges appointed in the future; that a Civilian Judge of a High Court must retire at the end of 35 years' service, or, if he has not completed 5 years as a permanent Judge of the High Court, when he completes his 35 years' service, then on the completion of 5 years from the date of his permanent appointment to the Court. If Your Lordship is of the same opinion as Lord Salisbury as to the need of Parliamentary legislation in order to give effect to this reform, we would ask that such legislation should be undertaken. We would, however, suggest to Your Lordship that it might be possible within the terms of section 4 of 24 & 25 Vict., Cap. 104, for Her Majesty to appoint Civilian Judges to the High Court subject to the conditions we have stated. Under the terms of his covenant the service of a member of the Indian Civil Service continues during the pleasure of Her Majesty, Her Heirs and Successors, and the covenant itself contains no requirement that the covenantor must retire on the completion of 35 years' service. The appointment too of ordinary members of the Council of the Governor General is made by Her Majesty by warrant, and the warrant fixes no term within which the functions of the member shall be terminated. But in accordance with established usage, a Member of Council vacates his appointment on the completion of 5 years' service in it.

21. The next question to which we have to refer is the incidence of the restrictions which the Civil Service Regulations impose on the enjoyment of privilege leave by judicial officers and others who have an annual vacation. The manner in which the Judges of the High Court and the other members of the Judicial Service are respectively affected by these restrictions is different, but the rules are regarded as irksome and unnecessary by all to whom they apply and tend, we are convinced, to deter those who would otherwise join the Judicial Service from doing so.

22. Taking first the question as it affects Judges of the High Courts, we would observe that rules on the subject of privilege leave were framed in 1871, and were issued under section 6 of the Indian High Courts Act, 1861 (24 & 25 Vict., Cap. 104), with the approval of the Secretary of State conveyed in Lord Salisbury's Despatch No. 43, dated the 11th October of that year. In accordance with those rules a High Court Judge was, subject to the exigencies of the service and the condition of urgent necessity, allowed one month's privilege leave, on full pay and counting as service, for every continuous period of eleven months (vacation included) spent on duty, the only further restriction imposed being the usual prohibition against the accumulation of such leave for more than three months at a time. Six years later, attention was directed to the question of the practice followed by the Judges of adding the vacation to privilege leave taken immediately before or after it—a practice with which there was nothing in the rules to interfere, and also to the difficulty and laxity said to have resulted in interpreting the condition as to the existence of "urgent necessity." It was in consequence proposed in the Financial Despatch* of Lord Lytton's Government, No. 234, dated the 6th August 1877, to amend the rules so as to abolish the condition as to "urgent necessity" and to check the practice above referred to by rendering only half pay admissible to a Judge while on privilege leave for any period in excess of the time which he might have spent on duty while the rest of the Court was in vacation, the whole period so spent being, however, allowed, as before, to count towards actual service. Lord Salisbury, in dealing with this proposal, in his Despatch No. 39, dated the 25th October 1877, suggested that the rule should be that a Judge, who, by reason of his being required to remain in attendance in Court during vacation, was not relieved of his duties for one month in any year, might be permitted to take privilege leave in respect of that year on the usual terms and combine it with any subsequent vacation; but that this last concession should be claimable only once in three years. Lord Lytton's Government pointed out in their Despatch No. 125, dated the 8th May 1879, that the effect of such an amendment of the rules would be to prevent a Judge from taking short leave, except during the vacation, without prejudicing his claims to furlough. The Secretary of State, however, while consenting, in deference to this representation, to the application to the High Court Judges, then on the Bench, of the rules favoured by the Government of India, decided, in his Despatch No. 18, dated the 21st August 1879, that, in the case of Judges appointed thereafter, privilege leave, if granted, should be for no more than one month in the year; that it should be incapable of accumulation; that it should be without pay except in the case of a Judge who had not enjoyed the ordinary vacation in the previous year, and that it should not, save under the circumstances just adverted to, be added to the vacation. On these lines the statutory rules on the subject were eventually settled, the chief modification since introduced being that once in three years, and not oftener, privilege leave may be prefixed or affixed to the vacation. The existing rules are reproduced in Article 600 (16) of the Civil Service Regulations. The Honourable Sir Henry Prinsep is now the only High Court Judge who is serving under the more favourable rules recommended by the Government of India which are embodied in Article 600 (18) of the Civil Service Regulations. We desire to ask for a reconsideration of the question and to urge that these more advantageous rules be extended to all the Judges of the High Courts now on the Bench or hereafter to be appointed. There is, however, one modification which we would here introduce. A tendency on the part of the Judges to prolong the annual recess has been noticed and may, perhaps, to some extent, be attributed to the curtailment by the Government of their privileges in the matter of regular leave. In some of the High Courts the long vacation now extends to almost two-and-a-half months, and, if the privileges referred to be restored, we think that it might be made a condition of their restoration that the long vacation be confined within more reasonable limits. We would, in a word, expressly provide that not more than two months' vacation may be combined with leave granted under the amended statutory rules.

23. The next question is that of the addition by High Court Judges of vacation to furlough. The attention of the Government of India was some years ago directed to the practice, in vogue in the Calcutta High Court, of combining these two classes of leave in a manner peculiarly advantageous to the Judges, and the Secretary of State was addressed on the subject in the Despatch of Lord Lansdowne's Government, No. 259, dated the 26th August 1890. The Government of India then observed that it had been not unusual for the Calcutta Judges to proceed on furlough, intending on the expiration thereof to remain continuously absent in the enjoyment of the annual vacation, and the receipt of full pay. In such a case it was pointed out, the officiating Judge, if any, was required to vacate at the commencement of the recess, so that, although the absentee reverted to full pay before his actual return to this country, no additional expense was incurred through the prolongation of his absence. As, however, the rules expressly forbade the combination of privilege leave with vacation except as provided in Article 600 (16) (b) of the Civil Service Regulations, Lord Lansdowne's Government suggested that it might be considered whether an analogous restriction ought not to be applied to furlough, Article 600 (24) being amended with that object. Lord Cross, in his Judicial Despatch No. 58, dated the 11th December 1890, expressed the opinion that a Judge on furlough ought not to be allowed, while out of India, to revert to full pay merely by reason of the arrival of a certain date marking the commencement of the vacation; but His Lordship thought that the adoption of the suggestion under consideration might be felt to entail some hardship, and he suggested that the case might be met by providing that a Judge, who is absent on furlough out of India, should not revert to full pay until he reports his return to duty, and should, in the event of his absence being prolonged during any part of the vacation, receive furlough pay for such period. Article 600 (24) was thereupon altered in accordance with this suggestion, it being at the same time made clear that absence during vacation should continue to count as actual service.

24. We are fully sensible of the fact that the decision imposing this restriction on the Judges was arrived at at a comparatively recent time, and that any proposal for reversing it would be out of order unless justified by reasons of marked cogency. We believe, however, that the circumstances already adverted to by us are sufficient to furnish such reasons. The restriction in question has undoubtedly aroused a sense of injury amounting almost to resentment among the Judges, and the existence of such a feeling must of itself be a misfortune; it has in its application caused obvious personal hardship; and its imposition has attracted the notice of the public. It has happened, as the Calcutta Chamber of Commerce have observed, that a Judge, feeling himself unable to incur the loss of pay involved in his continued absence in England after the commencement of the vacation, has returned from furlough to find the Court closed, his services not required, and himself at liberty to while away the recess at some hill-station in India instead of in England. The rule, to which such a result is to be attributed, appears especially harsh and unreasonable to Englishmen in this country, not only to the Judges who are affected by it, but also to the non-official European community. The State gains nothing by the withdrawal of the privilege that the Judges formerly enjoyed in this respect, and it seems to us that its restoration would be politic and free from substantial objection of any kind. We earnestly trust, then, that Your Lordship will be prepared to consider our suggestion that, subject to the same condition regarding the maximum period of vacation as that put forward above in connection with the combination of privilege leave with vacation, the privilege formerly enjoyed by the Judges in this respect may be restored to them.

25. It has been urged that the rules regulating the grant of privilege and vacation leave, as they affect District and Sessions Judges, are very unfavourable and impose needless and vexatious restrictions on the officers concerned. The matter was touched upon by Sir Henry Fowler in his Judicial Despatch No. 5, dated the 21st February 1895, in which certain memorials submitted by judicial officers serving in the Lower Provinces of Bengal were disposed of. In that Despatch Your Lordship's predecessor accepted the opinion of this Government that the rules referred to were sufficiently liberal in most Provinces; but Sir Henry Fowler was not satisfied that this was the case in Bengal, and, on further consideration, we ourselves are led to the conclusion that, not only in Bengal, but generally, the existing orders are less advantageous and more irksome than they ought to be. The Civil Courts are allowed, and we believe always must be allowed, an annual recess of some duration, even if it be only in deference to the wishes of the legal profession and the public and apart from any consideration of the necessity for affording Judges some regular respite from duties which are admittedly of a peculiarly arduous and trying, because sedentary and monotonous, character. The vacation enjoyed by the subordinate Civil Courts in this country is approximately one month, and, owing to its existence and the presumption that District and Sessions Judges avail themselves of it, it is laid down by Article 306 of the Civil Service Regulations that privilege leave is not admissible to such officers, save in cases of urgent necessity, when it may be granted on half pay, subject to the condition that it shall in no case be combined with the vacation. But a Sessions Judge is required to dispose of a certain amount of criminal work during the periodical vacations, and, as if to meet his case more fully, Article 308 declares him eligible for privilege leave under the ordinary rules, provided that he certifies that he has not been absent from his station for more than fifteen days of the recess. The result, then, is that a District and Sessions Judge must remain at his post, even if, owing to the Civil Courts being closed, he has little or no regular work to do, throughout half of the vacation in order to retain his right to privilege leave under the ordinary rules. The vacation usually includes a number of public holidays allowed to all officers, executive as well as judicial, so that the advantage to the latter is really less than appears at first sight; and, while it is open to an executive officer to add those holidays to his privilege leave under the conditions prescribed by Article 254 of the Civil Service Regulations, it is held that it is not open to a judicial officer to do so, because such holidays are "vacation," and Article 306, as noticed above, peremptorily forbids the combination of privilege leave with vacation. Moreover, owing to the presumption—which is scarcely justified by the facts—that a District and Sessions Judge will avail himself of the recess, it is ruled in the note to Article 307 that no certificate of title to privilege leave, save in the case of urgent necessity, can be given for the period of service rendered between two vacations until the second vacation arrives; and thus, in respect of such leave earned during that period, only half pay may in the first instance be drawn, the other half being made good on the expiration of the second vacation, but not till then, if the actual event rebuts the presumption.

26. We are fully satisfied that these rules are, as a matter of fact, keenly felt by judicial officers to be unnecessarily harassing and illiberal. They do not result in any material saving of expense, and we think that, in order to prevent irritation and discontent, the restrictions which they involve should be removed. In the result judicial officers would, no doubt, have some advantage over their executive colleagues in the matter of leave; but we recognize that the Judicial Branch requires the adventitious aid of some such advantages to make it less unpopular and unattractive and to render its efficient recruitment a matter of less difficulty than hitherto. We propose, then, if Your Lordship approves, to amend the Civil Service Regulations so as to remove as far as possible all obstacles in the way of the enjoyment of the usual Civil Court vacation and to provide that its incidence shall in no way affect the grant of regular leave. The only conditions, which we would insist upon in connection with District and Sessions Judges availing themselves of these vacations, are—

(1) that suitable arrangements should in each instance be proposed by the District and Sessions Judge concerned, approved by the High Court, and made, for the disposal during the vacation of any criminal work requiring attention; and

(2) that a District and Sessions Judge should obtain the express permission of the Local Government to avail himself, without prejudice to his regular leave, of so much of the vacation as is not needed for the disposal of criminal business.

Subject to these conditions, we would allow full advantage to be taken of the vacations and would permit them to be combined with regular leave whenever such a combination can be arranged under Article 254 of the Civil Service Regulations so as to involve no additional expenditure.

27. So far we have dealt with the matter of vacation only in connection with Judges of the High Court and District and Sessions Judges. But this at once brings us face to face with the question whether the concessions, which we now advocate, should be confined to them alone or extended to other officers serving in Departments in which regular recesses are recognized. Our conclusion is that they ought to be so extended. In every case it will be found that a vacation is allowed for other reasons than the convenience and advantage of the officials concerned. Thus, to take that of the Education Department, it will readily be admitted that an annual recess must be made allowance for in accordance with universal custom and in the interests of the students quite as much as, if not more than, in the interests of the teachers or lecturers. And to make that recess take the place of, and oust the right to, privilege leave altogether is to tie the officers of the Department down to enjoy a holiday only at a certain time of the year and, in our opinion, places them at a grave disadvantage. On the other hand, the conditions of service in the Education and other Departments concerned are by no means specially attractive, and we are strongly of opinion that the State will gain by bestowing on them such small concessions as those we now propose.

28. Your Lordship will observe that one of the complaints of the British Indian Association is that the Civilian Judges are placed under a special and peculiar disadvantage as compared with their Barrister and Native colleagues in that even if they have earned their Civil Service annuities, they are still subject to a deduction of 4 per cent. on their salaries on account of pension. The effect of this deduction is to practically reduce the salary of the Civilian Judge to Rs. 3,600 a month. With reference to this matter, we would observe that the decision in the Secretary of State's Judicial Despatch No. 7, of 3rd February 1881, was that the pay of European Puisne Judges of all the High Courts should be fixed at Rs. 43,200 a year, the pay of Civilian Judges being exempted from the annuity deduction of 4 per cent. If this decision had been maintained, all Puisne Judges would now be receiving the salary paid to Puisne Judges who are members of the Indian Civil Service. In paragraph 12 of his Despatch of August 3rd, 1882, Lord, Hartington explained the reasons which had led to the decision to place the pay of an European Puisne Judge of a High Court at Rs. 43,200 and to require no contribution for pension from Civilian Judges.

29. In consequence of the decision in paragraph 35 of the Public Despatch from Lord Cross, No. 104, dated 12th September 1889, that no distinction should be maintained in the case of Puisne Judges of the High Courts in regard to salary, leave, or pension, the Civilian Judges of the Calcutta High Court made a representation asking that, even if the deduction of 4 per cent. from their salaries should not cease from the date of appointment to the Bench of the High Courts, it should not be continued after they had served long enough to earn the Civilians' annuity of £1,000 a year. The matter was referred to the Secretary of State in the Judicial Despatch of Lord Lansdowne's Government, No. 13, dated 25th March 1891. The Government of India had no recommendation to make in favour of a change in the existing practice, and in his Judicial Despatch No. 20, of 4th June 1891, Lord Cross expressed his concurrence in this view. Your Lordship will notice that, while the Civilian Judges of the High Courts would share in the concessions which we suggest as regards the abolition of the existing restrictions on privilege leave, we propose for Barrister Judges recruited from home more favourable terms as regards pension. Moreover, although the proposal to require Civilian Judges of the High Court to retire after 35 years' service, provided that they have served as substantive Judges of the High Court for 5 years, should be of benefit to the Judicial Service as a whole, we can quite understand that it may be regarded as a hardship by individuals who may succeed to the High Court in the future. We therefore think it desirable that some concession should be made to the Civilian Judges of the High Courts, and we think that it would remove an unpopular condition of the service and one which does create what seems to us an unnecessary difference between the conditions of service of Puisne Judges of the High Courts of different places, if the salaries of such Judges as are members of the Indian Civil Service are in future exempted, like those of Members of Council, from the 4 per cent. deduction for pension. We recommend this proposal for Your Lordship's sanction.

30. Your Lordship will observe that one proposal contained in the memorials of the judicial officers is that the pay of four of the existing District and Sessions Judgeships should be raised from Rs. 2,500 to Rs. 2,750 a month, and that the pay of the Legal Remembrancer should be raised from Rs. 2,500 rising to Rs. 3,000 by annual increments of Rs. 100 a month to Rs. 3,000 a month. Sir Alexander Mackenzie thought that the best course would be to convert two of the present Judgeships into appointments on Rs. 3,000 a month to be filled by selection for merit, and to raise the Legal Remembrancer's pay to Rs. 3,000. He pointed out that there are two District Judgeships on Rs. 3,000 in the North-Western Provinces, and urged that the creation of these appointments and the increase in the pay of the Legal Remembrancer would only cost Rs. 15,000 a year. We fully concur with the view of the late Lieutenant-Governor that it is a defect in the present scale of judicial appointments in Bengal that there is no purely judicial appointment between a first grade District Judgeship on Rs 2,500 and a Puisne Judgeship in the High Court on Rs. 3,750. The permanent scale of District and Sessions Judgeships in Bengal is 15 on Rs. 2,500 and 15 on Rs. 2,000, and this is more favourable than it need be to the more junior members of the Judicial Service. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh there are, including the Legal Remembrancer, who is graded with District and Sessions Judges, two District and Sessions Judgeships on Rs. 3,000, seven on Rs. 2,500, six on Rs. 2,250, ten on Rs. 1,833⅓ and three on Rs. 1,666⅔. The average pay of a District and Sessions Judge in Bengal is Rs. 2,250; and in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Rs. 2,155. We do not think it necessary to create two appointments in Bengal on Rs. 3,000, and prefer the suggestion of the judicial officers who have memorialized us that four appointments should be created on Rs. 2,750. As we have just observed, the average pay of District and Sessions Judges in Bengal is already higher than that of District and Sessions Judges in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and we do not consider it desirable to increase this difference by adding to the four highest appointments without reducing some of the lower ones. We think that the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal should arrange for the regrading of the District and Sessions Judgeships in the following or a somewhat similar manner:

	Rs.
First grade, 4 on	2,750
Second grade, 11 on	2,500
Third grade, 10 on	2,000
Fourth grade, 5 on	1,800

The sum requisite for creating a first grade on Rs. 2,750 will thus be secured without any increase of expenditure. We do not consider it necessary to alter the pay of the Legal Remembrancer. It appears to us that the Lieutenant-Governor would always be able to get one of his best Judges on Rs. 2,750 to take this appointment on Rs. 2,500 to Rs. 3,000. We have not suggested to the Lieutenant-Governor the regrading set out above, but would ask Your Lordship's sanction to effecting this re-arrangement of salaries or any other which approves itself to the Lieutenant-Governor and ourselves and can be carried out without increase of expenditure.

Judicial,

No. 18.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor General of India in Council.

MY LORD,

Improvement of the position of the Judges of the High Courts, and removal of certain grievances affecting the Judicial Service in Bengal.

I have considered in Council the letter of Your Excellency's predecessor, No. 227 (Finance and Commerce), dated the 4th August last, in which your Government bring to my notice certain representations which have been made regarding the necessity for taking measures to improve the position of the Judges of the several High Courts in India, and for removing certain grievances which are alleged to impair the efficiency of the Judicial Service in Bengal. The correspondence on the first of these two subjects relates immediately to the High Court at Calcutta, and among the enclosures of the letter there are no communications from other Governments in whose territories High Courts exist, showing whether similar measures are required there; but it is recognised, in paragraph 7 of the letter, that any proposals for a change in the present rules regulating pay, pensions, and leave in the case of the Calcutta Court could not be carried out for that Court alone, and that it is therefore necessary to treat the case as affecting all the High Courts in India.

2. Your Government are of opinion that, although it must be admitted that, owing to the depreciation of the rupee and the increase in the cost of living in India, especially in Presidency towns, which have occurred since the present salaries were fixed, the attractions offered by a puisne judgeship in a High Court have been diminished to a serious extent, there is no ground for considering the enhancement of the pay of Puisne Judges who belong to the Indian Civil Service, or of Native Puisne Judges, to be necessary or desirable. You think, however, that in the case of Judges drawn from the Bar in England and India there are strong arguments in favour of raising the salary. But in the case of the Indian Bar, you believe that no change in the rate of pay which you could reasonably contemplate would have the effect of rendering a seat in a High Court attractive to a barrister of eminence, and you do not, therefore, propose any. To increase the pay in the case of appointments made only from home would, you consider, be open to objection because a differentiation of salaries might give rise to the opinion that one class of Puisne Judges was superior or inferior to another. You propose, therefore, to secure that increase of the attractiveness of a seat in a High Court to members of the Bar in the United Kingdom which you hold to be necessary by means of a modification of the pension and leave rules. In the case of the modifications proposed in the pension rules, you think that they should be strictly limited to Judges recruited from the Bar in the United Kingdom, while the changes in the leave rules which you advocate are apparently intended to be of general application. While not proposing any limitation of tenure in the case of Barrister or Native Judges, you think that all Civilian Judges appointed in the future should be made subject to a rule that a Judge, like any other member of the Indian Civil Service except Lieutenant-Governors and Members of Council, must retire at the end of 35 years' service, or, if he has not completed five years as a permanent Judge of the High Court by that time, then on the completion of five years from the date of his permanent appointment to the Court; and you recommend that, if it is considered that Parliamentary legislation is required in order to give effect to this reform, such legislation should be undertaken.

3. I have given these recommendations that careful consideration which the importance of the subject demands. There can be no question that the Government in India is vitally interested in securing for the bench of the highest Courts in the country the best possible standard of professional ability, vigour, and intellectual capacity in the Judges; and I agree with Your Excellency's Government that, in consequence of the causes to which you have referred, it has of recent years become increasingly difficult to induce men of the necessary qualifications in this country to accept a seat in the Courts. I also entirely agree that, for the reason stated by Lord Hartington in his Despatch No. 24, of the 3rd August 1882, it is not possible to make a distinction between the Puisne Judges of the different High Courts in India, and that any increased advantages, which it may be thought necessary to grant, should be applicable to all alike.

4. I am not, however, able to accept the proposal that differential treatment should be applied to Judges of the High Courts according as they are recruited from the Bar of the United Kingdom on the one hand, and from the Civil Service, the Indian or Native Bar, or the Provincial Judicial Service on the other. It appears to me that any such difference would lead to a feeling of dissatisfaction among those who are placed in an inferior position, and thus tend to disturb the harmony of the Courts, besides being inconsistent with the decision given, in paragraph 35 of his Despatch No. 104, dated the 12th September 1889, by Lord Cross in announcing the conclusions of Her Majesty's Government upon the Report of the Public Service Commission. With reference to the Indian Bar in particular, in regard to what is said in paragraph 17 of the letter under reply, I must remind Your Excellency that two Chief Justices have recently been drawn from that source, and that any refusal of equal advantages with those offered to their fellow barristers who have practised at home would probably be much resented by barristers in India. Nor does it seem to me that any distinction should be made in the case of Civilian Judges. All alike perform the same functions and hold office under Her Majesty's Patent; and any difference of treatment would, in my opinion, be likely to prejudice the smooth working of the Courts. For these reasons I consider that one set of rules should be applicable to all Judges of the Courts, whether in respect of pay, pension, age of retirement, or leave privileges.

5. I recognise the force of the arguments used in paragraphs 6 to 9 of your letter against any general increase in the salaries of Puisne Judges. Except in Calcutta their salary has always been Rs. 45,000 a year, as at present. But the reduction made in Calcutta in 1881 from Rs. 50,000 to the lower figure has undoubtedly created a feeling of dissatisfaction in that, by far the largest, Court; and the salaries as now fixed compare unfavourably with those drawn by Members of the Board of Revenue at Calcutta and Secretaries to the Government of India, which are Rs. 48,000 a year. The raising of the salaries of the Puisne Judges generally from Rs. 3,750 to Rs. 4,000 a month seems therefore to me a desirable measure, as tending to remove inequalities which have an invidious appearance between offices of like importance and dignity in the judicial and in the executive line, respectively, and in some degree compensating for the greater expensiveness of living which is generally admitted to have been a marked feature of recent years in the Presidency towns. I have accordingly decided that, from the commencement of the financial year 1899-1900, the salary of a Puisne Judge of a High Court in India shall be Rs. 4,000 a month.

6. I notice that in his memorandum forwarded with your letter Mr. M. D. Chalmers suggests a substantial increase in the outfit allowance given to Judges appointed in England. The question is not referred to in the letter, and I do not at present see any reason for reconsidering the existing scale of outfit allowances, which applies to many other officers besides Judges, and was the result of much deliberation.

7. In paragraph 29 of the letter it is recommended that in the case of Civilian Judges of the High Court the 4 per cent. deduction for annuity at present levied be in future foregone. I regret that I am unable to accede to this recommendation. The deduction is one of the conditions of an Indian Civilian's covenant, and it is in virtue of his position under the covenant as a member of the Indian Civil Service that he obtains a seat in the Court. I do not consider that liability to this form of insurance creates any such distinction between a Civilian and a non-Civilian Puisne Judge as to call for special orders relieving the former from an obligation to which all other members of his service are subject.

8. I have carefully considered the proposal made in your 20th paragraph that Civilian Judges should be compulsorily retired after 35 years' service, or, if they have not then completed five years' service in the Court, after the completion of that period. It appears to me, for the reasons before stated, that it would create an undesirable inequality between different Judges in the conditions of tenure of appointment if such a rule were made for Civilians alone. I recognise, however, the force of the arguments adduced in favour of the change, and I think that the result desired may be attained in another way. It seemed to me that a rule prescribing retirement at a fixed age, applicable to Civilian and other Judges alike, would be likely to have a good result in promoting the efficiency of the Judicial Bench; and I have ascertained that it will be sufficient if notice is given to a Judge on accepting the appointment that he is expected to resign on attaining the age of 60. I enclose a copy of a Resolution in Council to this effect which has been recorded in this Office, and will be communicated to any person to whom an offer of a judgeship is in future made in this country. It will be for Your Excellency's Government to arrange that a similar communication is made officially to any person in India selected for the High Court Bench before he accepts office, and that an acceptance of the condition stated in it is obtained and duly recorded. As the average age at which Civilians now enter the service is 24,* 35 years' service brings an officer to 59. I do not think it would be expedient, in the case of a high judicial officer, like a Judge of the High Court, to admit the possibility of making an exception to the rule of retirement on attaining the age limit, and it should therefore be understood that no relaxation of the rules is practicable.

* Vide Home Department letter No. 86, dated 10th November 1898, paragraph 9.

9. Turning now to the proposals made as regards pensions, I understand that your Government are of opinion that the extension in 1891 of the time required to be served for full pension from 11½ to 14½ years has not worked satisfactorily, and that the most desirable course would be to revert to the former term and the other conditions as they stood before that date. It is said that "the increase in the term which must be served before the maximum pension can be earned is regarded by the Judges as one of the most serious of their grievances," and that you "have been forced to the conclusion that a modification of the pension rules is very necessary if the position of a High Court Judge is to continue to be attractive to a member of the English Bar." In these circumstances the proposal, put forward in your 16th paragraph, to retain the present term of service for the maximum pension, but to give somewhat better graduated pensions at earlier dates, is, I assume, suggested only in order to avoid the appearance of reversing a decision deliberately arrived at eight years ago. After the fullest consideration of this part of the subject, I have come to the conclusion that the system of graduated pensions, advancing by substantial amounts after short additional terms of service, is, upon the whole, open to objection, as likely to afford an inducement to a man whose health and powers are failing to remain at his post longer than is either safe or expedient. I think it best, therefore, to return to the conditions as they stood before the change of 1891, any Judge now on the Bench being allowed the option, if he desires it, of adhering to the rules then introduced. Accordingly, except in cases where this option is exercised, graduation will disappear, the old period of 11½ years' service for maximum pension will be reverted to, and the only pension claimable for a shorter term will be the half pension obtainable on medical certificate after 6¾ years' service.

10. In paragraph 18 of the letter you suggest for my consideration a proposal that, in the case of barristers appointed from England, who may shortly after their arrival desire, either for climatic or other reasons, to resign their appointments, a lump sum should be fixed which would enable them to return to England without loss before they become eligible for a pension on medical certificate. It does not appear to me that such an arrangement would be expedient; it is not desirable that a person who, after due deliberation, has accepted an important post in India should have facilities offered him for reconsidering his decision.

11. The remaining proposals affecting Judges of the High Court relate to privilege leave and the combination of the annual vacation therewith and with furlough. It is urged that as regards privilege leave, the rules advocated by Lord Lytton's Government in 1877, and embodied in Clause 18 of Article 603 of the Civil Service Regulations (which now apply only to one Judge, Sir H. T. Prinsep, of the Calcutta Court), should be substituted for those contained in Clause 16 of the same Article, on the understanding that not more than two months' vacation may be combined with privilege leave. I have carefully considered this proposal, but regret that I am unable to accept it. In the first place, it appears to me that so long as the very necessary condition is maintained that privilege leave can only be granted to a Judge of the High Court "subject to the exigencies of the public service"—that is, if the state of the Court's work permits of its being granted without making necessary the appointment of an officiating Judge, any concession of the kind suggested would be rather illusory than real; for it is evident that such leave could very seldom be obtained. And in the second, I have reason to think that the Judges would regard a condition which compelled them to restrict the present annual vacation to a bare two months with much dissatisfaction. The recess as at present fixed in most of the High Courts admits of a short visit to England every year for all except the Vacation Judge; if it were cut down to two months, this privilege would no longer be available, and the period of relaxation of all the Judges except those who take the vacation duty would be curtailed in order to admit of one or two Judges in a year combining privilege leave with vacation. It seems to me that the present rules, which have now been in force for nearly twenty years, since which time every Judge now on the Bench except one has been appointed, are sufficiently liberal, and do not call for amendment.

12. Nor am I able to recognise the expediency of the proposal made in the 24th paragraph of the letter, to alter the present rule (No. 24 of Article 600 of the Civil Service Regulations), which debars a Judge whose furlough extends into the vacation from drawing full pay before he returns to India. It appears to me ~~that~~ to apply to the annual vacation, extending for more than two months, the rule applicable to other authorised casual holidays would be such a substantial advantage that, if it were granted, every Judge who proposed to take furlough would, if possible, time his leave so as to include the vacation therein. This would probably lead to more frequent furloughs being taken and thus to increased expenditure, while it might cause considerable difficulty in supplying the place of the absent Judges. The proposal is also combined with the condition that the vacation should be cut down to two months, on which I have commented in the preceding paragraph. It seems to me that there is nothing unreasonable in the present rule, which was determined upon after very careful deliberation, and I trust that further reflection will remove any feeling of dissatisfaction which may be felt by individual members of the Calcutta Court in regard to it.

13. This completes the consideration of the proposals made in the letter under reply so far as they relate to the Judges of the High Courts; and I forward, for Your Excellency's information and for communication to the Courts, a copy of the Statutory Rules made under the Act 24 & 25 Vict., c. 104, s. 6, as revised in accordance with the decisions conveyed in this Despatch.

14. Turning now to the alleged grievances of the Judicial Service in Bengal, I recognise, with Your Excellency's Government, the importance of removing any ground of dissatisfaction which may interfere with the selection of that line of service by competent men. The rule which I have approved for requiring Civilian equally with other Judges of the High Courts to retire on attaining the age of 60 years (which, as above pointed out, is nearly equivalent to compulsory retirement after 35 years' service) will remove one of the grievances on which much stress is laid in the correspondence. The others relate chiefly to leave privileges, and in regard to these I authorize Your Excellency to give effect to the proposals made in the 26th paragraph of the letter, so as to remove, as far as possible, the obstacles at present interposed to the enjoyment by District and Sessions Judges of the usual Civil Court vacation, and to provide that its incidence shall not affect the grant of regular leave. The conditions which you propose—including that which requires that the arrangements made shall involve no additional expenditure—are suitable and have my approval.

15. In the 30th paragraph of your Government's letter, my sanction is asked to a redistribution of the grades and salaries of the District and Sessions Judges in Bengal so as to provide a more suitable gradation for the Judicial Service. You propose to consult the Lieutenant-Governor on the grading which you think desirable, and ask my authority, if it or any other similar scheme approves itself to you and the Bengal Government and can be carried out without increase of expenditure, to bring it into effect. I have no objection to this course; should any increase of expenditure be found necessary, the proposals will doubtless be submitted for my specific approval.

16. In the 27th paragraph of the letter the question is raised whether the concessions in regard to vacation recommended by you for Judges of the High Court and District and Sessions Judges should not be extended to other officers serving in Departments in which regular recesses are recognized. So far as regards the High Courts, you will have learnt from the preceding paragraphs of this Despatch that I have not been able to accept the proposals of the letter; and the grievances of the District and Sessions Judges, for which I have agreed that a remedy is required, appear to me to be of a special character and not such as should be assumed, without further evidence, to exist in the case of the other Departments referred to. It is not indeed stated in the letter what these Departments precisely are; but it is presumed from Article 306 of the Civil Service Regulations that they are the Judges of the subordinate Civil Courts and Courts of Small Causes, the teaching staff of Government colleges and schools where a vacation is allowed, and the officers of the High Courts. The conditions applicable to these officers are widely diverse, and as at present advised I am unable to admit that it is necessary to grant them the concessions recommended.

ENCLOSURES.

No. 1.

Resolution in Council, dated the 25th April 1899.

The Secretary of State for India in Council considers it desirable that every Chief Justice or Judge of a High Court in India hereafter to be appointed should be required to vacate his office on attaining the age of sixty years.

No. 2.

Rules as to Salaries, &c., of Judges of High Courts.

The following Rules are, under Statute 24 & 25 Vict., c. 104, s. 6, made by the Secretary of State in Council of India, consolidating and amending the rules fixing the salaries, allowances, furloughs, retiring pensions, and (when necessary) expenses for equipment and voyage of the Chief Justices and Judges of the several High Courts established under the said Statute.

Dated this 25th day of April 1899.

1. In these Rules, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context

"Acting Chief Justice" means a Judge appointed under section 7 of Statute 24 & 25 Vict., c. 104, to perform the duties of Chief Justice of a High Court.

"Acting Judge" means a person appointed under the said section 7 to perform the duties of Judge of a High Court.

"Judge" includes a Chief Justice and Acting Chief Justice, and an Acting Judge, except where the contrary is expressed.

"Actual service" includes,—

(a) Time spent by a Judge on duty as Judge, or in the performance of such other function as he may be directed to discharge by the Governor General of India in Council;

(b) Time spent by a Judge on privilege or subsidiary leave;

(c) Duly authorized vacations (provided that the Judge is not absent on furlough or on extraordinary leave under Rule 26).

SECTION I.

Salaries.

2. The Chief Justice, or Acting Chief Justice, of the High Court at Calcutta shall be paid a salary at the rate of Rs. 72,000 per annum.

3. Chief Justice, or Acting Chief Justice, of the High Courts at Madras and at Bombay, and for the North-Western Provinces, respectively, shall be paid a salary at the rate of Rs. 60,000 per annum.

4. A Judge, or Acting Judge, of the High Courts at Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, and for the North-Western Provinces, respectively, shall be paid a salary at the rate of Rs. 48,000 per annum; provided always that every Judge of the High Court at Calcutta appointed before the 18th day of January 1881 shall be paid a salary at the rate of Rs. 50,000 per annum.

5. Every Chief Justice, or Acting Chief Justice, and every Judge, or Acting Judge, shall be allowed to draw, in addition to his salary, any exchange compensation allowance which may be sanctioned for public servants generally, subject always to the conditions and limitations prescribed in the rules relating to such allowance.

SECTION II.

Leave.

6. One year's furlough shall be placed to the credit of each Judge after the completion of the fourth, eighth, and twelfth years of actual service: Provided that the aggregate amount of all furlough which can, during the whole period of his service, be granted to a Judge shall not exceed three years; provided further that the maximum amount of furlough which may be taken at any one time is fifteen months.

7. Except under Rules 9 and 10 no furlough shall be granted until at credit under Rule 6. But any Judge already in the service of the Government at the time of being appointed to the High Court, who, when so appointed, was entitled, under the rules applicable to the branch of the service to which he belonged, to furlough without medical certificate, may be granted furlough for a term not exceeding that to which he was so entitled; provided that such furlough shall not be taken until the completion of two years' actual service in the High Court, and shall not exceed one year.

8. Except under Rules 9 and 10 furlough shall not be granted until after the completion of three years' actual service from the date of the last return from furlough or from extraordinary leave.

9. Under medical certificate, furlough may be granted before it is at credit under Rule 6, and although three years' actual service may not have been completed since the last return from furlough or from extraordinary leave.

10. On urgent private affairs, furlough may be granted to a Judge before it is at credit under Rule 6, and although three years of actual service have not been completed since the last return from furlough or extraordinary leave; provided that furlough under this Rule shall not exceed six months, and shall be granted only once during the whole period of a Judge's service.

11. Furlough taken in India shall be reckoned from the date on which the Judge quits his office to the date of his resuming duty. Furlough taken out of India shall be reckoned from the date of embarkation at the port of departure from India to the date of debarkation on return to India except in a case falling under Rule 21.

12. If furlough be taken partly in India and partly out of India, the commencement and termination of the furlough shall be respectively determined under the provisions of Rule 11, according as the furlough begins or ends in or out of India.

13. For the interval between the date of quitting his office and the commencement of furlough out of India, and between the termination of furlough out of India and resuming his office, a Judge may be allowed a subsidiary leave not ordinarily exceeding thirty days, which in special cases may be extended.

14. A Judge when on furlough shall receive allowances at the rate of Rs. 833-5-4 a month, if the furlough be taken in India, and at the rate of 1,000*l*. a year, if the furlough be taken out of India and payment be made in England. A Judge when on subsidiary leave shall receive allowances at the rate of Rs. 833-5-4 a month.

15. Except under medical certificate the number of furloughs to be granted at any one time, and the grant of furlough to individual Judges, shall be subject to and limited by the exigencies of the service, which exigencies shall be determined exclusively by the authority with whom rests the question of granting the furlough.

16. Applications for furlough not supported by medical certificate shall be granted usually in the following order :

The Judge who has the greatest amount of furlough to his credit under Rule 6 shall have the preference. If two or more applicants are on an equality in this respect, preference shall be given to the applicant whose actual service in a High Court is longest, reckoning, in the case of a Judge who has not taken furlough or extraordinary leave, from the date of the commencement of his service in the High Court, and in the case of a Judge who has taken furlough, subsidiary, or extraordinary leave, from the date of his last return from such furlough or extraordinary leave. If two or more applicants are equal in both the above-mentioned respects, the preference shall be given to the senior in the Court.

17. Subject to the exigencies of the public service, a Judge who has completed eleven months' continuous duty, including the vacation, may take privilege leave for one month in each year, but, except as provided in Clause (a), his salary will cease during such leave. A Judge may not take privilege leave in instalments, or more than a month at a time; and, except as provided in Clause (b), privilege leave may not be combined with vacation.

(a) A Judge who has been detained on duty as Vacation Judge may, provided that he has not in the meantime had any furlough or leave of any kind, during his next subsequent privilege leave draw his salary for any period, not exceeding one month in the whole, by which his vacation may (by reason of his being on duty) have fallen short of one month.

(b) Once in three years, and not oftener, privilege leave may be prefixed or affixed to the vacation.

18. Rule 17 does not apply to the following Judge:

Prinsep, Sir H. T., Kt., Calcutta, to whom privilege leave may be granted under the following Rules :

(1) Subject to the exigencies of the public service, privilege leave for one month may be granted to a Judge who has been on duty without interruption for eleven months, including the vacation.

(2) An additional month of privilege leave accrues to a Judge after each further period of eleven months' continuous duty, including the vacation.

(3) Privilege leave may not be taken in instalments, but any balance of privilege leave not taken when due may be added to the next privilege leave which accrues : Provided that the privilege leave taken at one time shall not exceed three months, and that any accumulation of privilege leave beyond that period shall be forfeited.

(4) Save as provided in the next succeeding Clause (5), a Judge when on privilege leave shall receive half his salary.

(5) A Judge who discharges the duties of Vacation Judge during the whole or any part of a vacation shall be entitled, for each day of such duty, to draw his full salary for one day of any privilege leave which he may subsequently obtain.

19. Every Judge applying for privilege leave must sign a declaration that he intends to return to duty on the expiration of the leave applied for, and that he has no intention of resigning his office or retiring from the service or taking leave of any kind within three months after his return to duty. Such declaration shall not be held absolutely to debar the person making it from applying for permission to resign his office, or to retire from the service, or to take leave, within three months after his return to duty; but every such application must be accompanied by an explanation of the special circumstances under which it is made, and it shall be in absolute discretion of the Government to grant or withhold the permission sought.

20. Furlough and privilege leave shall not be taken as such in continuation of each other; but if a Judge absent on leave of one of these kinds is allowed to change it for leave of the other kind, the whole period of his absence shall be held to be under leave of the latter kind.

21. Applications for leave shall in all cases be submitted in such manner as the Government shall from time to time prescribe.

22. Leave allowance shall be payable monthly if payment is made in India, and quarterly if in England.

23. No substantive appointment shall be vacated merely by reason of leave being granted under these Rules.*

24. If a Judge overstays any leave, he shall forfeit all salary during the time of his remaining so absent; and if he overstays his leave for more than one week, his office shall be liable to be declared vacant. But a Judge on leave (other than leave under Rule 17 or 18) is not obliged to return to duty on an authorized holiday, unless another officer is officiating as Judge in consequence of his absence.

Vacation is not an authorized holiday within the meaning of this Rule; and a Judge whose furlough terminates at the commencement of or during a vacation shall not be entitled to full pay for any part of the period of such vacation (except a part subsequent to his return to duty). If, after the termination of his furlough, he remains absent during the whole or any part of a vacation, he will, for such period of absence, draw the leave allowances admissible under Rule 14, but the time will count as actual service, not as furlough, provided that he returns to duty immediately at the end of the vacation.

25. No leave except privilege leave and leave subsidiary to furlough shall count as service for pension.

26. If the Government shall in its discretion deem it necessary, in any special instance, to grant to any Judge leave of absence which is not expressly provided for in the foregoing Rules, such leave shall be without pay: Provided always, that in no case shall such leave exceed six months, or be granted more than once in the whole course of the Judge's service.

Leave under this Rule is termed "extraordinary" leave.

SECTION III.

Pensions.

27. A Chief Justice of the High Court at Calcutta after an actual service of eleven and a half years as Judge of a High Court, of which period at least five years and nine months shall have been as Chief Justice of the High Court at Calcutta, shall receive a pension not exceeding 1,800*l*. per annum.

28. A Chief Justice of the High Courts at Madras and Bombay, and for the North-Western Provinces, respectively, after an actual service of eleven and a half years as Judge of a High Court, of which period at least five years and nine months shall have been as Chief Justice, shall receive a pension not exceeding 1,500*l*. per annum.

29. A Judge of a High Court, not being eligible for pension at a higher rate under Rule 27 or 28, shall, after an actual service of eleven and a half years as Judge, receive a pension not exceeding 1,200*l*. per annum.

30. A Chief Justice or Judge, who retires on medical certificate after six years and nine months' actual service, shall receive a pension not exceeding one-half the amount of pension allowed for the full period of service.

31. In the event of a Judge receiving a pension under the preceding Rules, he will not be entitled to any other pension or retiring allowance.

32. When a Judge, who at the time of his appointment to a High Court was a member of one of the Government Services in India, is permitted to retire without a pension under the preceding Rules, he shall receive such a pension as he might receive under the Rules applicable to the branch of the Service to which he belonged when so appointed, reckoning the period of his service as a Judge of a High Court towards service for that pension.

* Leave allowance is now paid monthly in arrear of payments made in England.

33. If a Judge who, at the time of his appointment to a High Court, was a member of one of the Government Services in India, shall be permitted to retire on medical certificate after six years and nine months of actual service as Judge, he shall have the option of taking his pension or retiring allowance either under these Rules or under the Rules applicable to the branch of the Service to which he belonged when appointed.

34. No Judge, selected from the Covenanted Civil Service, shall receive any pension under these Rules unless he shall have fully complied with all the rules and regulations in force for the time being as to payments to be made by him as a member of the Covenanted Civil Service on account of the provision for his own pension or retiring allowance, and for pensions to his wife and children.

35. If a Judge be transferred from one High Court to another, the period he shall have served in each Court shall count towards his qualification for pension.

36. If a Judge be appointed to be a Chief Justice in the Court in which he has theretofore served, or in another Court, the period of his service as Judge will count for pension according to the rate of a Judge's pension, and the period of his service as Chief Justice will count for pension according to the rate of pension of a Chief Justice of the Court to which he may have been appointed.

37. If a Chief Justice of the High Court at Madras, at Bombay, or for the North-Western Provinces be appointed Chief Justice of the High Court at Calcutta, his period of service in the Court from which he is transferred will count for pension according to the rate of pension of a Chief Justice of that Court, and his period of service as Chief Justice of the High Court at Calcutta will count for pension according to the rate of pension of a Chief Justice of the High Court at Calcutta.

38. A Judge appointed under Statute 24 & 25 Vict., c. 104, sect. 7, to perform the duties of Chief Justice is not a Chief Justice within the meaning of these Rules as to pension: Provided that, if such Judge be afterwards appointed to be a Chief Justice, the period during which he performed the duties of Chief Justice as aforesaid shall count as service for pension at the rate of 1,500*l.* or of 1,800*l.* per annum as the case may be; provided also, that the period during which a Judge performs (under Section 7 of the Statute 24 & 25 Vict., c. 104) the duties of Chief Justice of the High Court at Calcutta shall not count towards pension at a rate exceeding 1,500*l.* a year, unless such Judge is subsequently appointed to the office of Chief Justice of the said High Court at Calcutta.

39. These Rules numbered respectively 1 to 26 inclusive and 33 to 38 inclusive shall apply to every Chief Justice and Judge now holding office, as well as to those who may be hereafter appointed. Rules 27 to 32 inclusive shall not apply to any Chief Justice or Judge now holding office who shall before the 1st day of July 1899 give notice to the Government of India that he elects to remain under the operation of the Rules under which he may be now serving.

SECTION IV.

Expenses for Equipment and Voyage.

40. For the purpose of defraying the expenses of equipment and voyage from Europe on first appointment, there shall be allowed,—

To a Chief Justice or Judge of any High Court, 300*l.*

But no such allowance shall be made to any person who, being in India is appointed to the office of Chief Justice or Judge, or who, having been in India, is in Europe at the time of his appointment with the intention of returning to India.

PRESIDENCY BANKS AND THEIR BRANCHES.

The 23rd June, 1899.

No. 2851-A.—The following papers, on the subject of the use of the Government balances in aid of banking resources in India, are published for general information:

(1) Despatch to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, No. 30, dated the 2nd February 1899, and enclosures.

(2) Despatch from Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, No. 87 (Financial), dated the 4th May 1899.

No. 30, dated Calcutta, 2nd February, 1899.

To—The Secretary of State for India.

We have the honour to submit, for Your Lordship's consideration, the following papers relating to the use of the Government Balances in aid of banking resources in India:

1. Report by the Finance Sub-Committee to the Committee of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce on a proposal to make a representation to Government with the view of altering the present system of managing the Treasuary Balances so as to allow of funds being placed more freely at the disposal of the public during the busy season of each year.
2. Note by the Honourable Sir James Westland, K.C.S.I., on the management of the Government Balances.
3. Proceedings of an interview on the 11th January 1899 between a deputation from the Committee of the Chamber and the Honourable Sir James Westland, K.C.S.I., on the question of the management of Government Cash Balances.

2. The whole question is sufficiently discussed in these papers and in the papers therein referred to as having been published in the Gazette of India of February 23, 1889; and the proposal we would make to Your Lordship is that during the months of January to May of each year, when large sums are withdrawn from the public in payment of Government revenue, it may be recognized as part of the ordinary business of management of the Treasury Balances to lend money to the Presidency Banks at one per cent. less than the declared minimum rate of discount of the borrowing Bank. It is not our wish, and it might prove embarrassing in our own business, to give the Banks an open credit upon which they may operate or not as they please; but the kind of transaction admissible would be that the Banks might obtain, on the security of Government paper, loans, not less than ten lakhs of rupees on each occasion, repaybale after a fixed period of one, two or three months, but in no case later than May 31, by which date we should again be in command of our own funds under ordinary conditions. We would not pledge ourselves to be always ready to lend and it must be always remembered that, in the management of the public funds, the requirements of the public administration come before those of trade and commerce; but under ordinary circumstances we consider we could without difficulty spare 1½ crores of rupees during the months in question.

3. These arrangements would come within the meaning of the despatch No. 225, dated 6th May 1875, of Your Lordship's predecessor (see especially paragraph 17), but we consider it desirable to resubmit the case now, as it is mixed up with matters that are at present under the consideration of the Currency Commission.

4. It will be observed that the President of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, at the Conference of January 11, expressed the opinion that advances of the kind would not be required until the Bank rate threatened to exceed 10 per cent. We would not consider it necessary to prescribe a condition of the kind, but we believe it is the case that it would not pay the Presidency Banks to take loans on the above terms unless the rate for money approached that figure and threatened to remain very high for some time.

5. We cannot say that the proposed facility for borrowing money in India would not in any way interfere with Your Lordship's Council Bill operations. But as the proposed loans would be only temporary, and the money would have to be returned to the Reserve Treasury by an early date, the effect would not be a permanent one. Though it might operate to slightly diminish the demand in January and February, it would, in the same measure, increase it in April and May. On the other hand, it is to the advantage both of trade generally and, through trade, of the demand for Council Bills that the rates of discount should not be so high as they have been during the last two cold weathers : and we believe that, so far as Council Bill operations are concerned, we may count upon obtaining quite as much advantage in this way as there may be disadvantage in meeting, in the manner proposed, part of the demand for money during the active season of foreign trade in India.

Enclosure No. 1.

Management of the Treasury Balances.

I am directed by the Finance Sub-Committee to submit to the Committee of the Chamber their Report on the proposal to make a representation to Government with the view of altering the present system of managing the Treasury balances so as to allow of funds being placed more freely at the disposal of the public during the busy season—February to June of each year.

The Finance Sub-Committee have carefully considered the file of papers sent down, and have also had before them reports of the proceedings of the Legislative Council of India in various years, from which they have been able to ascertain what action has previously been taken in regard to the matter by the representives in the Council of the mercantile community. They have noted from these proceedings that Sir David Barbour at the meeting of the Council, held on the 27th March 1889, dealt at length with the whole question, and expressed himself in opposition to any changes in the existing system. Mr. Robert Steel and Sir Alexander Wilson, representatives of the Chamber on the Council, have also spoken on different occasions in support of the views expressed by Sir David Barbour.

The Finance Sub-Committee, notwithstanding, have reported in favour of a representation being made to Government, as they consider the position is now somewhat changed, and think it is most advisable that, as the season of the year when the Cash balances are highest, coincides with the exporting season when money is most scarce, Government should, during that period, lend sufficient cash to the Presideney Banks to enable those banks always to be in a position to make advances on Government Securities. They consider that it is damaging to the credit of Government that Government Paper should at any time cease to be a loanable security. They have been strengthened in this view by the fact that several witnesses before the Currency Committee, notably Sir Edgar Vincent and Mr. A. M. Lindsay, were in favour of such a course being pursued by Government.

The Sub-Committee are of opinion that Government could without danger advance sufficient cash to relieve the stringency which generally exists from February to June in each year.

CALCUTTA;
17th December 1898.

Enclosure in Enclosure No. 1.

The following is the Report of the Sub-Committee :

The Finance Sub-Committee recognise that in the conditions attaching to both Imperial and Trade Finance in India, the Government cannot place Treasury balances at the disposal of trade with so free a hand as is done in England. The question before the Committee, however, appears to be not the wholesale surrender of treasury funds to the Presidency Banks, but the discretionary disposal of them in periods of stringency. If the action of the Government is such as to unnecessarily cause a money stringency at one season of the year, and a deceptive redundancy at another season, it follows that the manipulation of these funds is a potent disturbing influence in our money market.

It has been the impression for years that the Government have been sparing of their deposits with the Presidency Banks during the seasons of greatest pressure, with the object of stimulating exchange, and lavish with their deposits in the monsoon months when easy money has helped them to issue new loans.

In order to ascertain whether this impression has any justification in fact, the Finance Committee have had the following tabulated statements prepared. The point to be arrived at is this: The collection of revenue, especially the land revenue, withdraws from active circulation considerable sums of money at certain seasons, and it so happens that this withdrawal of money from private hands takes place just when funds are most needed for harvest requirements. By comparing the balances in the Civil Treasuries and Reserve Treasuries with the Treasury balances in the Presidency Banks in March, July and November of several years, a fair estimate may be formed of the relation between revenue funds held apart and those placed at the disposal of trade (see Statement I). These months are selected because, generally, March is the month of acutest trade demand and largest accumulations of revenue, July the month of smallest trade demand, and November the month of smallest Government revenue.

Statement II shows that the proportion of balances in Civil Treasuries to Reserve Treasuries, and to the balances deposited with the Presidency Banks, has been on the average as follows:

II.

Average Balances, 1888—1897 (inclusive).

Months.	Total Balances, Government Treasuries.	Reserve Treasuries.	Presidency Banks.
March	17,13,82,200	3,38,09,200	1,52,43,000
July	15,32,60,800	3,58,31,700	1,64,82,600
November	10,50,05,800	1,99,31,200	1,52,13,200

These figures appear to support the generally received impression that the Government deposit a proportionately smaller amount with the Presidency Banks during the busy season than at other seasons. It will be seen that the proportion works out as under:

	Total Treasuries.	Reserve Treasuries.	Presidency Banks.
March	100	19·44	8·89
July	100	23·38	30·75
November	100	18·98	14·49

The Finance Sub-Committee are, therefore, of opinion that the present method of disposing of Government balances does adversely affect the money market, and think that a representation might reasonably be made to Government to increase, in proportion to their total funds, their deposits with the Presidency Banks during the busy season. They also think it would be fair to the Presidency Banks if the rates at which Government funds were lent against deposits in times of emergency should be one per cent. below the published minimum rate of the banks.

Secretary.

Enclosure No. 2.

Note by the HONOURABLE SIR JAMES WESTLAND, K.C.S.I., on the management of the Government Balances.

To facilitate discussion as to the extent to which Cash balances of the Government may be made available for commercial uses, I put together in this paper some of the considerations which, from the point of view of the Government, bear upon the question.

2. The great difference between the position in this respect of the Treasury in England and that in India may be seen from the following statement, which sets out first the figures relating to England. (The figures are taken from the "Economist," and though they do not precisely correspond as to date, they are good enough for the present purpose):

(In thousands of £.)	Exchequer Balance in the Bank of England.	Cash Balance in the Bank of England.
End of December 1897	3,785	19,885
" February 1898	11,907	23,606
" March 1898	9,918(a)	21,662
" April 1898	5,286	22,720
" May 1898	7,230	26,046
" June 1898	4,800(a)	27,071

(a) The actuals are not available; the figure is taken by deducting from the total Exchequer balance one million assumed to be the balance in the Bank of Ireland.

It will be seen from these figures that the Exchequer could at any time, if necessity arose, realize or spend the whole of the balance at its credit without causing the Bank of England to feel any but a temporary difficulty,—a difficulty which possibly might not be great enough to cause any steps of sufficient magnitude to affect, or even to come to the knowledge of, the public.

3. Now take the figures for India. They are made up in the annexed tables A and B for each week of the quarter, January to March 1898. It has to be remembered that, according to the contracts with the Presidency Banks, the head "Public Deposits" in their weekly returns is practically synonymous with balance at credit of Treasury; the balances of the High Courts and their officers, and of Railway Companies, and some others, which form a not inconsiderable aggregate of public money, lie outside these amounts and are reckoned in the Bank statements as private accounts. The average of the 13 weekly returns is:

Head Offices only—
Bank of Bengal	739	791
Bank of Bombay	527	636
Head Offices and Branches—
Bank of Bengal	1,576	2,019
Bank of Madras	505	951
Bank of Bombay	873	953

It will be seen that a demand by Government for the use of its balances would leave the Banks with an utterly insufficient amount of cash for their requirements—would in short deplete both the financial centres and the principal towns in the interior of nearly the whole of their current banking balances.

4. In comparing England with India in this respect there are two features in the comparison which greatly aggravate the position as regards India. First, the balance in the Bank of England, large as it is, is after all only a portion of the available cash in London. The number of banks in London is legion, and even though the bulk of their available balances may be represented by a deposit account with the Bank of England, yet a large amount on the whole remains in their own possession; and the diminution of the balance in the Bank of England by the whole amount it holds at the credit of the Exchequer would be a small tax upon the whole banking balance of the place. In India this is not the case, the Cash balance of the Presidency Banks is a much more important factor in Calcutta or Bombay, for the Exchange Banks hold a comparatively small balance in their own coffers, and even that is, it is understood, sometimes an advance from the Presidency Banks. Secondly, the nexus between the Bank of England and the general available cash of the country is infinitely closer than that which exists in the case of the Indian Presidency Banks. The withdrawal of, say, five millions of Exchequer Balance from the Bank of England for the purpose of meeting Government payments due throughout the country might deplete the available cash of the Bank of England for a week or two, but the amount would speedily flow back again through a thousand different channels and the cash position of the Bank would be as strong as ever. In India, on the other hand, payments of the kind do not flow back till after a considerable time, and partly do not come back at all. A war on the frontier, a famine in a province, or heavy expenditure upon railways will absorb large amounts of cash, part of which dribbles back slowly, and part of which for practical purposes never comes back at all.

5. These considerations introduce great difficulty into the management of the Government balances in India. It is not merely that the Government are obliged to have close regard to the demands that are coming upon them in respect of the payments due on Government account during the next few months, but that they are obliged to have regard to future commercial demand also. Just as the Directors of the Bank of England or of the Bank of Bengal, when they anticipate a strong commercial demand, would create a position of great danger if they were merely to say : "We have so many millions, or so many lakhs, in our Treasure chest, and there is therefore no use of our interfering with the demand ; let us go on giving out money as long as we possess any," so the Government in India is bound to carefully guard its balances against depletion brought about either by the payments which it has in due course to meet, or by too sudden withdrawal and dispersal through the channels of commercial demand. The above-imagined policy on the part of the Bank Directors would inevitably bring about a crisis in a very short time, and carelessness of management of the same kind—a concession to immediate commercial demand, without having any regard to the future—would bring a crisis on the money market in India, much more severe and much more rapid by reason of the smallness, the almost non-existence of any margin to fall back upon.

6. This position of possibility is forced upon the Government in this country, not of its own will, but because it is accepted by the Banking and the Mercantile Community as the monetary system of India. The whole commerce of the country is made to depend upon the Government balances ; and the whole responsibility for the maintenance of an available Cash Reserve in India being thrown upon the Government, it is taken for granted that if there is a monetary stringency, it is due to the deliberate action of the Government. When Bank Directors, to meet the occasion I have been describing, put up the rate of discount, they are said to do what is wise and proper both in their own interests and in those of the commercial public; when the Government being in India in a similar position takes similar measures, it is considered to be deliberately causing an undue stringency of the money market.

7. It is not infrequently alleged in the public press and elsewhere that the Government of India, in their manipulation of Government balances and of Council Bills, systematically pursue this policy of creating for their own purposes a stringency of the kind described. They have more than once had occasion to give this theory explicit denial. Some important papers on the subject were published in the Gazette of India of February 23rd, 1889 (page 115, etc.), which were intended to show that the one endeavour of the Government in managing their balances was to make things as smooth for the money market as it was possible for them to be, consistently with a system under which the Banks kept very little available money of their own, and depended for their immediately available resources almost entirely upon the margin of funds which the Government kept against possible administrative demands, and which are necessarily hypothecated to public necessities of the kind. For example, the weekly financial article in the Pioneer referring to the transactions of the second-half of September last stated that "Government has been busy reducing its balances with the Bank of Bengal and the Bank of Bombay." The real fact, so far as Calcutta is concerned, was that Government during that fortnight paid 50 lakhs of Council Bills out of its balance in the Bank of Bengal (a matter which may be described as being within public knowledge), and the diminution of Government balance which is the natural and inevitable consequence of the transfer of 50 lakhs from the Government balance to that of the Exchange Banks was thus quoted as evidence that the Government was withdrawing its balances from commerical use ! It will thus be seen that the criticism under reference contains exactly the mistake which was pointed out in paragraphs 22 and 23 on page 124 of the above quotation from the Gazette of India, and that the so-called artificial reduction of Government balances at the banks is nothing more or less than the issue of the amount to the public in the form of Council Bills. As a matter of fact, not a single rupee was withdrawn from the Bank to the Reserve Treasury during the latter half of the month of September.

8. It may be mentioned as regards the Government balances at the Presidency Banks that for the express purpose of preventing any manipulation of them either in the direction of stringency or of the opposite, they are worked upon a purely mechanical system. A maximum and a minimum limit are fixed, both very much in excess of the minimum stipulated in the contract with the Banks ; and the rule is laid down that when the balance is above the maximum the responsible account officer withdraws a certain amount into the Reserve Treasury ; when it falls to or below the minimum, he passes money into it from the Reserve Treasury. This rule is departed from only (1) when the Government are raising a loan, and, in order to let it fall easily on the market, allow the Presidency Banks to retain a nominally excessive Treasury Balance ; it may be regarded as nominal, because the transaction is the result of a credit to Government on the Bank's books by debit to advances on Government securities, and the Bank for the moment does not really possess any funds available in cash against it ; (2) when the general balance is so severely depleted that for the time the Government cannot spare funds from the District Treasuries to maintain the usual standard of Cash balance in the Presidency towns. There is, therefore, so far as the bank balance is concerned, no manipulation for the purpose of creating stringency or of affecting the rate of exchange.

9. To proceed now to the question of Council Bills. It seems almost a truism to say it, yet it seems necessary to call it to mind, that the amount of Council Bills that can be issued by the Secretary of State is strictly limited. The belief that the Government of India refuse to place their funds at the disposal of the Banks is certainly founded in some cases on the mere fact that the Secretary of State has not issued bills for the whole amount required for the payment of the balance of trade. The amount which it is possible to draw in a year may, for ordinary times, be reckoned thus:

	Rx.
Surplus of revenue in India over expenditure in India, including expenditure on Capital Account	23,000,000
Money raised by loan in India for Capital Expenditure so far as it is not spent in India, a maximum of	3,000,000
TOTAL AVAILABLE ...	26,000,000

These figures vary of course from year to year, but it must be clear that, whatever the figures are, they limit the amount for which the Secretary of State may draw.

10. Now, as pointed out at length in the papers of 1889 which have been already quoted, the minimum balance with which it is possible to carry on the business of the Government in India is about eight crores; this eight crores including the balances at credit in the Presidency Banks and their Branches. The balances went down to that figure and below it in the end of the year 1896, and again in the end of 1897: that is to say, in both of these years the Secretary of State drew, and the Government of India paid out, even more than was consistent with safety; the Secretary of State could not have drawn more for the simple reason that the Government of India had no funds wherewith to pay. So anxious were the Government to supply the money market with a full amount of Council Bills that in December 1896 special legislative measures were taken to add to the Cash balances two crores of rupees out of Currency Reserve, and this enabled the Secretary of State to enhance his drawings by that amount. And again in January 1898 a special law was passed to enable the Secretary of State, if necessary, to draw Council Bills against the Currency Reserve. In the present year, 1898-99, the Council Bill programme was again based on the calculation that the Government should place at the Secretary of State's disposal, for drawings everything they could spare subject to the condition of about eight crores remaining in the Cash balances at the minimum period. The prospects as regards balances were much improved by better revenue, and this fact was communicated to the Secretary of State in July and again in September for the express purpose of enabling him to enhance his drawings up to the limit of the capacity of the Government to meet them; and he enhanced them accordingly. In this also there is ample evidence that the policy of the Government throughout is the very opposite of seeking to raise exchange by causing stringency. They have consistently done their best to place at the disposal of the market every surplus rupee they can spare.

11. The Government, in truth, cannot undertake to finance not only the administration of the country, but its trade and commerce also. Accordingly, when commerce finds a deficiency of available funds, the cause of the deficiency should be sought for in the scarcity of banking capital and not in some action of the Government, which is expected with resources that are often barely sufficient to meet the financial requirements of its own administration, to supply also all that is wanted for the movements of two hundred crores of imports and exports.

12. One difficulty in the regulation of Council Bill drawings lies in the fact that the revenue of Government does not come in equally during the year. This is, of course, a necessity in a country where so much of the revenue is land revenue and has to be collected at the time when the revenue-payers can most easily afford to pay it—viz., the time of harvesting and disposing of their crops.

The following is a rough estimate of the distribution, through the year, of the 26 crores which, as above mentioned, become available for drawings; the three crores of debt are taken as received half in July and half in August:

	In thousands of Rx.		In thousands of Rx.
April	600	October	300
May	1,900	November	700
June	3,000	December	2,500
July	2,500	January	5,500
August	1,300	February	3,100
September	...	March	4,600
		TOTAL ...	26,000

13. Now if the Secretary of State could distribute his drawings after the above fashion (or rather take the figures a month later so as to allow the excesses of revenue to be brought down to the Presidency towns to meet his bills), the result would no doubt be that our excess Cash balances (that is, the surplus over what is required for treasuries that are not in charge of Banks) would be wholly, or nearly so, at the disposal of commerce. But this is more a theoretical possibility than a real one. As already explained, there are no funds for Government to fall back upon, if it surrenders to commercial uses its own Cash balances and then suddenly finds that it must alter its programme of revenue and expenditure. There have been two crises of that kind within the last two years. The first was in October 1896, when the rains failed and prospects of famine suddenly made their appearance in India. It was realized that the first and necessary step was to make large remissions of revenue at once; this came upon the Government just as the balances were descending to their minimum, and there was no remedy but to call upon the Secretary of State immediately to suspend his drawings, which were being as usual so regulated as to leave no margin in December. The second was in the outbreak of frontier warfare in August and September 1897, when again the Government were obliged to stop the Secretary of State's drawings in order that they might have money to expend on the necessary military operations.

14. It is not possible for the Government therefore, dependent as they are upon their own resources, to carry on the administration with their balance continually hovering about eight crores. They can afford the risk of letting it run down to eight crores in November and December, when it is known that they will be amply in funds again when the revenue comes in in January. But if they had to keep to one figure all the year round, they would not be safe under a minimum of eleven crores (that is to say, a continual margin, against possible sudden claims, of three crores). Thus the proper way of describing the policy under which the margin of money might be placed at the disposal of commerce would be "Reckon Rx. 11,000,000 as your minimum current balance; but inasmuch as you can stand the risk of letting it run down for a month or two, but not longer, to Rx. 8,000,000, give commerce the advantage for that month or two of the Rx. 3,000,000 you can thus spare."

15. This is really not very far different from the course actually followed; at all events, the argument shews that the money withheld from possible utilisation by commerce is only the excess which is held over Rx. 11,000,000; and that it is not possible, from a practical point of view, for the Government to accept as a rule of working: "Eight crores is your necessary minimum, and all that you hold in excess of that should be regarded as available for commercial use." In short, eight crores is not a working minimum; it is a point of danger which can be tolerated if it is to last only for a month or two, but which might at any time land the Government in disaster, if they tried to work with it for a longer period.

For example, I find that from October 1896 to December 1897 there were only two months in which the Cash balance was over Rx. 12,000,000.

16. The distribution of Council Bills over the twelve months remains entirely in the hands of the Secretary of State; the Government in India give him from time to time their recommendations, and especially advise as to the amount they can make available for his drawings; but as the primary object of the Council Bills is to place him in funds for the expenditure which he has to undertake, they leave it to him to consider when drawings may be eased off for want of commerical demand, or increased to meet commercial demand. At the same time the Government are quite aware that the policy of the Secretary of State in the matter is the same as their own, that is, to draw during the twelve months as much as they can meet. The considerations herein set out will shew that the utmost the Secretary of State could do, if he were to neglect in regulating his drawings, every consideration, but that of momentary commercial convenience, would be that he might occasionally be a crore or two ahead of his drawings as he regulates them on the present system, at the risk of having to pull up after a month or two in order to allow the resources available in India to come up to his demands upon them. The Government pronounce no opinion as to whether it is convenient for commerce to have a crore a week placed at its disposal in February to April, and then have it cut down to 12 or 15 lakhs a week in May. Of course nothing that the Secretary of State can do will increase the total of his drawings over the twelve months.

17. Having thus placed in the hands of the Secretary of State the regulation of the drawings of Council Bills, the Government naturally consider themselves precluded from interfering with his operations by advancing money, even on interest, to the Presidency or other Banks in India. Occasionally, but very rarely, short loans of the kind are made, but it is only for the relief of temporary difficulties. The last occasion on which a proposal of the kind was made was as follows: In April last the Bank of Bombay, whose rate at the time was 13 per cent., asked the Government to advance 25 lakhs to it, for a short time, at 6 per cent. This the Government either formally declined, or were on the point of declining, when the proposal was altered into one to borrow at bank rate. Within three or four days, however, the stringency of money was relieved, the bank rate gave way, and it was considered that the necessity for any extraordinary measure has ceased.

Enclosure No. 3.

A deputation, nominated by the Committee of the Chamber, waited upon the Honourable Sir James Westland, K.C.S.I., the Finance Member of His Excellency the Governor-General's Council, at the office of the Legislative Department of the Government of India on the 11th January 1899, to confer with him upon the question of the management of the Government Cash Balances.

The deputation consisted of the following gentlemen:

The Honourable Mr. M. C. Turner (President of the Chamber).

The Honourable Mr. Allen Arthur.

Mr. Reg. Murray.

Mr. W. Parsons, Secretary.

Mr. A. Rawlinson, who had also been nominated as a member, was unable to attend.

The deputation was received by the Honourable Sir James Westland and Mr. H. H. Risley, C.I.E., Officiating Secretary to the Government of India in the Finance and Commerce Department, at 3 o'clock P.M.

Sir James Westland in opening the discussion said:

"Gentlemen,—Before I ask you to say anything with respect to the memo. I have prepared, I would ask your permission to make one or two remarks with regard to the papers the Committee of the Chamber have sent to me. The object the Sub-Committee of the Chamber have in compiling the figures they give is to show, as they state at the end, that 'the figures appear to support the generally received impression that the Government deposit a proportionately smaller amount with the Presidency Banks during the busy season than at other seasons.'

"That statement is based upon the figures set out in the Report shewing that on the average at the end of March 152 lakhs of rupees have been placed with the Presidency Banks; at the end of July 164 lakhs; and at the end of November 152 lakhs. These figures, of course, are quite correct, but there is one thing to be borne in mind with respect to them. I pointed out in my memo. that when loan money was being raised by the Government it was necessary for certain reasons to leave very large nominal balances with the banks. Such balances are regarded as nominal, because the transaction is the result of a credit to Government on the bank's books by debit to advances on Government securities and not of an actual receipt of cash by the banks. At that time we always make arrangements with the banks that money shall be left with them, and that we shall not call upon them, except gradually, to pay up the money which they showed to be at our credit on the accounts. The figures for July, if you refer to them, include two very large figures—one in 1888—195 lakhs; and the other in 1896—223 lakhs. You will see that these figures are very much in excess of the amounts that were with the banks at any other time. Now I have made enquiry with reference to these figures, and I find that, taking the two banks, the Bank of Bengal at Calcutta and the Bank of Bombay at Bombay, in the month of July 1888, the two banks received between them 268 lakhs. In 1896 the amount they received was 247 lakhs. On these two occasions these very large sums were left to their credit, and they were not normal balances at all. They are the balances which were left in their hands with reference to that special arrangement which it is always necessary to make. I find that if these two large figures are left out of the balances in the Presidency Banks as stated for July, the second statement of the Sub-Committee would show 152 lakhs for March, 138 lakhs for July, and 152 lakhs for November, so that the conclusion would be exactly opposite to that drawn by the Sub-Committee, as the balances in July would be less than is customary in March and November. But I think if you take all the figures, without taking averages, you will see that they bear out what I say in my note that practically the balances which we hold at the Presidency Banks are steady. We aim at maintaining them at a particular figure We are not bound to do so, but it is a sort of understanding between ourselves and the banks. They do not vary greatly."

Mr. Murray.—"All the year round?"

Sir James Westland.—"Yes. I think if our monthly statement which is sent to the Chamber is looked at it will be seen that the balances are a fairly steady amount. It varies somewhat, but is rarely as low as 140 lakhs, or as high as 190 lakhs, but as I say our policy is to maintain a pretty considerable and a fairly steady balance with the banks. One of the figures shown in the statement is the balance of November 1896. It went down as low as 109 lakhs. I do not know if you remember the circumstances of 1896. I do very well. At that time our total Cash balances were down to something like 7½ crores. I know I was very anxious at that time, because I had made arrangements, in coming down from Simla to Calcutta, to go to Bombay and to one or two other places, but I was obliged to come straight down to Calcutta on account of my anxiety connected with the lowness of the balances. But with the exception of that extremely low figure, which was entirely due to the depletion of our General Balances at the time, I think the statement drawn up by the Sub-Committee of the Chamber shows that we maintain a steady balance with the banks. Although we are not obliged to maintain this steady balance, we wish to maintain it in the absence of any special circumstances. There is one other point I wish to mention. By the last mail I obtained from home a copy of the evidence given by Lord Northbrook before the Committee of Enquiry now sitting in London. It would be rather a long business for me to read out the answer he gave to the Committee when he was asked about this very question of the Government balances, but here is part of what he said:

'In a crisis in India you want rupees, you want the actual money for payments up-country. I can give the Committee an instance of what happened to me in connection with this particular subject. In the year 1874 there was a famine in Bengal, and in order to feed the people we had to buy rice in Burma and send it to Bengal. In order to get the rice we had to pay hard coin, rupees, for it. The banks then had the full use of the Government balances, and the Bank of Bombay had at that time more than a million rupees—a million and-a-half I believe—of the Government balances. In order to pay for the rice, we wanted some of this money. When we asked the bank for it, we had the greatest difficulty in getting it. The Government of Bombay objected, and it was only after considerable correspondence, and by insisting upon getting our money, that we got at last about half a million of the million and-a-half that they had of our balances.'

"This subject was also mentioned in the Budget Debate in 1889. Sir David Barbour then quoted the remonstrance which the Government of Bombay sent in, which was to the effect that if the Government withdrew their balance from the Bank of Bombay the bank would have to call in the sums due from the Exchange Banks, and there would be a general panic and serious danger of stoppages.

"Lord Northbrook quotes from the despatch. He says:

'It was so serious a condition of things for the Government of India not to be able to get their money when they wanted it, that we addressed the Secretary of State on the subject, and the correspondence is given in the evidence published in the first Report of a Commission now sitting on Indian expenditure at Question 8258. We said:—"We have been much impressed with the consideration that the effect of the existing agreements with the Banks which compels us to place all the Cash balances belonging to Government in their hands, leads to consequences which may be very inconvenient, if not worse, both to Government and to trade. The only use of these balances to Government is that they may be made available the moment the public service requires them. We have had no difficulty in regard to the balances in the hands of the Banks of Bengal and Madras, the Bank of Bombay, however, protested against meeting drafts upon it, and on the urgent representations of the Governor of Bombay, we were obliged, on the 29th January, to allow a month's time before drawing. The Bank of Bombay, accustomed to high Government balances, and relying on the maintenance of these balances, had so employed them that they were practically locked up, for had we insisted on withdrawing them more suddenly, we should have done so in the face of a warning that we should produce a commercial crisis, and therefore, for a time, the Government balances at Bombay were useless for the purposes of the Government." The upshot of it all was that an alteration was made, and at our recommendation the Government now hold about two crores in the Reserve Treasury. They are not bound now to keep the whole of their balances in the banks, and they keep two crores actually in their own hands, which they can use on an emergency. I do not think it is safe for the Government of India not to have the absolute command of two crores of rupees.'

"To a subsequent question Lord Northbrook answers:

'8451. At each bank do you mean?—No, two crores altogether. I do not think it is at all an unreasonable amount, and it is not safe to have less. The Government of India are in quite a different position to the Government of England. The Government of India, if they want money, could not get it in India to any considerable extent, and if they tried to get it and failed, it would bring them into great discredit. Therefore, I do not think the Government should be bound to keep the whole of their balances in the banks. It is not, in my opinion, the business of the Government of India to finance Indian trade; it is the business of commerce to finance Indian trade. At the same time I do not see why the Government of India should not to any reasonable extent assist trade by allowing the use of their balances by the Presidency Banks with proper precautions; but I want to point out that it is not safe to put the whole of the balances in the hands of the banks, judging by the experience that I myself have had.'

"Well, Lord Northbrook gives the figures of our requirements at two crores of rupees. My note, which was written before I knew Lord Northbrook's opinion, puts it down at three crores. But it must be remembered that Lord Northbrook's experience is based on 1874, and since then the area of our operations has very much increased. Then there is another thing. Lord Northbrook only had a single contingency in contemplation. In 1897 we had two contingencies. We had a famine, and on the top of that came the Frontier War, so that we had two calamities to meet at the same time, and two heavy demands. Then, I want to point out with reference to this remark of Lord Northbrook, viz.:

'The Government of India are bound to see that they have the command of a certain sum of money without putting it in the power of the banks to tie it up even for a limited time. I am speaking about those two crores which are kept in the Reserve Treasury. With regard to the rest of the balances beyond what is required to work the finance of India, I do not see why the greater portion should not be in the hands of the Presidency Banks.'

"The practical difficulty in my mind is this: that as long as we have a considerable balance in the Reserve Treasury, the fluctuations of balances which are caused by very large demands for the Secretary of State's Bills, or for payment to meet famine requirements, or a sudden outbreak of war, will be met from the Reserve Treasury. The banks know perfectly well that, so long as we have got a balance in the Reserve Treasury, we shall not come down on them for the balances we have left with them. But if we make it a rule to hand over to them the balances in excess of a given amount—either two or three crores—it is obvious that any sudden demand will fall upon the banks and not upon the Reserve Treasury."

Mr. Murray said that upon that point the Bengal Chamber had always been in agreement with the views expressed by Sir James Westland. The speeches made by Mr. Robert Steel and Sir Alexander Wilson, in the Imperial Legislative Council, were in favour of those views, and he did not think the opinion of the Chamber in that respect had changed. It was only in regard to the proportion of the funds that they thought some alteration might possibly be made. The point the Committee of the Chamber laid stress upon was that during the months, December to March, when the Government was taking most money from the public, it so happened that the public required most money for harvest operations. The money was collected by the Government at precisely the time when it was most urgently wanted. The idea was that during that time the amount of the balances with the Presidency Banks should be temporarily increased. It was the collection of the Government revenue during those few months that really caused the stringency.

Mr. Turner said that they only wished to ask Government to come to the assistance of trade at times of great stringency in the money market. It appeared to the Committee of the Chamber that more assistance might be given to trade by the Government at the busy season of the year. He thought the contingency of people being unable to raise money upon Government Paper should be avoided, if possible, as it was damaging to the credit of the Government. It was probable that such assistance would only be required so long as exchange remained in its present position. When exchange became fixed the Exchange Banks would probably bring out money.

Sir James Westland enquired what sum, in the opinion of the deputation, would be required to relieve the stringency.

Mr. Murray replied that it would not be a large sum, probably an extra crore, or one and-a-half or even two crores.

Mr. Arthur said that he understood the fixed maximum and minimum for Government deposits with the Presidency Banks were the same all the year round, and enquired why the same figures should be fixed for the slack business season when Government balances are low as for the busy season when Government balances are large. He thought that Government might so arrange that their balances with the Presidency Banks should be increased during the busy season, seeing that not only do trade demands for accommodation increase at that time, but the supply of money, as pointed out by Mr. Murray, was decreased at that period by large withdrawals of currency from circulation by Government.

Sir James Westland said that, as he understood the suggestion, it was that the Government should, at the beginning of the busy season, lend to the Presidency Banks a certain sum of money which would be re-called at the end of the busy season. The Government could not consent to an open credit on which the banks might operate at their convenience, and any loans of the kind would have to be made under conditions regarding repayment upon fixed dates. He himself doubted whether, if he were to go to the Bank of Bengal in January and offer them, say, 40 lakhs to be returned in April, they would accept the money and pay interest on it for the whole period. He thought the interest demanded in such a case should be at the rate of one per cent. below the minimum published bank rate, as suggested by the Sub-Committee.

Mr. Turner thought the Presidency Banks would take the money for fixed periods of, say, three months. Loans were made for one month, or two months, or three months, and he could not see why the Presidency Banks should have any objection to the Government stipulating that the money must be returned within three months. His idea was that the money was not really required until the bank rate had reached 10 per cent.

Mr. Arthur said that by the Government lending, say, 40 lakhs to the Presidency, Banks, the loanable capital of the country would be increased by that amount. The loanable capital of the country was not increased by the sale of Council Bills.

Sir James Westland agreed that the sale of Council Bills did not increase the capital of the country, because merchants only got out the Bills for the purpose of meeting immediate demands upon them. The money obtained was at once distributed all over the mofussil.

Mr. Arthur observed that the treatment of the Treasury balances was, in his opinion, a minor matter as compared with the question of Government coming to the assistance of commerce in a time of crisis. With reference to the statement in Sir James Westland's memorandum, paragraph 14, from which it appeared that eleven crores were necessary as a minimum, i.e., there should be a "continual margin against a possible sudden claim of three crores," the Government of India had declined to advance the Bank of Bombay last April twenty-five lakhs against Government Paper. Mr. Arthur read an extract from Mr. Merwanjee Dalal's evidence before the Currency Committee, describing the extreme stringency in Bombay at that time, and stated that on the 1st of April the Treasury balances amounted to Rs. 15,96,95,000; on 30th April they were Rs. 13,69,73,000, and they did not fall below Rs. 12,80,00,000 until the end of October. He was of opinion that, under the circumstances, the small accommodation asked for, viz., a quarter of a crore, might have been granted.

Sir James Westland replied that the substance of the correspondence with the Bank of Bombay had been set out in his memorandum placed in the hands of Chamber of Commerce. The negotiation had practically dropped, because the bank rate fell and money became easier, a few days after the proposal was made to borrow the money. He could not undertake to say whether, if this had not been the case, the loan would have been granted or refused by the Government.* He said that, as a matter of fact, he had on one or two occasions made loans to the Presidency Banks—usually on the deposit of Government Paper.

Mr. Arthur observed that at a time of crisis in England it was open to the Government to suspend the Bank Act, but in India there appeared to be no safeguard in a crisis. In India where the currency was inconvertible and therefore inelastic, the necessity of some method of assisting commerce at a time of excessive need was all the greater.

Sir James Westland said that there had never been a crisis sufficiently acute in India to necessitate such a step as the suspension of the Bank Act being taken. The issuing of Notes in the Currency without receiving an equal amount of coin into the Reserve would be equivalent to the suspension of the Bank Act in England.

Mr. Murray observed that the Exchange Banks were short of money at the busy season of the year by reason of all their resources being locked up in produce afloat. They had not withdrawn money from the foreign trade of India. All they had done was to put that money into sterling form. The money was used for exactly the same purposes as before.

Sir James Westland said that formerly the Exchange Banks used to send out considerable quantities of money to India where it was held in the shape of rupees, but that this was not done now, as the Exchange Banks only got out Council Bills, as they actually wanted them to pay for export bills.

Mr. Murray pointed out in reply to this that the foreign trade had increased so considerably that the Exchange Banks had to devote their resources almost exclusively to it, and this was evidenced by the fact that Local Banks were now rising to finance the local business which the Exchange Banks had been forced to abandon.

After some further discussion, chiefly with reference to the course of action followed by the Exchange Banks, Sir James Westland said that the deputation would of course understand that it was impossible for him to give a final answer upon the representations laid before him. They involved a question of policy which had been the subject of instructions by the Home Government, and were at the present moment under consideration by the Currency Commission; and any representations, which had been made on the subject, would require to be laid before the Secretary of State. He had little doubt that the Government of India would be willing to make a representation to the Secretary of State in the sense indicated by Mr. Arthur, and propose for consideration that a definite amount might be considered available for loans to the Presidency Bank during the months of January, February and March, when money was being withdrawn from the market by heavy collections of revenue and the Government Treasuries were full. He would lay the matter before the Government of India with this object in view.

Mr. Murray said that the principle on which the Presidency Banks in India regulated their cash balances was much the same as that observed by the Bank of England. With the exception of the last two or three years when the Bank of England cash has been abnormally large, the proportion of their cash to liabilities has, on the average, been similar to that of the Presidency Banks in India.

Mr. Turner having thanked Sir James Westland for affording the representatives of the Chamber an opportunity of discussing the question with him, the deputation withdrew.

No. 87 (Financial), dated London, 4th May 1899.

From — The Secretary of State for India,

To—The Government of India.

I have considered in Council your Excellency's letter, dated the 2nd of February, No. 30 on the subject of the use of the Government balances in aid of banking resources in India.

2. The question was raised by the report of the Finance Sub-Committee of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, in which it was stated to have "been the impression for years that the Government have been sparing of their deposits with the Presidency Banks during the seasons of greatest pressure, with the object of stimulating exchange, and lavish with their deposits in the monsoon months, when easy money has helped them to issue new loans."

3. In the note which Sir James Westland wrote in reply, he observed that the Government had more than once had occasion explicitly to deny that they had systematically pursued a policy to create stringency, and he said that there had been no manipulation of

* I find on reference to the papers that the Government was on the point of sanctioning the loan, when the bank rate in Calcutta was reduced from 12 to 11 per cent. (April 20th), the price of Government Paper rose and exchange fell. The Comptroller-General was, accordingly, instructed that, in view of these indications that the stringency in the money market had been materially relaxed, it was considered that a loan to the Bank of Bombay was not at present necessary.—J. W.

the balances to affect the rate of exchange. In order to test how far there was any ground for such a belief, I have caused the cash balances to be examined from the time when the Reserve Treasury was instituted; and the following is the result:

Average Government Balances with the Presidency Banks or in the District Treasuries, but excluding the Reserve Treasury (in lakhs) on the last day of each month.

Years.	Busy season, January to May.			Slack season, June to December.
	Maximum.	Minimum.	Mean.	Maximum.	Minimum.	Mean.
5 years, 1878 82 ...	1,242	1,055	1,144	1,224	874	1,038
" 1883–87 ...	1,220	1,020	1,100	1,128	835	952
" 1888–92 ...	1,316	1,106	1,183	1,245	821	1,017
" 1893–97 ...	1,431	1,194	1,281	1,274	863	1,062
Or
6 years, 1893–98 ...	1,406	1,171	1,258	1,266	886	1,072

It will be observed that the amount in the hands of the Presidency Banks (including that in the district treasuries which is not shown separately) during the busy season is now usually much larger than formerly; and, although the amount during the slack season has slightly increased, this may be fully explained by the failure to sell bills on India in some of the recent years. In the recently published report by the Comptroller-General on the state of the Cash Balances during 1897-98, it is pointed out that at the time of the greatest pressure the amounts in the hands of the Presidency Banks were kept at a fairly high level, the reduction being as far as possible effected at the Government treasuries. As to the supposed manipulation of the balances to facilitate the raising of loans, the figures are as follows:

——	Maximum.	Minimum.	Mean.
Average of 14 years in which Loans were raised	1,276	854	1,069
" 7 years in which Loans were not raised	1,372	859	1,120

4. At the Conference which was held between Sir James Westland and a deputation from the Committee of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, it was admitted that, as had been pointed out by Mr. Robert Steel in 1889 and Sir Alexander Wilson in 1890, when the subject of the management of the Government balances had been discussed in the Legislative Council, any sudden demand for money to meet the exigencies of the Government would fall more heavily on the Banks, if all the balances beyond a limited amount were placed in their hands; but it was suggested that the proportion of the funds at their disposal and of those retained in the Reserve Treasury might with advantage be altered.

5. In order to meet the wishes of the Committee of the Chamber as far as possible, your Excellency proposes that, during the months of January to May in each year, when large sums are withdrawn from the public in payment of Government revenue, it may be recognised as part of the ordinary business of management of the Treasury balances, to lend money to the Presidency Banks, in sums not less than 10 lakhs of rupees, at one per cent. below the declared minimum rate of discount of the borrowing bank, which would be required to deposit Government paper as security, and to repay the money at a definite date, in no case later than the 31st of May. For such purposes you consider that ordinarily you could spare a crore and-a-half of rupees without difficulty.

6. I am not sure that I understand the reasons why your Government solicit my sanction to such an arrangement. The management of the cash balances in India is entirely within your discretion. When it was proposed to institute a Reserve Treasury in order to guard against the risk of public inconvenience on the occurrence of an emergency, the Marquis of Salisbury, in his Despatch of the 6th of May 1875, No. 225, though not approving precisely of the suggestions laid before him, left the matter in the hands of the Government of India, observing that it would be competent for the Financial Department either to retain the money so reserved in the Treasury, "or to lend it for short terms under suitable conditions as to interest and security."

7. This expression seems so exactly to cover your proposal that I have to look further for the grounds on which it is made; and I presume that these are contained in the last paragraph of your letter, in which you observe, "We cannot say that the proposed facility for borrowing money in India would not in any way interfere with your Lordship's Council Bill operations." You think, however, that the transfer of part of the demand from the busy to the slack season of foreign trade would not operate disadvantageously, while it would tend to prevent the rate of discount in India from rising so high as in 1897 and 1898.

8. From this point of view it appears to me that the suggested course is open to considerable objection. The remittance to England, at a favourable rate of exchange, of the amount necessary for the discharge of your sterling obligations, is one of the principal points to be aimed at in the management of the balances; and it is therefore desirable to take the utmost advantage of the season when there is the greatest demand for bills on India. The postponement of a portion of the Government remittances might stimulate imports on private account; and it might very likely be found that, when the time arrived for calling in the money due to you, the balance of trade had been to some extent adjusted, and that there was no such necessity for remittances from India during the early summer as you had expected.

9. I think, further, that any general understanding of the nature proposed would have the effect of inducing the commercial community to rely even more than at present on the assistance of the Government, instead of taking steps to enlarge the amount of loanable capital in the country, the scarcity of which seems to have been the chief cause of the high rates of discount in the year 1897-98.

10. In these circumstances, I am unable to approve of the proposal that you have laid before me. It is impossible to prescribe any specific amount which must be retained in the Reserve Treasury or be otherwise at the command of the Comptroller-General on short notice, in order to meet, not merely the disbursements of your Government in India, but also the probable amount of remittances to England; and it is essential that an adequate provision should be made for these purposes. Subject to this being maintained, I see no objection to your lending money to the Presidency Banks, on the security of Government paper, at such rate of interest from time to time and for such periods as you think best, I am inclined to think that the rate should, as a rule, be not below the bank rate.

TELEGRAPHS.

The 23rd June, 1899.

No. 268.—The following is published for general information:

No. 623 T. E., dated Simla, the 22nd June, 1899.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Public Works Department.

Compulsory test in the vernacular to be passed by an Assistant Superintendent, Class VII, 2nd grade, Indian Telegraph Department, before he can be promoted to the next higher grade.

Read—

Letter from the Director General of Telegraphs, No. 649 G., dated 28th February 1899.

Read also—

Paragraphs 28, 29 and 30 of Chapter II of the Public Works Department Code, Volume I.

RESOLUTION.—Under the Public Works Code rules read in the preamble Assistant Engineers of the 2nd and 3rd grades are obliged to pass certain tests in Hindustani or in the language of the district in which they are employed; and, in the case of officers employed in Burma, in Burmese, before they are promoted to the 1st and 2nd grades, respectively.

In the Telegraph Department no compulsory language test has hitherto been prescribed as a preliminary to promotion, and the desirability of extending that principle to the Telegraph Department has been suggested to the Government of India.

2. The Governor General in Council is accordingly pleased to decide that an Assistant Superintendent of the Telegraph Department in Class VII, 2nd grade, shall be required to pass an examination by the Lower Standard in Hindustani before he can be promoted to the next higher grade. It is left to the discretion of the Director General of Telegraphs to allow an officer of the grade named to pass in any other vernacular for the same purpose, if he has been or is employed in a district where Hindustani is not spoken.

Natives of India will be exempted from the necessity of passing the necessary test under the same conditions that apply to officers of the Engineer Establishment of the Public Works Department (vide paragraphs 29 and 30, Chapter II, Volume I, Public Works Department Code).

3. Officers who have been promoted from the Subordinate grades under the terms of Public Works Department Resolution No. 156 T. E., dated 25th August 1892, are, as in the corresponding case of certain officers of the Engineer Establishment (Public Works Department Code, Volume I, Chapter II, paragraph 15), exempted from the effect of this decision.

4. Those officers who are already in Class VII, 1st grade, will not be compelled to pass the Lower Standard test in Hindustani as a condition of further promotion; but want of proficiency in the language will be taken into account in comparing the claims to future promotion of officers who have not passed.

5. The Governor General in Council is further pleased to rule that officers of the Telegraph Department shall be allowed language leave under the same conditions as apply to Engineer officers of the Public Works Department, vide paragraphs 45 and 46 of Chapter II of the Public Works Department Code, Volume I.

ORDER.—Ordered that this Resolution be communicated to the Director General of Telegraphs and that it be published in the Gazette of India.

Joint Secretary to the Government of India.

PART V.

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd June, 1899:

NO. 4 OF 1899.

A Bill further to amend the Whipping Act, 1864.

VI of 1864. WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Whipping Act, 1864; It is hereby enacted as follows:

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Whipping Act, 1899.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, inclusive of British Baluchistan and the Santal Parganas; and

(3) It shall come into force at once.

Addition to section 2, Act VI, 1864.

VI of 1864. 2. To section 2 of the Whipping Act, 1864, as amended by section 5 of the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1895, the following shall be added, namely: III of 1895.

'Group E.

'(11) rioting armed with a deadly weapon, as defined in section 148 of the said Code.'

Substitution of new section for section 5, Act VI, 1864.

3. For section 5 of the Whipping Act, 1864, as amended by section 6 of the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1895, the following shall be substituted, namely: VI of 1864. III of 1895.

Juvenile offenders when punishable with whipping.

'5. Any juvenile offender who commits or attempts to commit—

(a) any offence which is punishable under the Indian Penal Code otherwise than with death, or XLV of 1860.

(b) any offence which is punishable under any special or local law with imprisonment, may be punished with whipping in lieu of any other punishment to which he may for such offence or attempt be liable:

Provided that the Governor General in Council may, by order in writing, direct that the punishment of whipping shall not be inflicted in respect of such offences falling under clause (b) as he may think fit to specify in this behalf.

Explanation.—In this section the expression "juvenile offender" means an offender who is, in the opinion of the Court (which shall be final and conclusive on the point), under sixteen years of age.'

Repeal.

4. The words 'under the provisions of the Indian Penal Code' in the preamble to the Whipping Act, 1864, and section 6 of the Indian Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1895, are hereby repealed. VI of 1864. III of 1895.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to extend the punishment of whipping in two directions.

2. Clause 2 proposes to make an addition to section 2 of the Whipping Act, 1864 (VI of 1864), which will have the effect of rendering the offence of rioting armed with a deadly weapon punishable with whipping in lieu of any other punishment already provided therefor by section 148 of the Indian Penal Code. The offence is one for which the infliction of corporal punishment seems to be very suitable.

3. Under section 5 of the Act of 1864, as it now stands, a juvenile offender cannot, the Government of India are advised, be whipped except on conviction for an offence under the Indian Penal Code; nor can he be so punished for an attempt to commit an offence. There are undoubtedly many offences against special or local laws which are punishable with imprisonment and for which a youthful offender might, with advantage, be whipped rather than sent to jail; and it is thought that, if the attempt to commit an offence punishable with whipping is not similarly punishable, it ought to be made so. Clause 3 is, therefore, intended to amend the law on the subject by substituting a revised section for section 5 of the present Act.

4. The repeals proposed by clause 4 of the Bill are purely consequential.

The 28th April, 1899. C. M. RIVAZ.

J. M. MACPHERSON,
Secretary to the Government of India.

And whereas Catechist Visuvasam Solomon, of the London Missionary Society, Nagercoil, Travancore, was, in the month of June, 1877, licensed by the said Governor in Council, under the provisions of section 9 of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, to grant certificates of marriage between Native Christians "within the territories subject to the Government of Madras," and the said Visuvasam Solomon did, in the years 1877 to 1894, grant certain certificates in respect of marriages between Native Christians in Travancore, which is a Native State beyond the said territories; XV of 1872.

And whereas the Reverend Friedrich Karl Alwin Gehring, of the Leipzig Evangelical Lutheran Mission, Kambakonam, Tanjore District, was, in the month of May, 1879, licensed by the said Governor in Council, under the provisions of section 9 of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, to grant certificates of marriage between Native Christians, and the said Friedrich Karl Alwin Gehring did, in the years 1884 and 1885, grant certain certificates in respect of marriages between Native Christians in the said Native State of Pudukkottai; XV of 1872.

And whereas the Reverend Ernst Leberecht Dachselt was, in the month of November, 1886, licensed by the said Governor in Council, under the provisions of section 9 of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, to grant certificates of marriage between Native Christians, and the said Ernst Leberecht Dachselt did, both before and after he was licensed as aforesaid, grant certain certificates of marriage between Native Christians in the said Native State of Pudukkottai; XV of 1872.

And whereas the Reverend Karl Traugott Rueger, a Missionary of the Leipzig Evangelical Lutheran Mission, Madras, was, in the month of March, 1888, licensed by the said Governor in Council, under the provisions of section 9 of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, to grant certificates of marriage between Native Christians, and the said Karl Traugott Rueger did, in the year 1895, grant a certificate in respect of a marriage between Native Christians in the said Native State of Pudukkottai; XV of 1872.

And whereas the Reverend Theodor Meyner, a Missionary of the Leipzig Evangelical Lutheran Mission, Trichinopoly, was, in the month of March, 1888, licensed by the said Governor in Council, under the provisions of section 9 of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, to grant certificates of marriage between Native Christians, and the said Theodor Meyner did, in the years 1889 to 1891, grant certain certificates in respect of marriages between Native Christians in the said Native State of Pudukkottai;

XV of 1872.

And whereas there is no reason to doubt that the said Carl Manthey-Zorn, Ludvig Traugott Paesler, Visuvasam Solomon, Friedrich Karl Alwin Gehring, Ernst Leberecht Dachselt, Karl Traugott Rueger and Theodor Meyner acted as aforesaid in good faith in the belief that they were authorized to solemnize marriages or to grant certificates of marriage between Native Christians, as the case may be, in the Native State of Pudukkottai or Travancore, as the case may be;

And whereas there is no reason to doubt that the parties to the said marriages all in good faith believed that their marriages were being duly solemnized or certified, as the case may be, and that their marriages were valid in law;

And whereas it is doubtful whether the said marriages, or any of them, were duly solemnized or certified, as the case may be, so as to be valid in law, and it is expedient that they should be validated;

It is hereby enacted as follows:

Short title, commencement and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Marriages Validation (Pudukkottai and Travancore) Act, 1899; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

All marriages which have been solemnized, or in respect of which certificates have been granted, in the Native State of Pudukkottai or Travancore, as the case may be, by the said Carl Manthey-Zorn, or the said Ludvig Traugott Paesler, or the said Visuvasam Solomon, or the said Friedrich Karl Alwin Gehring, or the said Ernst Leberecht Dachselt, or the said Karl Traugott Rueger, or the said Theodor Meyner, shall be, and shall be deemed to have been on and with effect from the date of the solemnization of each respectively, or the date of the certificate granted in respect of each respectively, as good and valid in law as if they had been solemnized, or the certificates in respect of them had been granted, by persons duly authorized under section 6 or section 9, as the case may be, of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, to solemnize marriage or grant certificates of marriage between Native Christians in the Native State of Pudukkottai or Travancore, as the case may be.

XV of 1872.

Validation of records of the said irregular marriages.

4. Certificates of marriages which are declared by section 3 to be good and valid in law, and register-books and certified copies of true and duly authenticated extracts therefrom deposited in compliance with the provisions of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, in so far as the register-books and extracts relate to such marriages as aforesaid, shall be received as evidence of such marriages as if such marriages had been duly solemnized under Part I or Part VI, as the case may be, of the said Act.

XV of 1872.

Short title conferred on Act XVII, 1895.

5. Act XVII of 1895 (an Act to validate certain marriages solemnized in the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore) may, without prejudice to any other mode of citation, be cited for all purposes as the Marriages' Validation (Bangalore) Act, 1895.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd June, 1899:

NO. 6 OF 1899.

A Bill further to amend the Northern India Canal and Drainage Act, 1873.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Northern India Canal and Drainage Act, 1873; It is hereby enacted as follows: VIII of 1873.

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Northern India Canal and Drainage (Amendment) Act, 1899; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

Addition to section 36, Act VIII, 1873.

2. To section 36 of the Northern India Canal and Drainage Act, 1873, the following paragraph shall be added, namely: VIII of 1873.

"The rules hereinbefore referred to may prescribe and determine what persons or classes of persons are to be deemed to be occupiers for the purposes of this section, and may also determine the several liabilities, in respect of the payment of the occupier's rate, of tenants and of persons to whom tenants may have sublet their lands, or of proprietors and of persons to whom proprietors may have let the lands held by them in cultivating occupancy."

Amendment of section 47, Act VIII, 1873.

3. In section 47 of the said Northern India Canal and Drainage Act, 1873, for the words "or tenants" the words "tenants or sub-tenants" shall be substituted. VIII of 1873.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

A QUESTION has arisen as to whether any one but the tenant whose name is entered in the rent-roll as responsible to the landlord for the rent of the land concerned, is liable, under section 36 of the Northern India Canal and Drainage Act, 1873 (VIII of 1873), for the "occupier's rate" leviable in respect thereof, and the Law Officers, who have been consulted on the point, have offered divergent opinions. It appears expedient, therefore, to remove all doubt on the subject, and, in view of the difference in practice reported from the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab, respectively, it has been thought best to provide expressly—see clause 2 of the Bill—for the amendment of the section so as to leave the liability to be settled by rule.

2. Again, under section 47 of the Act, the lambardar or person under an engagement to pay the land-revenue of an estate is empowered to collect water-rates and dues generally in the same manner as rent or land-revenue from the "subordinate zamindars, raiyats or tenants." The Government of India are advised that this provision gives no authority to collect from sub-tenants, and that any rule to the contrary purporting to be made in exercise of the power conferred by section 75 would be inconsistent with the Act and, therefore, ultra vires. The Government of India are of opinion that collection from sub-tenants should be permitted, and a simple amendment of section 47 of the Act is, therefore, proposed by clause 3 of the Bill.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd June, 1899:

NO. 7 OF 1899.

A Bill to authorize certain Companies registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, to keep branch registers of their members in the United Kingdom.

WHEREAS it is expedient to authorize certain Companies registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, to keep branch registers of their members in the United Kingdom; It is hereby enacted as follows: VI of 1882.

Short title, extent and commencement.

1 (1) This Act may be called the Indian Companies (Branch Registers) Act, 1899.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India; and

(3) It shall come into force at once.

Definitions. [46 & 47 Vict., c. 30, s. 2.]

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) the expression "Company" means a Company registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, which complies with the following conditions: VI of 1882.

(i) that its capital is divided into shares;

(ii) that its paid-up capital in money is not less than twenty lakhs of rupees; and

(iii) that it has bonâ fide carried on business for not less than three years: and

(b) the expression "shares" includes stock.

Power to keep branch registers in the United Kingdom.

3. (1) Any Company may, if authorized so to do by its regulations as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, cause to be kept in the United Kingdom a branch register or registers of members [resident in the United Kingdom]. [Cf. 46 & 47 Vict., c. 30, s. 3.]

(2) The Company shall give to the Registrar of Joint-Stock Companies notice of the situation of the office where any such branch register (hereinafter called a "British register") is kept, and any change therein, and of the discontinuance of any such office in the event of the same being discontinued.

(3) A British register shall, as regards the particulars entered therein, be deemed to be a part of the Company's register of members kept under the Indian Companies Act, 1882, and shall be primâ facie evidence of all particulars entered therein. Every such branch register shall be kept in the manner provided by section 47 of the said Act, with this qualification, that, if such register is ordered to be rectified by any competent Court in the United Kingdom, such rectification shall be made and shall be binding on the Company in India. VI of 1882.

(4) The Company shall transmit to its registered office in India a copy of every entry in its British register or registers as soon as may be after such entry is made, and shall cause to be kept at such office, duly entered up from time to time, a duplicate or duplicates of its British register or registers. The provisions of section 55 of the Indian Companies Act, 1882, shall apply to every such duplicate, and every such duplicate shall, for the purposes of the said Act, be deemed to be part of the register of members of the Company. VI of 1882.

(5) Subject to the provisions of this Act with respect to the duplicate register, the shares registered in a British register shall be distinguished from the shares registered in the Indian register, and no transaction with respect to any shares registered in a British register shall, during the continuance of the registration of such shares in such British register, be registered in any other register.

(6) The Company may discontinue any British register, and thereupon all entries in that register shall be transferred to some other British register kept by the Company in the United Kingdom or to the register of members kept at the registered office of the Company in India.

Power to make rules and prescribe forms.

4. The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, make rules and prescribe forms for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this Act.

Construction with Act VI, 1882.

5. This Act shall, so far as is consistent with the tenor thereof, be construed as one with the Indian Companies Act, 1882. VI of 1882.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to encourage, if possible, the investment of English capital in rupee-companies having an Indian domicile. When in 1897 the attention of the Government of India was drawn to the matter, it was represented that it would be a great convenience to investors in companies formed with rupee capital in this country if they were permitted by law to open registers of shares in Great Britain as well as in India, and also that investors in England would more readily subscribe to rupee capital for the construction of, for example, Indian railways, if quotations could be had on the London Stock Exchange.

2. The Bill has been drawn on the model of the Companies (Colonial Registers) Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict., c. 30), which authorizes any company registered in the United Kingdom for purposes comprising the transaction of business in a colony to open and maintain a branch register of share-holders in that colony Owing to the limited powers of the Indian legislature, the legislation here proposed falls far short of what is compassed by the English Statute. But the Government of India have consulted the various Chambers of Commerce, with the result that the opinion of the mercantile community in India appears to be in favour of the measure, and its introduction has, therefore, been decided upon. The Bill, if it is passed into law, will not relieve the holders of shares registered in branch registers opened in England from the burdens imposed by the English revenue laws; and, while the Government of India will be prepared to notify such exemption from liability to Indian stamp-duties as may be necessary, the measure will not secure for share-holders the same benefits as they would have if the scheme had the sanction of an Act of Parliament. The enactment will, however, be of a purely permissive character, and it will be for the investing public to avail themselves of its provisions if they find that it will afford them any advantage to do so.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd June, 1899:

NO. 8 OF 1899.

A Bill further to amend the Indian Registration Act, 1877.

III of 1877. WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Registration Act, 1877; It is hereby enacted as follows:

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Registration Amendment Act, 1899; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

Repeal of section 22, Act III, 1877, and substitution of new section.

2. Section 22 of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, is hereby repealed, and the following section is substituted therefor, namely: III of 1877.

Description of houses and land by reference to Government maps or surveys.

"22. (1) Where it is, in the opinion of the Local Government, practicable to describe houses, not being houses in towns, and lands by reference to a Government map or survey, the Local Government may, by rule, require that such houses and lands as aforesaid shall, for the purposes of section 21, be so described.

"(2) Save as otherwise provided by any rule made under sub-section (1), failure to comply with the provisions of section 21, clause (b), shall not disentitle a document to be registered if the description of the property, to which it relates, is sufficient to identify that property."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

UNDER section 21, clause (b), of the Indian Registration Act, 1877 (III of 1877), houses outside towns and lands must, for the purposes of registration, be, whenever it is practicable, described in documents by reference to a Government map or survey; but section 22 provides that failure to comply with this requirement shall not disentitle a document to be registered if the actual description given is sufficient to identify the property.

2. It seems to the Government of India that the parties concerned may without objection be required to make use of an easy and certain method of identification where it exists, and that a change in the law obliging them to do so will not only tend to secure the best means of identification, but will be a step towards the substitution of a single for a double system of registration.

3. The object of this Bill is to amend section 22 of the Act of 1877 so as to give effect to this view.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 23rd June, 1899:

NO. 9 OF 1899.

A Bill to amend the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883.

XIX of 1883. WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883; It is hereby enacted as follows:

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Land Improvement Loans Amendment Act, 1899; and

(2) It shall come into force at once.

Amendment, with retrospective effect, of section 6, Act XIX, 1883.

2. In section 6, sub-section (1), of the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883, for the words "from the date of the actual advance of the last instalment", the words "from the date of the advance of the last instalment actually paid" shall be substituted and shall be deemed to have been substituted with effect from the commencement of the said Act. XIX of 1883.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

SECTION 6 of the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883 (XIX of 1883), provides that a loan granted thereunder shall be repayable within such period from the date of the actual advance of the loan, or, when the loan is advanced in instalments, from the date of the actual advance of the last instalment, as may, from time to time, be fixed by rule. The law officers in Bengal have advised that the effect of this section is to make no part of a loan, where the agreement is to advance it by instalments, repayable till after the last instalment has been advanced, the consequence being that, in the event of such last instalment not being accepted, the right of the Government to recover the amount of the earlier instalments actually advanced does not accrue. The object of this Bill is to remove this defect in the language of the section with retrospective effect from the commencement of the Act.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weather Review of India for the Week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, June 17th, 1899.

Monsoon rainfall has continued steadily during the week in Burma, Bengal, Assam and on the west coast. On the 12th rainfall was more general and widely distributed than it had been at the commencement of the week and continued to be fairly general on the 13th and 14th. The Punjab, Sind, Rajputana and Gujarat have received only a few showers.

With the exception of the disturbed area in the Arabian Sea near the Bombay Coast and at the head of the Bay, winds have been fairly normal in direction, but have nearly everywhere been lighter than is usual at this time of the year.

The variations in temperature have been generally dependent on the distribution of rainfall. Temperature has been below the normal in Burma, Bengal, Assam and on the west coast, and the mean temperature of the whole country was lowest on the 13th and 14th, days of general and extended rainfall. In Sind and Rajputana temperature was above the normal on almost every day of the week. The greatest changes in temperature occurred in the Punjab where it was largely in excess at the commencement of the week, the mean temperature of the whole province being 6·5° above the normal. The temperatures reported on Thursday, the 15th, were on an average 6·3° below the normal, there having thus been in four days a change in the variation from the normal of + 6·5° to — 6·3° or nearly 13°.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, June 11th.—Pressure had risen over North-Eastern India, was steady along the west coast and had fallen elsewhere. A shallow depression lay over parts of the North-Western and Central Provinces, and there was an area of relatively low pressure over the Arabian Sea near the Bombay Coast. Easterly winds were extending in Northern India, but the wind force was lighter than usual in most parts of the country. Temperature was lower than usual in Burma, Assam, Bengal, Bihar and Berar and normal or above the normal elsewhere. General rain had fallen over Burma, Assam, Lower Bengal and the west of the Peninsula.

Monday, June 12th—By a brisk rise in pressure along the foot of the North-West Himalayas the area of lowest pressure had been transferred southwards from the West Punjab to Upper Sind. The low pressure area over the Arabian Sea continued. Easterly winds had continued to extend in the north and were reported as far west as Rawalpindi. Temperature was about normal over Burma and Lower Bengal, above the normal in the Punjab and over the southern half of the Peninsula, and below the normal elsewhere. Rainfall had been general over Burma, Assam and the west coast.

Tuesday, June 13th.—The barometer had fallen everywhere, and the low pressure area in the Arabian Sea showed signs of intensifying. The direction of the winds was fairly normal, except on the Bombay Coast, where south-easterly winds were reported. Temperature was higher than usual in the West Punjab, Rajputana, Gujarat and part of Madras and below the normal elsewhere. Rainfall had been more general and widely extended, and some moderately heavy falls were reported from Western India.

Wednesday, June 14th.—The barometric changes had been irregular. The low pressure area off the Bombay Coast was apparently growing deeper, and at the head of the Bay cyclonic conditions were developing, winds having cyclonic directions at the north of the Bay and in Deltaic Bengal where a small shallow depression was shown. Temperature was above the normal in the West Punjab, Sind, Rajputana, Gujarat, part of Madras and Lower Burma, and lower than usual in other parts of the country. With the exception of the Punjab, Rajputana, North Bombay and the central parts of India, where little or no rain had fallen, rainfall had been more or less general, and moderately heavy showers were reported from Burma, Bengal and the west coast.

Thursday, June 15th.—The low pressure area off the Bombay Coast had almost disappeared, but the depression at the head of the Bay continued, though it had hardly developed at all during the previous twenty-four hours. Very high winds were reported from the Bombay Deccan, but the winds on the west coast had veered to their normal monsoon directions. Higher temperatures than usual had been registered in Sind, Rajputana, Gujarat, the Central Provinces and the Madras Coast, but elsewhere temperature was below the normal. In Bengal, Burma and the West Peninsula rainfall had been general and in some places heavy, but there had been practically no rain over the central parts of the country, Sind, Gujarat and South Madras.

Friday, June 16th.—The distribution of pressure was somewhat irregular and unusual, a large area of low pressure occupying nearly the whole of Central and Northern India. Off the Bombay Coast pressure was again unsteady and conditions unsettled. The small depression at the head of the Bay had moved inland over Orissa. From Ratnagiri northwards light winds were reported, but in other parts of the west coast and in the Deccan winds were very strong. Temperature had fallen fast in Orissa and Gujarat and was below the normal in Orissa, Upper India and at Bombay. General rain had been received in Burma, Assam, Bengal and the west of the Peninsula, and some heavy showers were reported from the west coast and Bengal.

Saturday, June 17th.—Pressure had fallen briskly over the Punjab and risen generally over the Peninsula and Lower Burma, a tendency being thus shown to the re-establishment of the normal distribution of pressure. Small areas of squally unsettled weather existed over the head of the Bay and over the north-east of the Arabian Sea. At False Point and Veraval unsteady local north-east winds were blowing, but a fairly general south-easterly and easterly current prevailed over Bengal and up the Gangetic Plain as far as the Punjab. The mean temperature had risen fast in the Punjab and fallen fast in Chota Nagpur and the Bombay Deccan. There had been little or no rain in Upper and Central India and the centre and east of the Peninsula, but in the other parts of the country rainfall had been general and seasonable.

Temperature.—The mean temperature of the week has been lower than usual over the greater part of India. The deficiency has been considerable to large in Chota Nagpur, the North-West Provinces and Oudh, the mean temperature for the whole of the North-West Provinces and Oudh being 8·9° below the normal on the 13th, and 9·8° below the normal on the 14th. Temperature has been generally in excess in Sind and Rajputana and, during the first part of the week, in the Punjab. The changes in temperature have been large in the Punjab, the variations from the normal changing from + 6·5° on the 11th to —6·3° on the 15th. In Burma temperature throughout the week approximated closely to the normal, as the largest variation was only —1·3° on the 11th.

The following table gives the mean temperature variation data for the week:

Rain.—There has been a gradual extension of easterly winds and of monsoon rainfall in Northern India during the past week. On Sunday general rainfall was confined to Burma, Assam, Lower Bengal and the West Peninsula; on Monday to only Burma, Assam and the west coast, but showers were more numerous in Central India and the North-Western Provinces. Rainfall was much more widely extended on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the only provinces where it was insignificant or altogether wanting being Sind, Rajputana, the Punjab, the central districts and the greater part of Madras. On Friday and Saturday the rain reported was chiefly from Burma, Bengal, Assam and the west of the Peninsula.

Rain has fallen every day in Burma, Bengal, Assam, Bihar and the west coast, but it has been lighter than usual in Burma, Assam and Deltaic and North Bengal. It has been heavier than usual in the remaining districts of Bengal and on the west coast. Rainfall in excess of the normal has, during the past week, also fallen in the North-Western Provinces, the south-eastern, southern, submontane and hill districts of the Punjab, Gujarat, Kathiawar and the East Coast (North). The largest absolute variations from the normal rainfall of the week occurred in the west coast districts, and were : Coorg + 11·52 inches, Malabar + 6·32 inches and the Konkan + 5·29 inches.

The last three columns of the table at the end show that the rainfall of the period 4th to 17th June was normal or in slight defect in Burma, normal in Deltaic Bengal and Bihar, in slight defect in North and East Bengal, and in excess in Assam and the remaining divisions of Bengal. Rainfall was slightly to considerably in excess in the North-Western Provinces and in Gujarat and Kathiawar and normal or in slight excess in the west coast districts. Less rain than usual has been received in the central, northern, western and hill districts of the Punjab, the Central Provinces, Rajputana, Central India and Madras.

The following were the principal large totals recorded at individual stations during the week:

Burma	Maungolaw (Akyab)	16·55 inches.
Assam	Cheera Poonjee (Khasia Hills)	16·99 „
West Peninsula	Kayetri (Malabar)	25·95 „
	Karkul (South Kanara)	27·85 „

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 17th June.—The rainfall was heavy on the West Coast and on the Nilgiris; good in the Northern districts and light in the southern part of the Circars, but there was little or none elsewhere. The water-supply is normal. Ploughing is very general and sowing is proceeding under the larger irrigation works and on the West Coast, but rain is now wanted for general sowing. The standing crop is generally in good condition. Such harvest as there is, is yielding fairly. Pasture is scarce, but fodder is sufficient. Cattle are in normal condition. Prices are slightly dearer in the Deccan; elsewhere they are almost stationary.

Bombay.—For week ending 22nd June.—There was rain throughout the Presidency Proper during the week; the fall was heavy in the Konkan and good or moderate elsewhere, except in Bijapur and in the greater part of Sholapur, where the fall was light and insufficient for general sowing. Ploughing and sowing operations are progressing generally and transplantation in Kanara and Hyderabad. Sowings are retarded by excessive rain in parts of Dharwar and Kanara. Fodder is sufficient, except in parts of Sind. A deficiency of water exists in parts of Sind and Baroda territory. Agricultural stock is healthy. Prices have risen in seven and fallen in two districts.

Bengal.—For week ending 19th June.—Cloudy and unsettled weather prevailed during the week, and good general rain fell in every district. The agricultural prospects of the Province are so far very favourable. The sowing of early rice and jute is nearly finished and the young plants are doing well. Lands are being ploughed and the sowing of the autumn crops and winter rice is going on. The condition of young sugarcane is generally good. A large flight of locusts passed through a portion of the Patna district, but no damage is reported. Locusts are still reported from Dacca. The fodder-supply is everywhere sufficient, except in one thana in Manbhum. No important change in the price of common rice is reported.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 21st June.—Rain has been general in the Province. Preparations for the autumn crop sowings are in active progress everywhere, and early crops are being sown in some districts. Indigo and sugarcane are doing well. Supplies and fodder are sufficient. Prices have risen in places, otherwise they are almost stationary or falling slightly.

Punjab.—For week ending 22nd June.—Rain has fallen in all districts, except Amritsar, Shahpur, and Peshawar. Harvesting of spring crops is nearly over. Extra spring crops, as well as the standing autumn crops, are being watered. Rice and maize are being sown in Peshawar. Ploughings and sowings of autumn crops continue. More rain is urgently wanted. The outturn of the spring crops is reported average or below average and that of the extra spring crops is expected to be fair to average; but is below average in Ferozepore and Dera Ismail Khan. Recent rain has been beneficial to the standing crops and will help ploughings, but more is required for sowing purposes. Hail fell in parts of Lahore and damaged the crops. Cattle are said to be in fair condition, except in Hissar, Delhi, Shahpur, and Dera Ismail Khan, where they are getting lean. Fodder is scarce in Delhi, Shahpur, and parts of Hissar, Lahore, Peshawar and Dera Ismail Khan districts. Prices—especially of wheat—are rising in Hissar and Dera Ismail Khan; falling in Rawalpindi and Peshawar; and are unchanged elsewhere. Wheat is selling from $16\frac{1}{2}$ to $22\frac{1}{3}$, barley 29 to 32, gram from 20 to 29, maize 26 to 32, great millet 19, bulrush-millet 18 to 23¾, and rice 14 to 15 seers per rupee.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 20th June.—There has been general rain over the Provinces. Saugor received 3·09 inches; Seoni 3·44; and Sambalpur 4·09. In the remaining districts the falls have been lighter. Ploughing operations are almost completed and sowing is in progress in some parts of the Provinces. In Saugor, Damoh, and Hoshangabad 4,678, 2,383, and 589 persons, respectively, are in receipt of village relief; and in the last district 68 persons are in receipt of gratuitous relief. The demand for relief is apparently diminishing. Scarcity of fodder and water continues in parts of the Provinces. Prices are generally rising steadily; the price of wheat, gram, rice, and juar has risen in some districts, and has fallen in others. The cheapest prices are—wheat 21, gram 36, rice 21, and juar 27 seers per rupee; the dearest prices are—wheat 12¼, gram 18, rice 10, and juar 19¾ seers per rupee.

Burma.—For week ending 17th June.—In Lower Burma ploughing is progressing in all districts. Sowing has also commenced in six districts and young plantain are being transplanted in parts of Henzada. Sowing on hill sides in the Tavoy district is nearly completed. In Upper Burma reaping of the dry weather crop has been completed in parts of Katha and Pakôkku. The crop has suffered from excessive rain as reported last week. Early paddy is being reaped in Mandalay. Sowing on the hill sides in the Northern districts continues in Kyaukse. Transplanting of the early wet weather crop is completed. Ploughing for and sowing of the wet weather paddy crop and the early upland crops such as cotton, sesamum, and maize continue in most districts. The condition of the standing crops is fair, except in the Pagan sub-division of the Myingyan district, where more rain is wanted; and in three townships of Mandalay where the floods have done damage. The price of paddy has been stationary during the week, except for a slight fall in Rangoon, Amherst, Bassein, and Thongwa.

Assam.—For week ending 20th June.—The weather is wet and unfavourable for tea, but prospects are improving in Sibsagar. Sowing of early rice is finished in the Assam Valley. Ploughing for late rice, planting of sugarcane, and sowing of late rice seedlings are in progress. Prospects of early rice are fair on low lands, but the crop has been somewhat damaged by floods in the Surma Valley and partly in Nowgong. Tea blight is prevalent in Kamrup and Cachar. Fodder is scarce in parts of Sylhet. Prices—common rice—Silchar and Dhubri 17; Sylhet 19; Gauhati 17; Tezpur, Sibsagar, and Dibrugarh 12; and Nowgong 13 seers per rupee.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 20th June.—MYSORE: Rainfall—16 cents in the Civil and Military station and rain general and good in parts of Hassan, Kadur, and Shimoga. Prices have slightly risen in Bangalore and Mysore. Ragi (Eleusine coracana) has been sown in parts of Tumkur and Mysore.

COORG:—Rainfall—18 inches 84 cents. Ploughing for rice continues. Prices of food-grains are stationary. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 21st June.—BERAR: The weather is warm with seasonable rainfall. Preparation of land for the monsoon crop is well advanced. Sowing of cotton has commenced. Fodder and water are insufficient in parts of the Province. Prices are fluctuating.

HYDERABAD: Rainfall during the week—76 cents. Autumn sowings have commenced in parts. Prices of grain are stationary. Prices—wheat 10, coarse rice 10½, and jowari 24½ seers per current sicca rupee.

Central India.—For week ending 21st June.—Good rain fell in Central India during the week. Agricultural operations have been completed in Gwalior and are in progress elsewhere. Agricultural stock and pasturage are in good condition. Prices are above normal in Bundelkhand and normal elsewhere.

Rajputana.—For week ending 21st June.—Good rain fell during the week—Abu received 3·04 inches; Serohi 1·80; Meywar 1·97; Shahpura 1·5; Bickanir 1·15; Merwara over 1·00 inch; Pertabgarh ·72; Bhurtpore ·60; and Ajmere ·38; the fall was slight elsewhere, but there was no rain in Marwar and Jeysulmere. Agricultural operations are proceeding satisfactorily. Ploughing and sowing are progressing in parts. The condition of cattle and fodder is unchanged. Prices are rising in Kotah and Haraoti; slightly in Ajmere; and are steady elsewhere. Four persons emigrated from Ajmere during the week. The total emigration from Merwara to date numbers—4,431. The numbers employed on relief works were—Ajmere 568, Merwara 7,926, and Marwar 996. There are also 311 on ordinary works and 267 on gratuitous relief in Ajmere-Merwara. Prices have risen slightly in Ajmere, Beawar, and Marwar.

Kashmir.—For week ending 20th June.—The weather is fine. Prospects of the spring crops are excellent. Prices continue below normal. Rice—27 seers per rupee.

JAMMU PROVINCE.—For week ending 21st June.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are falling slightly. Prices—wheat 16 to 22 and maize 23 to 31 seers per rupee. The condition of the standing crops is fair. Sowings of the autumn crops are in progress. Fodder is sufficient.

Early intimation will enable the Principal to select men suitable for service in particular localities and on special works. Many of the men now being trained promise to turn out good subordinates, and it is proposed, as far as possible, to appoint the best men in the order in which applications are received.

2. When candidates are taken, it is particularly requested that they may be placed for training during their period of probation under judicious and competent officers. It is certain that the future of a subordinate depends quite as much on the nature of his early training on works as on his previous theoretical education.

3. The selection of suitable men will be greatly facilitated if the following particulars are supplied :—

No. of candidates required.	Grade or class.	For what locality.	Nature of employment, survey or works.	Temporary employment or probation for permanent.	If temporary, probable duration.	Rate of pay and travelling allowance.

* In excess of the guaranteed appointments.

N.B.—Men can be supplied qualified as:—

3rd „ „ . . . . . Mechanical Foreman.
3rd „ Sub-Overseer . . . . Press Manager.

4. In all cases travelling allowance at the rate of two annas per mile by road and double third class fair by rail, for the distance from Roorkee to their respective destinations, will be advanced by the Principal of the College to passed Lower Subordinate students on their first appointment to the Public Works Department and travelling allowance under the Civil Service Regulations to Overseers, to be refunded to him by the Executive Engineer under whom they are appointed to serve.
